1937 SAW MUCH ACTIVITY IN CONSTUCTION WORK

Many Thousands Of Dollars Expended In Oakland And Other Parts of the County Last Year

BUILDINGS SUBSTANTIAL

Many thonsands of dollars have been expended in Oakland and in other parts of Garrett county during the year just passed on erection of buildings, repairs to old buildings and in painting and redecorating of properties.

Heading the list in cost is the school huilding at Grantsville, work on which was begun in March. The addition was completed early in September at a cost of about $80,000, half of which was supplied by the Federal Government from PWA funds.

Two buildings are first in importance in Oakland—one a factory and the other an office building—both of which are on Third street, improving the appearance of that part of town very materially.

A plant for the manufacture of coca cola is now being completed at a cost of approximately $40,000, while the office building was completed late last year by Dr. N. I. Broadwater at a cost of about $13,000.

New residences include those of Lowell Loomis and Karl Kahl, State Road, and Olin Hardesty, South Third street. These are all completed and are being occupied. The new Methodist parsonage on Oak street, will be completed and ready for occupancy some time in Febrnary.

There has been much activity in the remodeling of homes during 1937. Bolden's Funeral Home was completely remodeled; the Gonder residence on Second street was made into a modern apartment building by Stuart F. Hamill, and "The Rest," work on which was begun more than a year ago, has now been completely made over into apartments by the owner, George Warnick.

Additions have been completed to the City Roller Mills, Green street, by A. W. Helbig; to the Rackard and Glotfelty Garage and the Auto Electric Service Station, both on Oak street. James P. Treacy has made additions to the old Mattingly property, State road, and has erected a two-car garage there.

A number of churches have been repaired and redecorated, including St. Peter's Catholic church and St. Mark's Lutheran church in Oakland; Grace Lutheran church in Friendsville; the Methodist church, also in Friendsville; the Lutheran church at Grantsville and Mount Bethel church and the Underwood U. B. church. Some repairs and rearrangement of the church at Gortner was also made following damage to the building by lightning.

There has also been much construction activity along Deep Creek Lake, a number of cottages having been completed during 1937 and plans made for others to be constructed this year. Ben Knepp, at Red House, has completed a stone bungalow and plans the erection of another one this year.

A number of harns have been constructed in various parts of the county and many who did no new construction during the year improved their properties by repairing or repainting. Quite a few garages on private properties have been built within the limits of Oakland.

George Fulk has improved his home property by adding a sun porch and making needed repairs.

All such activity has made a noticeable improvement in the appearance of Oakland and the many other places where this work has been done.

Oakland has also increased its assets by constructing a reservoir at a cost of about $11,000 and is having the old reservoir repaired at a cost of approximately $3,000. Oakland has also sponsored the construction of a municipal golf course, at a cost of approximately $13,000, which is expected to increase the town's revenues in future years.

Scout Court Of Honor To Meet Monday, January 10

The regular meeting of the Court of Honor of the Oakland Boy Scout troop will be held Monday evening, January 10, at 7:30, in the Masonic clubroom.

Scouts completing work for merit badges and recommended by their special examiners will be eligible to attend, and also those ready to qualify for higher rank. A meeting of the Troop committee will be held immediately after the Court adjourned.

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE BY HOME DEMONSTRATOR

Miss Barton's Report Covers Extension Work Done In County

That the Homemakes' program, "Better Family Living," had reached more homemakers in Garrett county than any program previously carried, was shown by Miss Mildred Barton, home demonstration agent, in her annual report which was just recently completed.

The program included a study of home furnishings, lighting, clothing, home management, music appreciation, reading, and its members also took time out to enjoy recreational activities and bring a number of specialists to this county to learn what new things were being done in other sections of the State.

The program came to the attention of many more than the 216 members of the nine homemakers clubs of the county, according to Miss Barton, and quite a number followed recommendations in rearrangement and improvement of their kitchens and other rooms of their homes. The same program will be continued during 1938.

The report also showed much advancement among members in clothing, music, and reading. In music the study of folk songs was continued and in many clubs each program provided for fifteen minutes of music. This activity is to be continued on the basis of "wherever there is good music there is harmony, and wherever there is harmony there are good citizens."

In reading there are now five clubs having traveling libraries. The homemakers report having read 584 books and one community has started a community reading circle.

In 4-H club work the 174 club members determined projects to snit their needs and 139 of them completed at least one project in food, clothing, home management, home furnishings, leadership, home gardens, or flower gardens.

Other activities included young mothers' groups, relief food classes, cheese schools, grange, flower garden school, Civic club, county picnic, Allegheny Tableland Fair, and peace work.

Miss Barton recommended in her report that the county music program be carried out in local clubs, that the yonng mother's groups be continued as a minor project; that more people be encouraged to keep Farm Home Accounts; that a study be made of the oldest houses in the county; that emphasis be continued on reading in the home. More interest in Extension work among the young and adult groups were noted. A copy of the full report has been retained in Miss Barton's office where it may be examined by anyone interested.

Miss Barton visited in 395 homes and had 197 people visit her in relation to extension work. Over two hundred method demonstrations were held with a total attendance of 2,508, while 104 other meetings were held with a total attendance of 17,266.

Red Cross Roll Nears Quota

A recent report from Mrs. Paul B. Naylor, chairman of the Red Cross Roll Call for Garrett county, shows the membership nearing the 400 mark, the quota set by national headquarters.

The last report showed 367 members and $377.25 collected. The school at Kempton contributed as follows: 1st grade, $1; 2nd and 3rd grades, $1; 4th and 5th grades, $1; 6th and 7th grades, $1; high school, $2.40. Mrs. Gilbert Smith and Miss Ruth MacMurray, of Kempton, were also enrolled as members.

Others reported this week were James Aronhalt, Gormania, W. Va.; F. J. Getty, Zeola Layman and Miss Emma Caulk, Grantsville; Mr. and Mrs. William Hardesty, Mrs. Beural Casteel and W. A. Johnson, Oakland; Lloyd Miller, Accident; C. W. Sterling, Norfolk, Va.; and Miss Mabel Speicher, College Park.

Mrs. Naylor said there had been no report for Hoyes, Deer Park, Vindex and a small part of Oakland.

Clinics Are Scheduled

There will be a tuberculosis clinic next Wednesday morning, January 12, in the health office, Court House. This is the usnal monthly clinic and these will be continned as usual. Dr. A. V. Cadden, head of the work at Hopemont, W. Va., will be in charge of the clinic.

A mental hygiene clinic will be conducted on Monday, January 17. Miss Katherina Stuber, physician from the Springfield State hospital, will be in charge.

MARRIAGE LICENSES HIT NEW RECORD AS 1828 ARE ISSUED DURING 1937 BY CLERK OF CIRCUIT COURT

Biggest Year Before Was 1937, When 1,451 Were Granted; 939 Couples From West Virginia

AUGUST LIST TOPS NUMBER

The number of marriage licenses issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland hit the all-time high during 1937 with 1,828 permits being written. The highest number previous to 1937 was during 1936, when 1,451 licenses were issued.

The nnmber issued in 1937 is an average of five each day of the year, and the total is more than the entire population of Oakland.

Licenses were granted to couples from West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland and nineteen other scattered states of the Union and the District of Columbia. The brides and grooms came as far away as California, Connecticut, Louisiana and Alabama. The total was 377 greater than last year.

August showed the greatest number of licenses as having been issued during one month, with 205, while June was next highest with 188. August also set an all-time record for the highest in any one month since records by the month have been kept.

939 Couples From West Virginia

Of the couples married nine hundred thirty-nine couples were from West Virginia; 476 from Pennsylvania; 164 from Maryland; 72 from Ohio, and the remainder from Virginia, New York, Kentucky, Wyoming, Colorado, Delaware, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Louisiana, New Jersey, Missouri, Illinois, Michigan, Tennessee, Indiana, California, Iowa, Massachusetts, Alabama and the District of Columbia.

In the remaining number of licenses issued the contracting parties were from different states—West Virginia-Pennsylvania couples having the greatest number with 48, while West Virginia-Maryland couples totaled 46. West Virginians were connected with 1,060 of the licenses issued, either both parties being from that state or one of them.

The following shows the number of licenses issued each month during the year 1937:

Month	Number of Licenses
January	99
February	82
March	117
April	140
May	155
June	188
July	154
August	205
September	166
October	183
November	157
December	182
Total	1,828

December's total was increased considerably by the pre-Christmas rush and the New Year's Eve rush.

Many Decorative Electric Bulbs Are Stolen From Shrubbery

Quite a large number of outside Christmas lighting electric bulbs were stolen from a number of private homes and from curb trees erected by the merchants and other business men on various streets during the past ten days, the heaviest loser being the Loar family on Second street, whose decoration of their premises was considered one of the handsomest in the town.

It was estimated that more than fifty bulbs had disappeared from their extensive display in front of their home, as many as fifteen or twenty having been taken at one time. Members of the Loar family have offered a reward of $5 for information that would lead to the arrest and conviction of the thief or thieves.

The theft of bulbs here during the Christmas season has occurred in former years and arrests have been made in several instances. This year, however, although a number of householders and business men have reported losses there have been on persons apprehended.

Council To Distribute Copies Of Ordinance Forbidding Coasting

The regular meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening was one of mostly routine business and of short duration. The meeting lasted about one hour and during that time members of the body decided to distribute copies of an ordinance forbidding coasting on the streets and alleys within the corporate limits.

This action on the part of Council is being taken as a precautionary measure. A nnmber of youths, boys and girls, have been using the streets of the town for the purpose of coasting, and the officials wants no responsibility for any accidents that might occur.

Following many complaints from citizens, a man was authorized to begin collecting all stray dogs or those rnnning at large, hence all dogs not under leash will be gathered up and if not claimed by the owner within a reasonable time they will be disposed of, it was stated.

Bills for the month of December amounting to approximately $1,200 were passed and ordered paid.

JOHN W. HERMAN CHOSEN COMMISSIONERS' HEAD

Succeeds Virgil T. Steyer; Neil C. Fraley Retained as Attorney

At the initial meeting of 1938 of the Garrett County Board of County Commissioners held in the Board office on Monday, John W. Herman was chosen president of the body, succeeding Virgil T. Steyer, who had served in that capacity for one year. Mr. Steyer was elected at the January meeting, 1937, as the successor of Blaine Giessman, who was president of the Board for two years, thus all members of the present board have filled or shall have filled the chair of the president at the end of the present year.

All members of the board have been conscientious, according to those who have had busines with them, in all matters pertaining to the public and the taxpayers of the county and have been in cooperation in all things appertaining to the puhlic welfare. Mr. Herman, no doubt, will be supported in his administration by other members of the present board.

Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, remams as attorney to the board, having been reappointed at Monday's meeting.

D. W. Schroyer, of the Accident community, was appointed constable for Election District No. 5, and Thane O. White was reappointed custodian of the Court House and grounds, which will meet with the approval of persons located in the Court House, there is little donbt.

T. B. Sales In County Has Reached $194.91

Returns from the T. B. seal sale in Garrett county have reached a total of $194.91, according to Dr. E. C. Peck, health officer, who is in charge of the record at his office.

This is already greater than the receipts of last year and it is expected that more money will be turned in within the next week or two. Each year those in charge of tuberculosis work in the State mail out seals to various people in the county asking them to use as many as they can, paying for the ones they use and returning the unused stamps to a designated place. Seventy per cent of the money raised in this manner is used for tuberculosis work among Garrett countians.

Fire Department Officers Are Named For 1938

Officers for the Oakland Fire Department, named at a recent meeting, who will have charge of the organization during 1938 are Edward A. Shaffer, president; Dr. Ralph Kercheval, vice-president; James E. Hart, secretary; Walter W. Dawson, treasurer; Emroy Bolden, chief; Grover C. Stemple, first assistant chief; James Lewis, second assistant chief; Robert Stanton, captain.

The standing committee includes R. T. Thayer, A. G. Gortner and Walter W. Dawson.

OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS OF BANKS TO BE CHOSEN

Meetings To Be Held Tuesday; No Changes In Officers Expected

Officers and directors of the various banks in the county will be selected next Tnesday when stockholders have been notified to meet.

Owners of stock in the First National Bank at Friendsville will meet at three o'clock in the afternoon. Those of the First National Bank, Oakland, will meet at ten o'clock in the morning, while those of the First State Bank of Grantsville and the Garrett National Bank of Oakland will meet at two o'clock in the afternoon.

No changes in the present set-up of officers in any of the institutions are expected.

Stockholders of both Oakland banks received dividend checks this week, the First National Bank declaring $1.00 per share, while the Garrett National paid 40 cents per share, or four per cent, the same as was paid by both institutions last year.

A call has just been issued for bank statements to he published and next week the statements of condition of the four banks of the county will appear in print. Deposits in the four institutions will reach approximately $2,500,000, showing that Garrett county is in a healthy condition financially.

OVER 200 HAVE ALREADY FILED CLAIMS FOR BENEFIT

Expect Number Eligible For Unemployment Compensation In County To Reach 1500

SOME ARE NOT ELIGIBLE

More than two hundred persons of an estimated 1500 unemployed or partially unemployed of the county have already filed benefit claims under the unemployment compensation law, now in effect. Milburn W. Mann, in charge of the Maryland State Employment Service here, estimated that more than 300 persons would file claims before the end of the week.

The Employment Service maintains offices on the second floor of the City Hall, Third street, each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 9 to 4, and on Saturday morning, 9 to 12. Mr. Mann is also in Grantsville every Tuesday morning from 9:30 until 11:30, and in Friendsville every Tuesday afternoon from 3 to 4.

During this period of filing claims, Mr. Mann has obtained the assistance of Mrs. Mary Browning in filling out blanks and arranging them. Those who next report to the office will be "checking in" for the second time, hut after that it is expected they will be permitted to mail in cards rather than appear in person.

Payments of compensation will not begin until the last week in the present month, and it is probable that many of those who have filed claims may not be eligible for benefits.

Agricultural workers, domestics and employes of Government departments, whether Federal, State or local, will not be eligible, nor will persons whose 1937 employment was with schools, hospitals or other non-profit institutions.

The eligibles will be those who worked during the first three-quarters of 1937 and the equivalent of eight weeks for a commercial or industrial concern of Maryland employing at least eight persons.

Every applicant must wait at least three weeks for his check after the date he first filed his claim. Two weeks are for the waiting period required by law, and the third week must elapse before the benefit for that week becomes due. Those who filed Monday cannot be paid earlier than January 24th.

Mr. Mann estimated that 1100 miners would be eligible to file claims and that probably 1500 persons in the entire county would be eligible to benefit under the law.

Officials in Baltimore estimated that a total of 20,000 persons in that city were eligible for payments of not more than $15 per week.

R v. Donald W. Brown, Aurora, W. Va., will deliver the sermon at the regular worship service in St. Mark's Lutheran church on Sunday morning at 10:45. Sunday school is at 9:30, and there will also be Luther League at 6:30 p. m. Rev. Parker Wagnild, instructor in Gettysburg Theological Seminary, was the speaker last Sunday morning.

TWO WOMEN REPORT MAN TRIED TO ASSAULT THEM

Dave DeWitt, 27, Arrested Last Saturday On Charge Of Assault But Denies Any Connection

OFFICERS INVESTIGATE

Dave DeWitt, 27, was arrested last Saturday on a charge of assault and held for further questioning in cases in which two young women had reported that a large masked man had grabbed and struck them.

Mrs. Grover Butler, 18, living at Rosedale, one-half mile west of Oakland, told Sheriff Clarence Spear that a large man grabbed her Friday evening about 7 o'clock as she came around the corner of her home, struck her on the jaw, bit her and injured her back. She screamed for help and then fainted. Neighbors, aroused by the commotion, assisted her into the house and summoned a doctor.

Miss Irene Hoye, residing west of Oakland on the Swallows Falls road, reported to W. D. Casteel about midnight Friday that as she neared her home a large masked man rushed at her and grabbed her. She struck him in the face with a pocketbook and fled, she told officers. A car approached and hailing the driver, she came to Oakland and reported to police.

Arrest of DeWitt was made Saturday morning by Casteel and Lester Bittinger, constable.

State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, who investigated, said DeWitt would be held until a complete investigation is made. DeWitt denies having any connection with the case but admitted to Fraley that he had served time in the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville for theft of an automobile, and later beating up the deputy sheriff in Preston county, while in jail at Kingwood.

DeWitt's arrest Saturday came after Miss Hoye identified her assailant as DeWitt. She told Fraley that when the man approached her he said "What's your name?" She told officers she answered, "Irene Hoyue what's yours?" "Dave DeWitt," she told officers the man had said. This was denied by DeWitt.

A companion of DeWitt's earlier in the evening told Fraley that DeWitt boasted he was "going to take Irene Hoye home."

Three Youths Found Guilty Of Theft of Gas and Accessories

Thomas Cessna, 17, Cumberland, and Howard Nethkin, 17, of near Oakland, were given a hearing Monday afternoon on a charge of larceny before Justice of the Peace C. F. Hammond, and upon conviction by the trial magistrat they were given sentences of 60 days each in jail.

The two youths were charged with the larceny of a horn and other automobile accessories and for the theft of gasoline from automobiles parked in the vicinity of the Leighton Garage on Third street.

According to Justice Hammond the thefts were discovered when one of the youths was caught in the act of "milking" a gas tank. Cessna was arrested when he attempted to escape in his car, which had been parked near the residence of Ernest C. Liller on Pennington street, nearly opposite the Leighton Garage. Cessna, according to Justice Hammond, admitted the theft of the horn, but was unable to account for other accessories that were found in his car.

Arthur Nethkin, 19, brother of Howard, also of near Oakland, arrested on Saturday night for participation in the theft with the other two boys, was also convicted but was given a suspended sentence of 60 days in jail.

All three youths had been enrollees in Potomac CCC camp south of Deer Park, and their enrollment had just expired.

Sales at Oakland Postoffice Show Increase In 1937

The sale of stamps, etc., at the Oakland postoffice during 1937 reached a total of $18,013.13, an increase of $1,100 over the previous year, it was announced yesterday by the assistant postmaster. This is the largest year on record within the past eight or nine years. The total amount received included box rents.

Money order business also increased, although no accurate figures were available. Postal savings remained at about the same figure, while there was a decrease in savings bonds, it was stated.

PREPARING FOR A LIFE OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Prepare ye the way of the Lord.—Mark 1:3.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Was Baptized.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Was Baptized.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Getting Ready to Serve.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Dedicating Our Lives to Service.

"The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ"—what an interesting expression! Did it not begin back before the foundation of the world? Yes, for the death of Christ was no mere afterthought in God's plan. But now we have the coming into the world of the One who was the Lamb slain from before the world's founding. Jesus Christ is about to appear to begin his ministry which was to culminate at Calvary's cross.

Before Jesus, comes the one sent to proclaim his appearing, to herald the coming of the Servant of God. Mark begins his account with the ministry of John the Baptist and makes no reference to the birth and genealogy of Jesus. How appropriate that is, for after all the important thing about a servant is not that he came from a certain family, or was born in a particular place. The point is that he is here now and able and ready to do his work.

I. The Herald of Christ (vv. 1-8).

The prophets had pointed forward to the coming of Christ. John the Baptist, of whom our Lord said that there was not a greater among the prophets, now appears to proclaim his presence and prepare the way for him. Of him Joseph Parker beautifully says that he "was all but a transparent veil: they could almost see the coming God through him . . . If he stood aside for a moment there was the One who was to come."

John was a unique personality, admirably fitted to proclaim a stern message of repentance to a decadent age. Let us not put aside or ridicule strangely clad and unusual folk who have a word for us from God.

"Repent"—that was his message from the Lord. America needs that message today. The Christian doctrine of repentance has been set aside by some because they dislike its convicting power, and by others through theological readjustment. It needs re-affirmation.

John's greatest message, however, was the coming of the One who was to baptize not with water but with the Holy Ghost. Like every true witness he humbles himself and points to the Saviour. We need the message, "repent," but we need even more to recall to our preaching and our churches the Holy Ghost power of the Son of God.

II. The Baptism of Christ (vv. 9-11).

The account in Mark is brief but it brings before us the fact that the sinless Son of God thus identified his holy self with sinful humanity which he had come to save.

Let us learn the lesson that obedience to the divine will, a willingness to humble ourselves to do the work whereunto God has sent us, are prerequisites to the filling of the Holy Spirit with power and grace for life and service.

III. The Temptation of Christ (vv. 12, 13).

We recall as we consider the temptation of Jesus, that he was without sin, that there was no fallen nature in him to which Satan could appeal. The temptation or testing of Jesus was therefore along Messianic lines, but the principles both of temptation and victory are similar to those of our own experience. Consider the parallel passages in Matthew 4 and Luke 4.

The Devil has only three real temptations to present, "the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life" (I John 2:16). These he used with Jesus as he tempted him to make food for his hungry body, to look at the kingdoms of this earth and attain them by a wrong method, and to presume on God's grace by throwing himself from the pinnacle of the temple.

Victory came through the use of God's Word. We need to learn that lesson and not attempt to defeat Satan with any man-made weapons of will-power, logic, or culture. Jesus was certain of victory. He is our victory. Learn to know him as Saviour and Lord. Study God's Word and learn how to use it in spiritual conflict. Yield to the Holy Spirit. Victory lies that way, and nowhere else.

The Countenance

The countenance may be defined as the title-page which heralds the contents of the human volume, but like other title-pages, it sometimes puzzles, often misleads, and often says nothing to the purpose.—W. Matthews.

Men of Faith

The ablest men in all walks of modern life are men of faith. Most of them have much more faith than they themselves realize. — Bruce Barton.

The practice of stealing electric bulbs from Christmas decorations is particularly obnoxious to me and to a lot of other people.

There is nothing that gives the atmosphere of Christmas so much as the appropriate lighting arrangements that are in evidence in every part of the town during the holiday period. People spend much time, energy and money in arranging these decorations and it is most discouraging to find that their hours of work can be ruined in a few minutes by some thief who is really worse than a sneak thief.

The bulbs are not stolen to sell to provide money to get something to eat. It is hard to blame a person who is so hungry that he falls into temptation and must steal in order to live. But in this case it is not that. Bulb stealing is done deliberately and merely for the sake of destroying beauty, or just to be mean. Either reason is bad enough.

If the bulb stealing is being practiced by young boys who have a reputation for being thoughtless, parents ought to use the hairbrush on them to just sort of make an impression and let them know that it isn't right and isn't bein gdone in ordinary society.

If something isn't done to stop such practices in a few years everybody will cease showing the Christmas spirit that has been evident in Oakland during the past number of holiday seasons.

* * *

Then Oakland will lose its reputation for being one of the most attractive towns in this section durng the holiday festivities.

* * *

Panhandlers In Evidence

There appears to be an over-supply of bums and panhandlers around Oakland at the present time. They are liable to knock at your back door or your front door at any hour and demand something to eat.

One the other night on Oak street asked the housewife for a loaf of bread. She had only a half loaf and cut some slices for the man. He, however, had other ideas. "If I can't have a whole loaf I don't want any," he told the kindly lady and left in an angry mood. Next door he asked for two quarts of milk.

As little as this class of men have to do, they certainly could do all their begging for food before dark, instead of making the rounds at ten, eleven or twelve o'clock at night. They might take a notion to want other things.

* * *

It might pay to keep your eyes open and your doors locked.

* * *

One man of the lot seems to have told a straight story. He has army discharge papers, is a World War veteran and has a hole in his side made by a piece of shrapnel. He told Mayor Fraley that people here "hadn't seen nothing yet. Just wait until the unemployed roll in."

He told the Mayor he would be glad enough to work for something to eat, but if he couldn't work, he'd have to eat, even if he had to steal to do it.

* * *

It's Dogs Again

You'd better collar your pet dog and keep him under lock and key—or at least under leash.

The Town Council has ordered all strays and those running at large to be locked up in Mike Maroney's barn (or mayne they'll try the City Hall basement again). From there, if not claimed within a reasonable time, they will be "eliminated" by dog catcher "Vic" Tasker.

It's safe to say that "Vic" and also members of the Town Council will be cussed and discussed plenty within the next few weeks.

Friendsville Woman Makes Complaint About Water

Mrs. Helen F. Barr, of Friendsville, wrote the Public Service Commission last Friday that "we have been without water for almost three weeks" and "sanitary conditions are very bad."

She complained the Friendsville Water Company "has made no effort to repair the line or even investigate the trouble," and asked the commission to probe the situation.

The Commission sent a copy of the complaint to the company, requesting a report.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by special permission.

An Interesting Agreement

While it is not possible to predict what this Congress will or will not do, it is certainly safe to say that in its range, its cost and its departure from the accepted American doctrine of individual freedom, the Crop Control bill, passed by both branches in the extra session and now scheduled to emerge from the conference committee some time this month, easily stands alone.

The more this extraordinary measure is considered the more clearly it is revealed as the greatest of Administration adventures into the field of planned economy. The complications of the proposal are such as to baffle general comprehension and it is entirely accurate to state that it is as little understood by the men who voted for it as any piece of legislation that ever came before Congress. Nothing showed that more clearly than the brief debate that took place in December and which, as it is reviewed in the Congressional Record, seemed to reach the high-water mark in confusion.

Men who laboriously have read and carefully studied the two proposals now in process of being welded into one by the House and Senate conferees, some of whom have expressed violent distaste for the whole business, are unable to explain or understand many of the more intricate provisions. However, they are agreed upon two or three basic facts. One is that the bill will give the Government a power so complete over all farm operations as to deprive the individual farmer of any freedom of action and render it impossible for him to use his land except as the Government directs.

Ordinarily, such a proposal would be extremely abhorrent to the American farmer. Ordinarily, there would be a revolt against conferring such immense power upon the Government. It is proposed, however, to pay the individual farmer so much money for putting himself under Government control that he will not only acquiesce in the exercise of this authority but like it. The avowed purpose of the Administration is to improve the condition of the farmer by raising the price of farm products through curtailment of production. This, of course, clashes with the present Administration drive against monopolistic price fixing, but it is none the less the fact.

Almost as astonishing as the things put into these bills is the thing left out—to wit, any provision for raising the enormous sums which must be expended. In neither bill is there any method for raising money so much as suggested. That little detail is left up to the Committee on Appropriations, which, up to date, naturally enough has not even considered the matter, it being entirely unknown to anyone what the cost will be. The lowest estimate is half a billion a year, but, it is admitted, it may run as high as a billion and a half. Accepting the lowest estimate, the total for farm subsidies, loans and other activities of the Department of Agriculture for 1938 will be $1,035,000,000, not counting in the normal departmental expenses.

It seems incredible that in the present state of national affairs Congress should enact so drastic and confused a proposal, the expense of which can only be guessed and the effect of which would be not only greatly to enhance the bureaucratic power of the Government but establish a governmental machine of vast potential power, financed by Federal funds. Yet, despite the fact that some of the strongest of the Senatorial friends of the farmer oppose it and a great farm organization like the National Grange is hostile, that—unless there is an awakening such as occurred last year on the court bill—is exactly what is about to happen.

In addition to the Administration, there is back of the bill a very powerful farm and labor lobby. Announcement was made last week by Mr. M. W. Thatcher, of the National Farmers' Union, after conference with the President, that a formal agreement between the farm union and the so-called Labor's Nonpartisan League, which is the C. I. O's political instrument, had been achieved by which each is to support the other's proposals in Congress, thus insuring the enactment of both. This political cooperation between labor and agriculture against "business greed" was the thing the late Professor Tugwell so strongly urged at the time he was high in the White House councils. It is the strategy enthusiastically favored by various Communistic leaders who supported Mr. Roosevelt in the last campaign.

And it is pressure from that kind of combination, added to the White House weight, which will pass the Crop Control bill this month if, as expected, it does pass. It is interesting to note that Dr. Tugwell, original promoter of the farm-labor political combination, has twice visited the White House in the past two weeks. It isn't only the announced agreement but the bill itself which is reminiscent of the professor at his Washington top. It may be that Congress will see the connection. Perhaps the notion that the Tugwellian influence had ceased to exist is just an illusion.

The Bill Nobody Knows

Probably there has not been in legislative history a more awful example of confusion than the Crop Control Bill which has passed the Senate and now goes to conference committee. Eventually it will reach the President—though when and in what form no one can tell.

* * *

It is a bill which satisfies no one, which no one understands and for which there is anything but united demand from the class of citizens it is specially designed to help. Yet, it will pass. Why? Because the Administration wants it. Because, first, the President called an extra session for the purpose of doing something more for the farmer and unless some bill is enacted he will appear futile; second, because a majority of Congress is afraid to vote against any farm bill. So. Congress will shortly enact the pending proposal in a form unacceptable to Secretary Wallace, unacceptable to thousands of farmers, incomprehensible to the people, admittedly full of jokers, incredibly complicated and conferring a governmental power over the food supply of the nation, which is the essense of Nazzism. The bill has been criticized by its sponsors and assailed as dangerous, unworkable and unconstitutional by such firm friends of the farmer as Senator Borah. His speech on the subject is reported to have brought a great many letters of approval from farmers.

* * *

No one can read the Senate record on the subject and feel that the men who discussed the bill understood it. Doubt has been expressed publicly that the President knows what is in it. Certainly it is hard to believe that if he had the leisure to study and digest it he would support it. The sum it may cost the Government annually is deeply shrouded in mystery. Estimates run from half a billion to a billion and a half. No one knows; no one can do more than guess. A few weeks ago Mr. Roosevelt urged that the cost of the new bill be held to half a billion and said that should it go above that amount it would be essential for Congress to raise additional revenue to meet the increased expense. His argument was that the Treasury had no funds to meet an additional drain and that unless the limit he recommended were fixed all budget calculations would be dislocated. The inference was that he would veto the bill if his request were disregarded.

* * *

In face of that clear-cut statement the Senate has voted down—49 to 23—a proposal to fix the limit asked by the President. It did more than that—it not only refused to fix a limit but it refused to put into the hill any provision for raising revenue at all. It seems incredible that a President with the power accredited to Mr. Roosevelt can secure the passage of a bill of this kind and yet be unable to put into it provisions he regards as vital. Even more extraordinary is the fact that the amendment to do the thing the President requested was offered and advocated by his political opponent and a Republican—Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan—and opposed by the President's personal friend, Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, official Administration leader in the Senate, made such through the President's influence. "Dear Alben," as he is often called, voted against the amendment and carried with him enough stalwarts to insure its defeat.

* * *

This indescribably adds to the confusion. Beyond dispute the amendment carried out the expressed wish of the President. The President's leader hardly would oppose the President's wish. Yet he voted against the amendment and took along enough Administration Senators to defeat it. The situation is made the more absurd by the fact that some nineteen Democrats, who are for economy and budget balancing, did not vote at all. If there is a way of reconciling these things with reason, it would be interesting to know it. When the facts are reviewed it is not surprising that average citizens do not comprehend what is happening in Washington and a good many have given up trying.

MT. LAKE PARK

After the holidays things are pretty quiet around the Park. There is one thing, however, we must mention.

On Christmas Eve several people of the community came to us and requested that we go with them and look over the small pine trees planted by the beautification committee this fall. With flash lights we made the rounds, counting eighteen trees which had been either badly singed or burned. It made us a little sick to look at them. They had been such sturdy youngsters.

Upon inquiry we found that during the leaf-burning period these small trees had been allowed to catch fire. Certainly it was not an intentional act upon the part of those burning the leaves. One could see that, because they had, evidently, quickly attempted to salvage the trees as best they could.

That night we thought possibly it might look worse than it really was and that we would wait until daytime to make another survey, which we did.

Well, we were even more sick or "more sicker" in the daylight. However, what is done is done. A number of them, we think, will survive and be none the worse. But others will not. There will be another year when the leaves must be burned and let us hope that more care will be exercised then and no trees lost.

Somehow we know that those men and women who worked so hard to get these trees planted and growing must feel badly and they have our sympathy.

Non-Stop Record Set

Word has been received here from Naval Cadet Wilmer Bowen, son of Mrs. Lewis Purnell, that they had reached Coco Solo, Canal Zone, on their non-stop flight from San Diego, Calif., in record time of 22 hours and 20 minutes. This flight bettered that made in June with 12 planes by 5 hours and 38 minutes. "Without incident," was the report sent out by authorities. The planes, however, were forced to slacken speed over the Nicaraguan jungles because of rains and squalls.

One interesting fact to the public at large was that the Navy had to reveal a "secret." Lieutenant B. V. Clark, navigation officer who piloted the Navy's mass hop did so with a broken leg which was still in a cast the day of the flight. Cadet Bowen expects to spend a short furlough here later on with his mother.

Miss Betty Morgan, of Kingwood, was a Park visitor on Tuesday.

The scores of friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Talson will be sorry to learn of her very serious illness in a Wheeling hospital. Mrs. Talson had undergone a major surgical operation some time ago and was able to be removed to her home in Wheeling. Later it was found necessary to have a second operation performed and she was taken to the hospital a second time. The last reports are to the effect that she is doing as well as can be expected. Mountain Lake Park people wish for her a speedy recovery.

AN UNPLEASANT JOLT

A great many people who are still under the influence of the musical score of "Happy Days Are Here Again," and who refused to believe that there is a real "recession," blaming it on to the "economic royalists" who were seeking to "scare the people," were unpleasantly surprised by the announcement of the General Motors Corporation, just before the first of the year, of the decline in employment. That such a statement could be anticipated has been evident for some time to those who have studied the situation.

The economic situation is no longer one that can be laughed off. Everybody hopes that spring will bring a new and happier story. In the meantime the situation calls not for backbiting and bickering, but for the sound and sane cooperation of all Americans who have the future welfare of their country at heart.

That the New Deal policy of heavy expenditure for priming the pump and putting the government in business has failed after five years of effort is now evident. It seems to be a good time to return to some of the older ideals which we discarded because they belonged to the Horse and Buggy Age. In any program founded on constructive effort it is the duty of every American to cooperate, just as it is his duty to oppose policies which would eventually end in ruinous inflation.

In the meantime, the silliest argument heard is that big business is purposely bringing on the recession to "punish" the New Deal, because of disagreement with its prorgam. Business has no partisan politics and is interested only in results. If the present administration were to give us sound prosperity, business, big and little, would be for this administration. Business never cuts off its nose to spite its face.

SAVING THE FARMER

(From The New York Times)

Whatever happens, we are to have a new farm law, and by all present indications it will be fearfully and wonderfully made. It will subsidize and regiment the farmer on a scale and scope beyond the wildest dreams of AAA. No possible form or bonus or control appears to have been overlooked. The program contemplated by the Senate bill is based on a complicated system of soil conservation, adjustment contracts, benefit payments for both conserving soil and reducing acreage, on marketing quotas, acreage allotments and penalty taxes. It directly controls the five major crops, wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and rice.

The measure rests on an elaborate foundation of economic fallacies. It makes gestures toward restoring the income and price "parities" between "industry" and "agriculture" existing a quarter of a century ago, in spite of the profound changes in the conditions of production that have come since then. It assumes that there is a fixed, unchanging "normal" supply for each crop. Above all, it attempts to put into practice the principle of scarcity; it tries to protect the farmer's prices by preventing the total crop from going above a certain amount in any one year. It will, in addition, force the good farmer on good land to contract his acreage as much as the inefficient farmer on poor land, thus tending to keep average costs of production high. Its so-called "ever-normal granary" provisions will, in effect, oblige the Government to assume the risks hitherto carried by professional speculators. All experience shows that when Governments carry stocks of this sort their amount and their disposal are determined far more by political than by economic forces.

It is argued in favor of the measure that it will help business by increasing the farmer's purchasing power. This is merely another fallacy. In so far as it raises prices of farm products by bringing about shortages (or preventing "surpluses"), it cannot increase the total volume of spending. The city worker who has to pay higher prices for rice or pork has that much less to spend on hats or housing. If the farmer receives subsidies out of the proceeds of process taxes, the same principle applies. In so far as the Farm Bill increases the total burden of taxation it not only reduces the purchasing power of the taxpayers but it places obstacles in the way of full production. The obstacles to production created by the undistributed profits and capital gains levies are examples; neither of these taxes would be as severe as they are if it were not for the pressure of revenues. Yet the Senate Farm Bill puts no limit on the amount of new spending or losses into which it may force the Government.

Will the new farm legislation, in the long run, help even the farmer? There are serious reasons for thinking that it will do him more harm than good. In the case of cotton, for example, a recent article in the London Economist (issue of Nov. 27) expresses what is now probably the judgment of disinterested authorities everywhere:

> The current surfeit of cotton is due partly to the American Government's price-raising measures, which stimulated the extension of cultivation in other countries. * * Thus the American cotton-control scheme has ended in failure, like the Stevenson rubber-restriction scheme, which sustained prices for a time, but did not prevent their ultimate collapse, because it was not world-wide in its application. Thus the last state of the world's cotton growers is worse than the first. Moreover, just as the earlier rubber scheme merely led to a geographical redistribution of output to the disadvantage of Malaya and Ceylon, the American cotton-control scheme reduced the United States' share of world production from about 55 per cent in 1934-35 to an average of some 40 per cent in 1936-37. * * The task of Congress seems wholly unenviable. Even if the acreage under cotton in the United States is severely reduced next year, a small American crop would scarcely make much impression upon the existing surplus; for the area under cotton in the United States now forms only about one-third of the cotton acreage in the world as a whole.

It remains to be said that the Farm Bill passed by the House is in nearly every respect less objectionable than that passed by the Senate. It would involve much less regimentation of the farmer and would not threaten a further unbalancing of the Federal budget to anything like the same extent. One can only hope that the bill that emerges from conference will more nearly resemble the House than the Senate measure.

Holiday Aftermath

Unrest Which Is Spreading Throughout The Nation Is Being Reflected Right Here In Garrett County, According To This Correspondent.

To the Editor of The Republican.

The majority of our citizens are subject to frequent disgruntled moods of an uneasy nature. They are sullen, dissatisfied, disgusted and rancorous toward the obnoxious methods introduced to bring back the prosperity that has become a phantom, a dream. They are unconsciously cultivating pessimistic ideas, thinking only of the dark side of life.

WPA men complain because they are forced to ride steel truck beds for ten, fifteen and even twenty-five miles a day in below-zero weather. Can you blame them?

I am personally acquainted with men who support nine children, a wife and themselves on $33.00 per month—thirty-six dollars a year for each member of the family, provided he works every day. It means scarcely ten cents a day to feed and clothe himself and his family! Incredible, but true. He must do it or starve and go cold.

Farmers, too, are awaiting the final set-up of the new farm bill, wondering just what amount of grain the Secretary of Agriculture will permit them to raise. They fear dictatorship. They are confused and bewildered by the rumors concerning the new incomprehensible, stream-line, air-flow farm bill. They ponder over the fact that the time may come when they can't say, "I'm running this farm; it belongs to me; I'm paying the taxes on it."

Taxes!

It's here a tax; there a tax; everywhere a tax, tax. Old McDonald had a farm—or, did he? No, I guess it was Uncle Sam's. Yes, he had a lien against it.

The Western farmers are really in a more puzzling predicament, though, for they are compelled to contend with dust storms, grasshoppers and worse yet, taxes.

United States citizens engaged in industrial work, miners, automobile workers, all sorts of factory workers—they're all discontented, or at least the greater part of them.

They strike and then sit right down and proceed to devise new plans, effective immediately upon the expiration of the time they have agreed to work, for a certain hour and wage scale.

And so it goes on and on. I suppose the only sure cure for this contagious, disconcerted condition affecting our citizens is for each one to be able to find his way into a white-collar job as some sort of WPA official where an office will be furnished with steam heat, a stenographer, and a nice polished desk to park his feet on.

Health Department Gives Estimate of Maryland's Population

The estimated population of Maryland, according to the State Department of Health, is 1,777,905, showing an increase of some 16,000 over January, 1937.

The estimate was prepared by the Bureau of Vital Statistics under the direction of Dr. A. W. Hedrich, chief of that bureau, in accordance with accepted statistical procedure, by assuming that the annual increase since the United States Census of 1930 was the same as that between 1920 and 1936.

Until the next Federal census is taken, an estimates of population will be subject to change, but it was stated that rough estimates are better for some purposes than none.

The estimate gives Garrett county a population of 20,093, an increase of 22 over the previous period. Allegany's population was estimated at 86,471. The figures for Baltimore City were 862,059, with the total figures for the counties of Maryland 915,846.

GENERAL JONES' RAID OF 1863

Through Garrett County [PART ONE]

By CAPT. CHARLES E. HOYE

During the War Between the States, 1861-1865, no battles were fought in what is now Garrett County, Maryland, but twice the Confederate troops invaded this territory.

The burning of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad shops at Piedmont, and the attempt to destroy the railroad bridge crossing the Potomac River at Bloomington, in Garrett county, by McNeill's Rangers on May 6, 1864, was recently described by Lenora W. Wood in The Republican.

The following account of the raid through Western Virginia and Garrett county, Maryland, in 1863, has been compiled chiefly from the official report of General William E. Jones, commanding the Confederate forces engaged.

The primary object of the Confederates in this raid was the destruction of bridges and otherwise crippling of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which was of great importance to the Federal Army in the transportation of troops and supplies.

In April, 1863, General Jones, with his whole available force, marched from his camp at Lacy Spring, Rockingham county, Va., to Moorefield, W. Va. When the expedition reached the South Branch, heavy rains had raised the waters of that stream so that a detour of twenty-five miles by Petersburg was necessary. Sending his infantry and artillery back to the Valley, General Jones advanced rapidly with cavalry only toward Oakland and Rowlesburg. Greenland Gap, near Petersburg, was occupied by Federal troops. The Confederates charged them, and, after a spirited resistance, the Federals surrendered. Next morning the Confederates reached the Northwestern Turnpike (now U. S. Route 50) at Mt. Storm, and rode west on that road, crossing the North Branch of the Potomac River at Gormania, after which they burned the turnpike bridge at that place.

Colonel A. W. Harman was sent thru Ryan's Glade from Gormania to Oakland with the Twelfth Virginia cavalry, Brown's Maryland battalion of cavalry and John H. McNeill's company of Partisan Rangers. Captain E. H. McDonald, with a squadron of the Eleventh Virginia cavalry, crossed the river at Kitzmiller and marched to Altamont, where he destroyed some railroad property, then hurried toward Oakland.

Colonel Harman's Report

"On the night of the 26th (April) I moved in the direction of Oakland and reached Oakland at 11:00 a. m.; surprised and captured a company of 57 men, with two commissioned officers, and paroled them. Destroyed a railroad bridge east of town and the railroad and turnpike bridges over the Youghiogheny River; also a train of cars at Cranberry Summit (now Terra Alta). I captured the guard (15 men) and paroled them with 20 citizens. From here I moved to Kingwood and Morgantown, which places I took without opposition. The suspension bridge over Cheat River was destroyed on the turnpike."

General Jones wrote, that, but for the delay at Greenland Gap his troops would have captured a train at Oakland filled mostly with Union officers.

From the North Branch at Gormania General Jones marched west over the Northwestern Turnpike with his main force to Cheat River, arriving there about 2:00 p. m., Sunday, April 26. Having captured the pickets and learning there was a garrison of only 300 men at Rowlesburg, troops of the 6th, 7th and 11th Virginia Cavalry attacked the town and railroad bridges, while Jones remained at the turnpike bridge across Cheat River. Both attacks failed.

Finding his command without forage for his horses after thirty-six hours of forced marching, General Jones abandoned the attempt to capture Rowlesburg, and, after a few hours of night marching found a scanty supply of forage and went into camp.

Next morning, moving on Evansville, corn was secured for the horses and meat rations for the men. Late in the evening of April 27th a courier brought the information that Lieut. C. H. Vandiver and a party of eight men had captured Independence and a home guard of 20 men. A force was thrown at once into Independence and the two-span bridge near that place destroyed. The whole command crossed the railroad about dark, going north, and finding forage about midnight, went into camp. At daylight, Col. Harman arrived at the camp, "bringing the first tidings of his and McDonald's success at Oakland and Altamont."

On April 28th the whole command marched on Morgantown, arriving at about noon. Here the army rested until dark, when the line of march was taken for Fairmont, camping from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m. At Fairmont the Confederates attacked from both sides of the river and after a moderate resistance 260 Federal soldiers surrendered. Scarcely were the prisoners' arms stacked before a train loaded with Federal artillery and infantry from Grafton arrived, attacked the Confederates and tried to recover the railroad bridge. They were driven back by the Rebels. The Confederates then proceeded to destroy the magnificent, three-span iron bridge over the Monongahela, which tumbled into the river soon after dark.

Leaving their wounded in the hands of friends in Fairmont, the Confederates marched toward Clarkshurg, but learning that a strong Federal garrison was there, they captured Bridgeport, five miles east, and the next day, gathering horses and cattle on the way, arrived at Philippi, and on May 2nd joined General Imboden at Buckhannon. From there Imboden marched south, while Jones and his hard-riding cavalry moved against the Northwestern Railroad toward Parkersburg.

They captured Cairo and destroyed three bridges, ruined the oil plant at Oilton, then rejoined General Imboden's command at Summersville, after which they marched by easy stages "homeward" to the Valley of Virginia.

In closing his report headed "Near Harrisonburg, Va., May 26, 1863, to General Robert E. Lee, General Jones summarizes the results of his raid as follows:

"In thirty days we marched nearly 700 miles; we killed from 25 to 30 of the enemy; wounded probably three times as many; captured nearly 700 prisoners, 2 trains of cars; burned 16 railroad bridges and one tunnel; 150,000 barrels of oil, many engines and a large number of boats, tanks and barrels; bringing home with us about 1,000 cattle and probably 1,200 horses. Our entire loss was ten killed and 42 wounded; the missing not exceeding fifteen.

"My orders were in all cases to respect private property, irrespective of the politics and part taken in the war by the owners. Horses and supplies were to be taken indiscriminately. One or two stores were plundered.."

General Lee's Endorsement

In his endorsement on Jones' report, General Lee wrote:

"The expedition under General Jones appears to have been conducted with commendable skill and vigor, and was productive of beneficial results. The injury inflicted on the enemy was serious, and he will doubtless be induced to keep troops to guard the railroad who might be otherwise employed against us. General Jones displayed sagacity and boldness in his plans, and was well supported by the courage and fortitude of his officers and men."

Fort Pendleton Built

We note here that after Jones' raid, Oakland was again garrisoned by Federal soldiers and Fort Pendleton was built. This fort was on a hill commanding the bridge across the North Branch of the Potomac River at Gormania and the important Northwestern Turnpike.

The Rebels At Altamont

Colonel Lomax, of the 11th Virginia Cavalry, in his report says:

"We reached the top of the Allegheny, where Captains McDonald and Dangerfield were detached with their companies. This squadron proceeded on the Northwestern Road in the direction of New Creek Depot (Keyser) and struck the B. & O. railroad at Wilson's Station, 15 miles west of Piedmont, cutting the telegraph wires at this point. They followed the railroad in the direction of Oakland, destroying the railroad in several places and burning some small bridges and a water station. At Altamont they captured an engine and train, which, in order to destroy it, was steamed up, and, through mistake on the part of one of the men, was started up the road, but was subsequently recaptured by Colonel Harman."

We understand this squadron crossed the North Branch at Kitzmiller and marched thence to Wilson's.

Traveling west toward Oakland, the rebels stopped at the farm of Mrs. Elizabeth Friend and looked in the barn, but found only one horse with a sore back, so they left the horse and rode on to the Blackburn farm where Mrs. Friend's mare was taken from a pasture field. A colt belonging to Mrs. Friend's son, Elijah Hoye, was left in the field. Elijah Hoye, now 91 years of age, says he saw about 25 mounted rebels pass his mother's farm near Altamont.

Incidents of Jones' Raid

We have been unable to find any official Federal report of this raid and, in truth, there appears to have been little of credit to the Union officers to report outside of the gallant defense of Greenland Gap by Captain Wallace and the successful resistance at Rowlesburg.

Oakland was at that time garrisoned by Co. "O", of the 6th West Virginia, a Preston county company, commanded by Captain Godwin, of Kingwood. The Federals were completely surprised and offered no resistance. Two soldiers of Co. "O" were Cornelius Johnson and Solomon Sines, both of whom later resided at Sang Run.

Johnson was on guard at the Totten farm on the road leading south from Oakland, over which Captain Harman led his men into town. Johnson fired at the rebels, then ran through the field toward town, but a trooper jumped his horse over the fence, caught Johnson and brought him into town on his horse, a prisoner.

As the Confederate advance party came into town it met Peter Helbig, the baker, near his house across the Little Yough. A soldier ordered Helbig to halt, but the baker—rather recklessly—threw a handful of gravel into the trooper's face, then ran into the bakeshop by his house and hid himself in the oven.

The Confederates rode into Oakland at 11:00 a. m., Sunday, April 26th. The previous evening they had been delayed by the Federal resistance at Greenland Gap. Why did no one ride ahead of them to Oakland and warn the Federal garrison? We do not know.

When the enemy arrived at Oakland the Federals are said to have been attending church services, which then began at 10:00 a. m. Others were hunting groundhogs. The picket, Private Johnson, appears to have fired the only shot. The Rebels quietly but swiftly rounded up 57 men and the two officers of Co. "O" at the houses in which they were quartered or where they were lounging on the streets.

There was some hurried hiding of money or other valuables by the people of the town, but private residences were not molested. Church services were not interrupted, but when the worshippers came out they found the town in possession of Col. Harman's men. Considering the surprise and the large number of the enemy, the Federal soldiers cannot be blamed for making no resistance.

Oakland Station Seized

One of the first points in Oakland seized by the Confederates was the railroad station and the telegraph office, which was immediately put out of commission. A squadron of troops hurried down the railroad to the bridge across the Youghiogheny where it surprised and captured the guard, then burned the bridge. Solomon Sines, one of the bridge guards, said that he and a companion were off duty but in sight of the bridge. When they saw the rebels ride up, unable to reach their muskets, they hastily "went fishing" down the river and were not captured.

Once secure in the town, the Confederates seized forage for their animals, took food for themselves from hotels and stores, ate their dinner and rested awhile.

George D. White, then a boy of 14 years, saw the Rebels come into town. His father operated the Rowan White Hotel on Second street where the Nally building is now located. While the uninvited guests were helping themselves to the food in the hotel, Mrs. White, his mother, saw her roan mare among the horses tied outside. The marauders had taken the animal from the Frazee farm, near Table Rock. Mrs. White pleaded for her horse and an officer ordered it returned to her, but when the column marched away the roan mare was taken along.

Before leaving town the Federal muskets were destroyed and the prisoners were paroled, i. e., they were left in Oakland after signing a pledge not to serve again during the war until regularly exchanged for Confederate prisoners.

Leave Oakland Happy

Refreshed and happy over their easy victory, Colonel Harman and his men soon marched to Terra Alta. The road then went west on Liberty street and crossed the Little Yough just below town. The bridge there they burned after crossing. Capt. McDonald's squadron appears to have arrived from Altamont, and to have joined Harman before he left Oakland.

Newspaper Report Inaccurate

In 1863 Oakland had no newspaper and the accounts of Jones' raid, published in the Baltimore papers, are inaccurate and incomplete. The Baltimore Sun of May 2 said: "Rev. R. V. Dodge, of Wheeling, captured at Oakland by the rebels, arrived yesterday morning; says he was courteously treated by the rebels though subjected to examination and pretty closely questioned. They informed him that their forces at Oakland were 800; that 1,500 had gone to Rowlesburg and that their entire cavalry force was 3,000 strong."

On May 4th, the Sun said: "The Confederates have retired from the line of the B. & O.; President Garrett is pushing repairs rapidly. The road is intact to Fairmont, bridges and other injuries having been repaired."

Daniel E. Offutt's saw mill on the Yough River above the railroad bridge soon provided timbers for this and other bridges which had been destroyed.

Many interesting stories of this Sunday raid by the Confederates thru our county are told by old residents who were young people seventy-four years ago.

The Groundhog Company

The Federal garrison, Co. "O", was not popular in the Oakland neighborhood, due in part to its apparent lack of vigilance and spirit when Col. Harman and his troopers came to town.

The people joking referred to it as "The Groundhog Company." Being from Preston county, the men composing the unit were naturally good hunters of this modest animal and fond of its meat, but it was the Saucer incident that appears to have been responsible for the nickname.

Before the capture of Oakland, so the story goes, there were in Co. "O", then stationed in the town, Private Asbury (Dad) McCrobie and Lieutenant Saucer. McCrobie was a large, good natured soldier, and Lieut. Saucer had a habit of "picking" on him. One day Saucer, McCrobie and others were hunting groundhogs. The lieutenant made some insulting remark or proposal and McCrobie struck him on the head with a mattock he was carrying .

Lieutenant Saucer died from the effects of the terrific blow. McCrobie was tried by a court martial, but, in view of the provocation, he was not punished.

The Browning Mare "Baldy"

Abel Browning, who resides on the Jacob Baker farm north of Oakland, which, in 1863, was owned by his father, John L. Browning, states that a small party of Jones' raiders, apparently well acquainted with the county, came as far north as Deep Creek.

They commandeered two horses from Samuel Specht's saw mill on Cherry Creek; two from Patrick Hamill and three from the Browning farm. Two of the party spent Sunday night at Mr. Browning's house. Next morning, while they were eating breakfast his daughter, Maria Louise, quietly went out, mounted her white-faced mare, "Baldy," and rode her to a field on Roman Nose Mountain, where the horse and girl remained hidden until evening, long after their guests had departed from the Browning farm.

An Editorial

From The Baltimore Sun of Monday, January 3, 1938.

There is one fact which deserves the serious thought of Congress as it meets today in regular session. This is the fact that Mr. Roosevelt confidently undertook to abolish depressions and now, after five years of immense power, he has a depression on his hands.

It is not a subject for gloating. It is not a justification for superficial political gibes. Other Presidents have promised prosperity. Other Presidents, as we all know, have seen depressions descend quickly and disastrously. But the fact remains that Mr. Roosevelt was unprecedentedly authoritative in undertaking to dispose of depressions once and for all, and yet he has on his hands a depression that, in some aspects, is of marked violence.

In explanation, one may point to the collapse of a boom stock market. But we were to have been protected against such evils. One may point to excess inventories. But presumably that familiar danger was not hidden from the eyes of those who took our destinies into their hands. One may point, as the New Dealers do, to the modest curtailment of public spending. But Mr. Roosevelt, in his planning, forecast decrease in spending.

Varied explanations may be offered and all will hope that those which lay stress upon temporary factors will prove to be sound. Still we are left with the fact that Mr. Roosevelt confidently undertook to abolish depressions and failed.

In these circumstances it seems to The Sun that it is in order for Congress (and for the public) to revert to American practices and to stand Mr. Roosevelt's Administration up and examine it, respectfully but without awe. That has been the practice when other Presidents have promised prosperity and have had their promises destroyed by depressions. It is not unreasonable in the case of the President who has been bolder in promises than any of his predecessors.

If such an examination be made of this Administration one primary and fundamental question must be: What is the Administration's economic faith? What does it believe? Soon or late that question must be answered by Government. You can live under compatitive capitalism. You can live under monopolistic capitalism, although you are likely to find yourself headed into state socialism or state capitalism. You can live under either of the latter twins, which delight to make ideological faces at each other. You can live under variations. One or another may be the better for a given nation. But you are going to wobble badly if you do not know which of these systems you live under and wish to live under. And that fact accounts—in addition to all special factors such as stock-market collapses and excess inventories— for much of the present trouble. There has been extraordinary confusion about fundamentals.

For example, Mr. Roosevelt recently talked about the plight of the railroads and their future. He was against socialization of the railroads, i. e., public ownership. He was described as regarding socialization of the railroads as abhorrent. But Mr. Roosevelt is understood to regard socialization of power companies as a consummation devoutly to be wished. Certainly some of his favored subordinates regard the setting up of a socialized power system in the Tennessee Valley, to be used as a yardstick against the privately owned companies, as merely a boy's job and a preliminary to nation-wide socialization. Why should socialization of a transport utility be abhorrent and socialization of a power utility be desirable? Is Mr. Roosevelt clear in his mind?

When there has not been confusion as between ideas of state socialism and capitalism, there often has been confusion between the ideas of competitive capitalism and monopolistic capitalism.

Mr. Roosevelt came into office pledged to support of the historic system of competitive capitalism. Before the first spring had passed into summer he was the flaming evangel of the colossal and unprecedented system of monopolistic capitalism that went under the name of NRA. Later, important subordinates have come full circle and are preaching the anti-monopolism to which the President was pledged in the 1932 platform. And, having discovered that monopolies are evil, these furious converts are undertaking to dispose of them as peremptorily as, in the great days of 1933, depressions were to be banned once and for all. Not for these new zealots the patient study and the patient approach that Secretary Hull has wisely given to the related evil of excessive protectionism.

Behind all such oscillations and circlings of the Administration proper there has been in Washington a veritable welter of psuedo-intellectualism and semi-revolutionism. This has been the product of the appearance, relay after relay, of the horde of makers-over whom the New Deal imported. Many of these ladies and gentlemen have been stentorianly vocal on Mr. Roosevelt's mission to "condition" and to "modify" capitalism. The principle upon which this service should be performed has been left magnificently indefinite, but the particular proposal of the particular lady or gentleman at the particular time was always an essential part of the business. And for the future, the vision often has been of a society freed of the profit motive—except the farmer, whose profits were to be guaranteed.

The clamor from such people has been so loud—and at times their authority so Olympian—that in 1936 many were ashamed to say that they stood for competitive capitalism, the system which has given our people more comforts and more opportunities than ever were known by another people on this earth. Those who stood for the system of competitive capitalism which is now being discovered in uproarious eloquence by Mr. Roosevelt's right and left bowers were, in 1936, champions of the "law of the jungle".

The consequence of all this confusion in the mind of the President, in the minds of the Cabinet (except Mr. Hull, who has a reasoned body of doctrine and has held to it in storm and stress) and in the minds of the kaleidoscopic procession of Brain Trusters can be stated very simply. They have done everything imaginable except to protect the motive power of our economy, which is the thing that is chiefly important.

In this country the motive power has been private initiative going out into trade, into industry, and into agriculture and seeking to take things, put them into better form and dispose of them at a profit. Our faith has been that in this way we reanized an energetic, resourceful, purposeful exchange of commodities and services. The results have not been perfect and they have not been uniformly good even on a far less than perfect plane. But the results have been better than other peoples have known, and today few informed persons would exchange our system for the system of such collectivist nations as Russia, Germany and Italy. It still is necessary for us to maintain laws to restrict immigration to our shores.

If we are to have vigorous natural prosperity in this country we must guard and preserve this motive power of private initiative, or must find a substitute. Mr. Roosevelt's better informed and more consistent critics have argued from 1933 onward that we should continue to rely on private initiative. Mr. Roosevelt's spokesmen now say the same thing. That makes it unanimous, at the moment, save the fringe of invincible Communists and Fascists. Nevertheless, the Administration has bedeviled private initiative in a hundred different ways, and has thought that private initiative should be thankfully content and confident if a few could borrow money from the Government in emergencies.

Beginning with the headlong gold manipulation of 1933 (after an effort you may recall Professors Warren and Pearson) and with the NRA monstrosity for overnight cartelization of all industry and trade and the consequent control of production and prices—beginning with that, there have been literally scores of legislative and administrative schemes for the artificial movement of wages, costs, and prices in the major departments of the national economy. It is not necessary to name these schemes to impose the Government's variable will. They are known to all, from 1933 manipulation of wages, costs, and prices down to the unstudied wages and hours bill which is pending in Congress and to the policy, now up for revision, of telling each incorporated company's directors how much of their earnings to distribute and how much to place in reserves.

These meddlesome schemes have nothing to do with reform. The Sun, for its part, has had no patience with the cry to put off reform until recovery was accomplished. It has seemed to us that genuine reform must be consistent with recovery.

Correction of abuses in stock exchanges and in security issues; correction of holding company evils; safeguards against corrupt trade practices (which are not to be confused with underselling, formerly called "chiseling" by this Administration); protection of the rights of labor (which is not to be confused with the grant of special privileges); establishment of unemployment insurance and old-age pensions—such are not the things that slow down the business man. The business man can adjust himself now, as in the past, to broad, general, well-defined rules. And, as in the past, he can carry extra loads of a legitimate character if given stable terms of operation, precisely as an individual may give extra help to family or friends if left free to perform his job and collect his salary.

It is the constant meddling from Washington with what is supposed to be a free competitive economy, the constant interference with the free initiative which provides the motive power of our economy, that bedevils the business man and that has put him into the state of uncertainty which is best illustrated by the completely stagnant market for capital. It is the constant manipulation of costs and prices in all sorts of legislative and administrative ways that causes the man who has to guard his own solvency to transact business on a short-term basis, and to turn away from long-term commitments. It is constant projection of Government as a "partner" into the common factors of his business that sends shivers down the spine of the average business man who has as much association with Mr. Morgan and the "sixty families" as he ever had with the former Emperor of Abyssinia.

This is a problem to which Congress should give its attention as it assembles today in the midst of a depression which Mr. Roosevelt firmly forbade ever to appear again in this country. Is the basic system of this country a free, competitive economy? If it is, then it is vitally necessary to have more than a sudden, spasmodic shouting about the too long tolerated, too recently nurtured, evil of monopolism.

It is necessary to make this Administration understand that a free economy is a free economy, as against private monopolists, of course, but also against public busybodies and meddlers. Competitive capitalism is not something to be manipulated by every plausible theorist who temporarily captures the Presidential ear.

31,536,000

That's the number of seconds you will have at your disposal in 1938—if you live the year out.

Of course if you don't expect to live the year out you may not care to read farther.

But most of us believe enough in tomorrow that we plan for it and most of us believe in all the tomorrows of 1938 sufficiently to plan for them.

So in 1938 you will have 31,536,000 chances to make up your mind to get going in a big way, a sound and sensible way.

Whatever business plan you are going to promote, printing of style and character in direct-by-mail or newspaper advertising will help you.

That's where we hope to be able to work along with you. We have seen many types of printing fail to help. We also know a few that will.

Our experience is yours for the asking.

Famous Mallet of B. & O. R. R. Is Being Scrapped

The one-time pride of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the most famous of all locomotives is being reduced to scrap metal in the railroad shops at Cumberland.

It is No. 7000, originally known as No. 2400, the pioneer Mallet engine that in 1901 was the longest and most powerful locomotive in the world.

When first constructed, it was placed on exhibition at many points on the B. & O. system and also made a spectacular appearance at the Buffalo, N. Y., World's Fair in 1901. "Old Maud," as the locomotive was called by many railroad men, got the honor of having the first number in the seven thousand series by which Mallets were distinguished.

In recent years the locomotive has become outmoded by the newer, faster and more powerful steam or deisel-powered pullers, and it has been consigned to the scrap heap. It made its debut in Cumberland thirty-three years ago this coming spring.

MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY

By REV. EDGAR CORDELL POWERS,
Executive Secretary

Two Ways of Selling The Bible

Perhaps no article dealing with the sale of the Holy Scriptures has aroused a greater storm of protest than the one published in the January issue of The Readers' Digest, entitled: "High Pressure in the Bible Belt." The reason for the almost universal revulsion of feeling occasioned by this article may be found in the shock which all right thinking people experienced in being brought face to face with the crass materialism of certain distributors of the Bible, and the undisguised profit motive behind their efforts to capitalize on the fact that the Bible is still the world's best seller.

Whether such methods are generally practiced by commerical publishers is not now the question. Nor is there anything unjust or immoral in selling the Scriptures at prices which will not only defray the cost of publication, but also afford a fair percentage of profit for the dealer who must live while distributing the Word of God. However, to reduce the whole business of Bible distribution to a plane where trickery and chicanery are employed to hornswoggle earnest and simple-minded people into making purchases beyond their means, either as to quantity or quality, is nothing short of profanity and wickedness.

The great Bible Societies do not operate for purposes of profit and fix their prices at the lowest figure commensurate with the necessary expense involved in publication and distribution. The colporteus employed for missionary visitation in homes of city or countryside make their approach with but one great purpose, namely, to supply Bibles, Testaments or Portions to Bibleless homes, and to individuals who do not possess them. The colporteur rarely if ever makes his expenses in such work, but must of necessity be supported as all other missionaries are, either directly by the Society or by funds supplied by some consecrated individual or group of individuals, who desire to see the Scriptures spread among the people and read by them.

For instance, in 1935, a colporteur of the American Bible Society traveled 13,400 miles, chifly in one county, and sold—in some instances donating—1,742 Bibles, 1, 984 Testaments and 17,484 Gospels and other portions. But this colporteur was an entirely different type of agent from those described in the Digest article. He is typical of hundreds of men who, representing the American Bible Society and its auxiliary societies scattered over the country, are not interested in a "dotted line," but are missionaries eager to bear witness to what the Bible has done for them and for others and concerned that no man shall miss the chance to find guidance and hope in the Supreme Book of mankind. The American Bible Society's Scriptures are for the most part well made, readable, but inexpensive books. They contain no explanatory notes. They are sold at cost and often below. Thousands of them are given away to those who suffer from disasters such as fires, floods and earthquakes. The Bible Society colporteur's task is a missionary task, not a commercial one. The American Bible Society was organized under the conviction that the Bible, unlike any other Book, was a Book that should become the possession of every person and that therefore no purpose of profit should attend its distribution. Its representatives labor with a single purpose, that of spreading the knowledge of salvation to the ends of the earth.

STATE A DELIGHTFUL PLACE SAYS NICE IN BROADCAST

Executive Asserts Our Citizens Should Be Thankful They Live In Maryland

ADDRESS FRIDAY NIGHT

Governor Nice, on Friday evening, wished for the citizens of the State he heads a "happy, a prosperous and a profitable New Year."

Speaking over the air, on behalf of Mrs. Nice as well as himself, he summed up 1937 as a year in which "Maryland has continued to be, as always, a delightful place in which to live.

"We have been free from major devastating calamity," he continued; "our fields have borne fair fruit; our industries and our commerce have been free from serious interruption; your State Government is in excellent condition and your laws are being administered by your public servants honestly and intelligently.

State's Credit Is High

"Maryland's credit in the financial world is at the highest point achieved in years; its obligations are selling on the market at a premium challenging the admiration of other Commonwealths; the sound condition of the State's financing is eloquently reflected in the fact that at the end of November the State treasury had a surplus of $4,914,931.12.

"As we survey the world-wide scene and find so many people miserable, destitute and suffering by reasons of wars, declared and undeclared, bringing wide-flung devastation and havoc in many fair lands, we should go on our knees tonight and thank the Almighty that we live in Maryland and that Maryland is one of these United States whose great mission in the world has been and still is peace rather than war, contentment rather than conquest and the worship of a God of love rather than the raging and bloody gods of hattle.

"Onward To Better Things"

"Looking fodward into the year that dawns tomorrow, may I express the hope that we shall go onward to better things, upward to higher standards of thought and life, and that God, in His wisdom, may grant us the share of His hounty that we may deserve.

"May our striving to obey His will merit for us a large and bountiful blessing in the year to come. May the blank page upon which we begin tomorrow to write the events of another year he made a record of success and achievement which we may survey a year hence with satisfaction and thanksgiving."

Governor and Mrs. Nice observed the age-old State tradition of receiving the officers of the Maryland National Guard and Naval Militia and the general public at Government House on Saturday.

Local History Transpiring In Garrett County During The War Between The States

There was printed in The Republican last Thursday Part One of an historical article written by Capt. Charles E. Hoye, of Oakland, dealing with the raid made by the Confederate General Jones through the Oakland section of Garrett county during the Civil War.

Part Two of the article appears today, which closes the interesting as well as informative story.

Part One of the article was quite well received by readers of The Republican, and while Part Two deals more with occurrences happening over in our neighboring county of Preston, in West Virginia, when the Confederates crossed the line into the adjacent State, interest in the doings of the men composing the raiding party remains.

Being of such local character and intended to give the present generation a record of events happening three-quarters of a century ago, County Superintendent Franklin E. Rathbun has placed an order with The Republican for a large number of reprints of the article, which will be off the press late during the present week. The printing will be done on six by nine inch pages and will be bound in pamphlet form for distribution among students in the various high schools of the county.

Other articles dealing with local history are now in course of preparation by Captain Hoye and these will be published in The Republican in due time.

A special meeting of the Mayor and Council was held last evening. The C. & P. Telephone Company had asked permission to erect a telephone pole on Green street in front of the Helbig Mill and on Mr. Helbig's property. Council stated it had no jurisdiction over private property and that permission for the erection of the pole must be obtained from the owner of the land in question.

To Complete Deer Park-Mountain Lake Park Highway

The State Roads Commission is advertising for bids in today's issue of The Republican for the construction of 2.16 miles of hard surface highway on the Deer Park-Mountain Lake Park road.

The road has been completed for practically half the distance between the two points for more than two years. The extension of the road for the distance advertised will complete the highway to the Sand Flat-Deer Park road just north of Deer Park, thus giving the people of that community easy access to Oakland and will cut the distance now traveled by motorists desiring to go from Oakland to Deer Park and points beyond during wet and stormy weather some ten miles or more.

HAS FIRST RIDE IN AUTO AT AGE OF THIRTY-ONE

Garrett Countian Never on Train And Is Puzzled By Electricity

Although thirty-one years old, "Buck" Broadwater's first automobile ride was on Friday when Garrett county officers took him from his mountain home above Bond, on the Seventeen-Mile grade, and brought him to Oakland. Relief workers, health nurses and neighbors had reported him as undernourished, more or less mentally undeveloped and not properly cared for in the primitive home where he resided with his father and two brothers. He will be examined some day this week to determine on his commitment to an institution of the State where he will receive adequate care and treatment.

The young man recalls with enthusiasm a trip he made to Piedmont when a youngster, the farthest he had ever traveled from home. He had seen Baltimore and Ohio Railroad trains occasionally on the Seventeen-Mile grade, but had never traveled by rail.

He soon adapted himself to automobile travel, officers said. When shown an electric light in the sheriff's office and told to "put it out," he blew at it as he would have done to extinguish an oil lamp or candle in his home. He was much puzzled at his inability to affect the light until shown the swith that controlled everything.

State's Attorney Neil Fraley, following an assertion by Broadwater that "I'm too dumb to know much," remarked that he must be a Democrat in that case. The mountaineer said he wasn't a Democrat but was "too dumb" to remember the name of his political party. When a Democrat present suggested that he must certainly be a Republican, Broadwater dumbfounded the Garrett Republicans by saying:

"That's it; that's what I am—a Republican."

Card Party Planned For Church Home and Infirmary Benefit

To help raise its share of the $500,000 campaign fund which the Church Home and Infirmary of Baltimore is sponsoring, beginning next week St. Matthew's Parish in Oakland is planning to hold a card party in the church Parish House, Center and Second streets, on Friday, January 21, at 8 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend. Bridge, five hundred and flinch will be played.

Sponsors of the card party for this worthy charitable institution are the local physicians and their wives: Dr. and Mrs. E. I. Baumgartner, Dr. and Mrs. N. I. Broadwater, Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Hinebaugh and Dr. and Mrs. H. W. McComas. The committee on arrangements is headed by Robert W. Sheckells and includes the following ladies and gentlemen: Mrs. Joseph Browning, Mrs. Charles Butler, Mrs. Dora Coddington, Miss Martha Gonder, Mrs. William Murphy, Miss Nelle Nethken, Mrs. R. W. Sheckells, Mrs. Albert Thrasher, Harley Dawson, Donald Davis and William Murphy.

The Church Home and Infirmary is one of the oldest hospitals in Baltimore, with an eighty-year record of unfailing service. Since the founding of this hospital in the year 1858 only one appeal for public aid has been made. Should the present campaign meet with success, it will mean that the institution will be established on a stable financial basis. The hospital ministers to people of all groups and faiths in the City of Baltimore and in the State of Maryland. Many from this county have received treatment there in the past and of these some were cared for free of charge.

LOOK AFTER OUR YOUTH

AN EDITORIAL

The Boy Scout Troop Committees and Court of Honor, in writing a letter to the Mayor and Council this week pointing out the responsibility of its members and other citizens of town, toward our youth, have struck a vibrant note. This is a subject that has been on the minds of many for months and even years.

Truly, members of the Town Council, as representatives of the citizens here, have a responsibility to our youth. That responsibility includes thinking of their welfare, providing places of recreation and activities that will tend to develop character.

At present there is a room above the Council room in the City Hall that is used by every Tom, Dick, and Harry and every organization. The scouts use it, the band, American Legion, the State Employment Service, and others use it.

The band boys and the scouts get called down every now and then and are reprimanded for making too much noise. This is perfectly true, but anyone who knows boys knows that to keep them still for very long would require a miracle. The second floor of any building is not an ideal place for boys to play games, but it is the only spot available now.

What the scout leader organizations suggest, and what The Republican also earnestly urges is a united interest and some definite action in the not too distant future, toward the erection of a community building—one that would take care of not only the scout organizations and band, but give every boy and girl in town a place to go for recreation, a place to go to keep them out of mischief.

A community building on the town's property on north Third street adjacent to the tennis courts would be a likely spot. The courts could be flooded in winter time for ice skating. Inside there would be basketball, roller skating, ping pong, bowling, and rooms for meeting places.

At the present time there is nothing for our youth. There are no parks. The town council has borbidden coasting on the streets or alleys of town. It leaves them with nothing to do except gather in gangs and perhaps get into mischief.

It is the belief of The Republican that something should be done toward taking care of our future citizens. The City Council went to a great deal of expense to erect a golf course, to provide recreation for our older citizens. A petition was the means of getting this construction started. It is suggested that the Scout Troop Committee or some other organization start a petition to present to the Council—not as a demand but simply as a demonstration of the interest there is among the taxpayers for boys and girls of the community.

A community building is surely needed. There has been some talk about a Federal postoffice building here, and active Democrats have written their Congressmen. We may need a Federal building. But we need a community building far more. Once a Federal building is placed here it would contain only the postoffice and Federal offices. It would be tax free and there would be no revenue coming into the town. It might react like the dial system of telephoning is working in Terra Alta. As soon as it was installed four girls lost employment and it is said the service is not at all satisfactory.

But a community building would pay dividends—if not in actual money, it would in the character of future citizens here.

Says He Will File For State Senator From Garrett County

While in Cumberland yesterday, Hugh Carey McMahon, of District No. 9, Garrett county, announced his intention of filing as a candidate for State Senator from Garrett county in the coming State primary election.

Mr. McMahon's home is five miles west of Frostburg. He will run on the Democratic ticket. He is a veteran of the World War. Four years ago he was a belated candidate for the same office but failing to file his papers in time his name did not appear on the ballot. He says his platform will be the same as it was four years ago.

McMahon has lately been making a tour of Allegany and Garrett counties in behalf of the gubernatorial candidacy of Herbert R. O'Conor.

To Open Sixth Store Soon

On January 2? the Half-Price Stores will open their sixth store in Franklin, Pendleton county, W. Va. The first Half-Price store was opened in Oakland in the Hinebaugh restaurant building a little more than six years ago by Benjamin Feld. The following year, associated with his brother, F. Harry Feld, of Weston, the concern opened a second store in the First National Bank building, later purchasing the Dixon store building where their largest store is now located.

Other stores were added at Parsons, Moorefield, Petersburg, Kingwood, W. Va., and number six will be opened shortly in Franklin.

Scout Jamboree Planned

Rev. George W. Packard, scoutmaster of Oakland Troop, No. 1, announced one day this week he was making plans for a scout jamboree to be held during Anniversary Week in February.

Other troops of the county are to be invited and to participate in contests, for which prizes will be awarded. The jamboree will be held in the Oakland high school on Thursday, February 10.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuhl Carlton, of Weston, W. Va., the former of whom has been associated with the Craig Motor Service in that city, have moved to Oakland where Mr. Carlton will be in charge of that company's store on Oak street.

Assessments Of Utility Companies Increased More Than A Million Dollars In County

One of the big hurdles necessary before the completion of the re-assessment in Garrett county, was successfully passed on Monday and Tuesday when a hearing or a series of hearings was held before the County Commissioners relative to the assessments of utility companies operating in the county.

Michael J. Lindsey, head of the State Tax Commission, and C. A. Mees, of Georgia, who is a special engineer, were in Oakland assisting R. C. McComas, supervisor of assessments of the county, and the Board of County Commissioners.

According to reliable reports, the total assessments of the utility companies will be increased approximately one and one-quarter million dollars. The present assessment figures are more than five millions on utilities' company property.

New figures on the assessments of these companies are not now available. The old figures show how the companies are assessed. They include the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Corporation, $4,855,793; West Maryland Power Company, $101,050; C. & P. Telephone Company, $18,295; C. & A. Gas Company, $112,489; American Telephone and Telegraph Company, $21,210; Potomac Transmission Company, $203,952. Total, $5,312,735. Representatives of these companies appeared before the Board on Monday and Tuesday relative to their assessments.

The assessment must be completed within a few days and the levy for the new year made on or before the first of February.

To Conduct First Aid Class

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department will begin a class in First Aid work this evening, January 13. This will be similar to the class conducted last year and will be in charge of Dr. E. I. Baumgartner. The course will be completed in twelve lessons, one each week.

Edward A. Shaffer, president of the fire company, stated that any interested person would be eligible to take the course, even though not a member of the fire department. Those interested were asked to confer with Dr. Baumgartner.

DEEP CREEK DISPLAY TO FEATURE OUTDOOR SHOW

Lake to be Used As Scenic Background in Baltimore Exhibition

Deep Creek lake in Garrett county; the Middletown valley, and the Eastern Shore, will form the background of the state's exhibit at the North American outdoor life show in Baltimore next month.

The Maryland display, covering one end of the vast Fifth regiment armory, is being arranged by the state conservation commission, the game department, and the forestry department. It will be 155 feet long and 30 feet wide.

On one end, with Deep Creek lake as scenic background, the conservation department will set up a log fish hatchery, with trout and other fish swimming in what will appear to be a part of the painted lake.

Adjoining the hatchery, the forestry department will erect a log cabin eating house, an outdoor fireplace and a picnic booth similar to those in use in the various state forests and recreational areas.

At the other end, the game department will set up an upland game display, using live quail and other types of game, against the Middletown Valley background. Eastern Shore duck and muskrat marshes, complete with live decoy ducks and muskrat houses, will finish off the exhibit.

WELFARE BOARD SECURES CCC CLOTHING FOR NEEDY

More Than 1,000 Articles To Be Purchased For 1 Cent Each

The Garrett County Welfare Board, at a meeting on Monday evening, made arrangements to sponsor a project to buy clothing from the Swallow Falls CCC camp, to be distributed among the needy in the county. The garments are to be washed and then sent to the WPA sewing rooms to be reconditioned. The camp is asking only one cent each for these garments.

Army regulations until recently made it mandatory to destroy all used garments and all other used equipment, but an order recently came from headquarters allowing them to be sold for one cent each, provided the purchaser would have them cleaned.

The following articles have been purchased by the local welfare board: One thousand blankets, 1000 windbreakers, 500 pairs of shoes, 1000 shirts, 600 overcoats.

Several organization in the county have contributed to the fund, as it is not possible to use welfare board funds for this purpose under present regulations.

At the board meeting four additional old-age pensions were granted and five families were granted aid from dependent children's funds. One blind pension was also granted.

During December, according to Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary, 351 old age pensioners received $6,022.30; 298 children were helped to the amount of $2,991.18, and eight blind persons received $158.80. Cost of administration and child welfare services totaled $1,650.58. Miss Miller said old age pension funds were very low and except for replacements very few new cases can be added in the next few months to the rolls now existing.

Applications for WPA work continue to increase, fifty-six having been received since the first of January. It was also announced that ten boys were sent to CCC camps in January, the quota allowed Garrett county.

The chairman announced that Miss Miller had been asked to serve on an oral examination board for the State of Pennsylvania and the board granted her a leave of three days in order to give this service to that State.

Building Pole Line To Accident And Friendsville

Employes of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company have begun the construction of a telephone line from Oakland northward to include Hoyes, Accident and Friendsville and residents between the points above named. The C. & P. Company has taken over the original line that has been in operation spasmodically for a number of years, until recently when the service was practically nil.

The telephone company now has ten men at work on the pole line and 69 of the 1,110 holes to accommodate a like number of poles have been dug and some of the poles have been put in position. The work will not be completed until late in April or early in the month of May.

SCOUT TROOP COMMITTEE URGES RECREATION HALL

Points Out To Town Council The Lack Of Adequate Facilities For Proper Care Of Youth

CITES RESPONSIBILITY

Pointing out the lack of proper facilities for the recreational care and character training of the youth of Oakland, the Boy Scout Troop Committees and Court of Honor, after a meeting on Monday night, wrote a letter to the Town Council stressing the responsibility of the Council, as a representative body of its citizens, to its young people, and urged its cooperation in providing such care in the future.

The committee especially recommended the ultimate erection of a community building here with an auditorium for basketball, roller skating, entertainment program and public meeting; rooms for a library, the Civic Club, American Legion, Girl and Boy Scout troops, band and adequate quarters for recreation.

A member of Council had recently reprimanded the Scouts for making too much noise at their meeting, held on the second floor of the City Hall. The letter to Council came as a result. The letter follows:

Gentlemen:—We feel sure that you are interested in the welfare of the boys and girls of Oakland; that you would cooperate in developing their character and enjoy having a part in bringing them up to be better citizens of the future.

We all know that boys make noise. They are so full of energy, and this energy must be directed in the proper channels. Members of the Scout Troop Committees and Court of Honor in Oakland regret that the boys have caused any trouble to the Councilmen when they meet in the City Hall, but we feel that both boys and girls of the town should be looked after adequately.

We feel that the people of the town, represented by the Town Council, have a responsibility towards its young citizens, and at present the scout and band organizations are the only means of influencing their conduct, other than the churches. Directed groups are better than gangs.

At present there is nothing except these organizations to keep our boys and girls out of mischief. The Council has just announced it forbids them to coast on any streets or alleys in town. There are no parks or playgrounds, no place to ice skate, no place for them to go for recreation. You have spent quite a sum of money to provide a golf course, but this will give recreation only to the mature citizens.

Therefore we earnestly request your continued interest in the youth of our town and ask that you think seriously and use your influence toward the ultimate erection of a community building here, with an auditorium for basketball, roller skating, and meetings; rooms for a library, Civic Club, American Legion, Girl and Boy Scout troops, band, and rooms for recreation.

We feel that if managed properly it would eventually pay for itself. At least it would pay big dividends in the character of its future citizens.

Our young people present a responsibility that cannot be overestimated. It is up to the people of this town and the Mayor and Council, as their representatives, to do something.

Members of our committee will be glad to meet at any time with the Mayor and Council to discuss this question further and assist in solving the problem.

The letter was signed by H. A. Loraditch, chairman of the Court of Honor and chairman of the Catholic Scout troop; Dr. W. W. Grant, Donald R. Sincell, Rev. David C. Trimble, and George H. Hanst, members of the Court of Honor and troop committee of Oakland Troop, No. 1, and Rev. George W. Packard, scoutmaster of Troop 1.

STATE POLICEMEN MUST SERVE TERMS IN PRISON

One Of Those Sentenced Is Former Garrett County Resident

Tuesday at Annapolis the Court of Appeals held that three members of the State Police force, formerly stationed on the Washington boulevard, and a garage owner and operator, must serve House of Correction sentences for conspiracy to defraud operators and owners of motor vehicles using the highway.

Judge Carroll Band wrote the opinion affirming the judgment of the Howard county court which sentenced Albert E. Markley, sergeant of police, to three years in the House of Correction; John E. Wheeler, corporal, to two years and six months; Officer John E. Taylor to one year, and John Herbert, garage owner, to two years.

The officers have been under suspension from the State Police force pending action on their appeal. They were sentenced May 15.

Claims Profits Shared

"It was testified that the policemen would stop drivers and find deficiencies in the vehicles or their equipment and refer them to the garage kept by Herbert for correction, and there they would be charged excessive prices, and the proceeds would be shared by Herbert and the policemen," the Court said in ruling on the Washington Boulevard case. "There aws also testimony of exactions of pay for unnecessary towing.

"The sum total of such exactions was stated to have been large, it being declared that when business was good 200 'muffler charges' a month were brought into the garage. The exactions for towing, it was stated, were largely for towing out of the State as an indulgence to drivers charged with violations of Maryland laws which might otherwise involve heavier costs."

The defendants denied the conspiracy and defense counsel in arguing the case questioned the alleged "confessions" and statements made by Taylor and Herbert at the home of Major Enoch B. Garey, then superintendent of State Police.

Finds No Error

"It was for the Court to decide whether the confessions were made with or without proper inducement, and in the decision on the conflicting evidence this Court cannot find any error," the Appellate Court held. "On each question of inducement the predominance of the evidence tended to prove that both the oral statements and the subsequent written confessions were voluntary and free from valid objection.

"No error having been found to support the appeal for reversal and retrial, then the judgments must be affirmed."

The men convicted will begin their terms in the House of Correction at once.

Markley is a son of the late Albert E. Markley, former member of the House of Delegates from Garrett county.

MONEY talks — so take a turn up and down Automobile Row and see what it says about Buick.

First off you discover that this sparkling stepper is the lowest-priced of all the straight-eights of its size.

Next — it lists at lower figures, even, than some sixes do, and it's within a dollar or two a week of several others.

But the story isn't told in the bare prices — it's told in the astonishing amount those modest figures cover!

In the SPECIAL, for instance, you get 122-inch wheelbase, 107 horsepower with straight-eight smoothness, valve-in-head efficiency, and the exclusive new DYNAFLASH brilliance and thrift.

You get comfort of a new kind, with Knee-Action on the front, and the scoop of the year—BuiCoil TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING — on the rear.

On top of that, you get elbow-room, leg-room, head-room; smartness inside and out; and probably the lightest, sweetest, pleasantest handling wheel you ever laid hands on!

All in all, this great Buick is the car that makes little money do a lot of big talking — that's why there's such a mighty fine feeling to owning it.

Go look at the price tags, and what's behind them, and you'll spend from now on in a Buick enjoying life!

MT. LAKE PARK

We are always wanting to bring tourists to Mountain Lake Park and Garrett county.

A new idea has been launched—now please don't laugh when we explain—it's the organization, or, should we say, creation, of a beaver colony.

Sounds "nutty," doesn't it? It did to us—until we began looking up the beaver family, their habits, etc. Then we discovered that in a great many larger localities where Mr. and Mrs. Beaver had been persuaded to settle, they had made their homes so interesting that people traveled miles to see them.

In Garrett county we have many small streams. In this section we have the Little Youghiogheny and other streams which would be ideal for the beaver family. Why not get a few and put them to work? They increase rapidly and they do build magnificently.

"Mike" Bates, known to many people in Maryland and Pennsylvania, was the man who persuaded the Canadian Government to set aside a sanctuary for the beavers. "Mike," by the way, has a string of camps in Northern Ontario. But he claims more people come to see the beavers than to hunt or fish. Quote: "It's getting so that the motion picture camera's the most popular gun with the hunters. People are finding out it's more fun to look at a picture of a magnificent animal than just his horns hanging on a wall."

Anyhow, in this era we are living we hear a great deal about conservation. Lets use a little of it here and bring Mr. and Mrs. Beaver to Garrett county. Somehow, we think they will like our streams and the climate.

This isn't our idea alone. Several of us have talked it over and in Oakland, our neighboring town, the idea has been broached to several civic minded citizens, and has met with their approval. Let's hear what you think of it. To us, it's worth some thought.

We have not had an opportunity to consult Dr. McCoaas, but it is just a hunch he might approve as a member of the State Fish Commission, that is if beavers come under his jurisdiction, which they might, as habitues of the water.

Pittsburgh district has quite a colony of beavers just 30 miles out of the city. It seems that the first of the beavers that arrived were taken to a certain spot and liberated. Mr. and Mrs. Beaver looked the location over and thought it was not the place for a dam and moved upstream to a more likely spot and there settled to rear their family, which has increased.

Loch Lynn Heights seems to be on the "up and up." Saturday afternoon we strolled down to see what was going on. Found that Lewis Wildman had opened a barber shop next door to the postoffice. Seemed to be doing a nice business.

The rifle range in the Smith stone building was busy. A fair-sized pool had accumulated and many were trying their skill.

Dropped into several of the stores and found them "on the go."

The postoffice as usual bad plenty to do.

Vandalism

Reading of Oakland's loss of electric bulbs at the holiday season reminded us of a similar loss in Mountain Lake Park. We refer to the fact that Mrs. E. L. Winchell had several lights and other fixtures stolen. Each years Mrs. Winchell prepares a very splendid Christmas display of lights and other attractive features. This year it was unusually beautiful and scores of people came to view its loveliness.

Somehow we can't conceive of anyone spoiling this by petty thievery. (But then neither can we see why they stole half of our coal).

This sort of thing doesn't help a community much. If people are in need and ask for help they usually get it, and we feel that if someone really wanted those lights and had gone to the owner and asked for them they would have gotten either those or similar ones. It's just the iden that we can't trust people which hurts.

P.-T. A. Meeting

A meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Park was held on Tuesday evening in the school building with Mrs. W. B. Brock, chairman, in charge. An unusual feature was the fact that more fathers than mothers attended the meeting. Talks on health were given by Doris Ours, Bernice Sweitzer and Bobbie Gnegy. Mrs. S. J. Cole, public health nurse, also spoke on Garrett county health conditions. A committee was appointed to meet with the County Commissioners relative to the completion of the basement of the Mountain Lake Park school building. The committee included C. C. Gnegy, George Z. Dawson, Mrs. Cole, John Fitzwater and Mrs. Mary Allen.

Neighborhood Club

On Wednesday evening the Neighborhood Club entertained with a turkey dinner at the home of Mrs. E. H. Canon and Mrs. L. R. Reed. The dinner was attended by the husbands and members and was a most delightful affair.

Personals

Mrs. I. D. Hill, well known resident of the Park during the summer, is in San Diego, Calif., where she will spend the winter. Mrs. Hill motored there from Florida.

Lesson for January 16

BEGINNING A LIFE OF SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:14-28.
GOLDEN TEXT—The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel.—Mark 1:15.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus' First Helpers
JUNIOR TOPIC—Why the Fishermen Followed Jesus
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Serving Now
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Adjusting Life to Service.

The public ministry of our Lord was not begun with any great fanfare of publicity. Leaving Judea where the entrenched forces of formal religion had joined the forces of sin and degradation in opposition to him, and which had brought about the imprisonment of John, our Lord appears in his home country, Galilee.

I. Preaching the Gospel (vv. 14, 15, 21, 22).

His first activity is worthy of careful note, for it is not exactly what one might expect in this Gospel of Mark, which we have already characterized as the Gospel of mighty deeds rather than of words. Jesus came to work miracles, and he did work them, and continues to do the miraculous even in our day. It is therefore significant that his first recorded work was that of preaching, his second that of calling and preparing fellow workers, and last of all the miraculous healing of the demoniac.

From a human viewpoint one would think that the opposite order would prevail. First let the Master do some mighty miracle to catch the attention of the people, then organize a great "party," and then preach. Much of the so-called evangelistic effort in our day follows that human formula and fails of lasting results. Observe the man who magnifies preaching and gives the Word of God pre-eminence, and you will see real spiritual accomplishments.

Jesus preached faith and repentance, or perhaps one should say repentance and faith (v. 15). They go together in our Lord's preaching. Let us follow his example.

We read in verse 2 that the hearers were astonished because he spoke with authority. They had been accustomed to hearing the lawyers dispute on the basis of the authority of the law, now the lawgiver himself stood in their midst. He did not set aside the law, but he gave it an interpretation and direction which surprised them.

II. Calling Disciples (vv. 16-20).

The orderly development of any work calls for the choosing and training of associates. Moody is said to have observed that "it is a greater thing to put ten men to work than it is to do ten men's work." Our Lord was no mere human leader, but he desired and used fellow-workers and he committed to them the carrying on of his work after he departed.

God still calls men into his service. Would that grace might be given to each one to whom such a call may come to respond "straightway," as did the disciples. The writer has just read the letter of a heart-broken man who has refused to answer God's call for four long years, and now comes with a broken body which may hinder his usefulness for life. Such tragedies may be averted by prompt and willing obedience.

III. Healing the Demoniac (vv. 23-28).

Three things stand out in this story. The first is that the Son of God has power over the demons of Satan. Any effort to "fight the Devil" in our own power is foredoomed to failure. But in the name of Jesus Christ we may bid him depart from us. Thank God, it works!

The other thought is also of vital import. The demons recognized Jesus, they knew that he was "the Holy One of God" (v. 24), and they bore public testimony of that fact. And yet they were demons, the enemies of God. Saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ is more than a knowledge of his claims, a pious repetition of his name even though it be done in public. Let us make sure that we have a living faith in the Son of God.

Our final observation is that our Lord did not permit the demons to testify concerning him. Christ and his church do not need the flattering words or the financial support of unbelievers. Every time we accept them we weaken our testimony and make ourselves ridiculous before the world. If unbelievers think well of Christ let them show their sincerity by seeking him as Saviour and Lord. Then both they and their gifts will be acceptable and to his glory.

Physical Handicaps

The failure to overcome our physical handicaps is only one of many indications that few of us ever discover ourselves.

Seeing Ourselves

We see time's furrows on another's brow; how few themselves, in that just mirror, see!—Young.

Pleasures

A man that knows how to mix pleasures with business, is never entirely possessed by them.

GENERAL JONES' RAID OF 1863

Through Garrett County [PART TWO]

By CAPT. CHARLES E. HOYE

At "Black Jack" Davis'

John (Black Jack) Davis lived on a farm near the White Church in Ryan's Glade. Early on Sunday morning part of Colonel Harman's column stopped at Black Jack's house and demanded food for themselves and their horses. The daughters of Jack's family served the men and the boys fed their horses. Jack had been warned that the rebels were on the march and had hidden his horses.

After breakfast the officer in command inquired the road to Oakland and Jack gave him directions, but the officer, noting Jack's husky sons, ordered one of them to mount behind him and show the way. Old Jack became panic-stricken, fearing the Confederates would carry the boy away to the South and slavery.

"No, no," he cried. "Take anything I have but not my children. I will go with you and show you the road."

After some good-natured bantering, the soldiers rode away toward Oakland, leaving the Negroes in peace.

The Raiders At Aurora

Jacob Beachy was a boy of ten when Jones' raiders came to the home of his father, Daniel Beachy, at Aurora. The following account of the raid in the Aurora community was written by his sister, Miss Fannie Beachy.

On a Sunday morning in April, 1863, the little Amish congregation was to meet at the Joseph Slabach house, now the Simon Swartzentruber place. The minister, Daniel Beachy, and two other members, C. Petersheim and Peter Schrock, were on their way from Aurora to this meeting, all on horseback. Confederate soldiers were straggled along the Northwestern Turnpike upon which they traveled, but when the three men had nearly reached the Maryland line the regiment in line of march so filled the road the men drew their horses aside, up the bank, waiting opportunity to pass. Presently an under-officer approached Mr. Beachy and said, "Dismount, I must have this horse," to which Mr. Beachy replied that he couldn't spare his horse and have no team for farming. But after a little more parleying the officer unbuckled the saddle-girths, saying that he had told him kindly to yield his horse, and if he refused he must use force. Then Mr. Petersheim spoke up, saying: "We people are on our way to church service and this man is our minister; how shall he get there." Immediately the soldier replied, "Why didn't you tell us sooner? We never molest such people." The girths were rebuckled and he let them go on their way to the meeting.

As soon as they reached the Maryland line they took the Oakland road, which was clear.

Reaching Aurora, the soldiers demanded entrance into the store owned by Mr. David Ridenour, which they emptied of about everything that could be eaten or worn.

Soldiers scattered about in the country, picking up any horses they could find, usually leaving the decrepit, worn-out beast he rode and mounting the farm horse he took. This was done three times on that Sunday at the farm of Daniel Beachy.

At Cheat River the soldiers did not take time to burn the bridge, so they hastily tore up the planking of the floor and threw it into the river before going on.

When these raiders came to Red House earlier on that Sunday morning and in the night, they sacked the home of the Swartzentruber family, then living in the "red house," eating up all they could find and ordered the women of the family to bake griddle cakes for hours and hours when the bread became exhausted.

General Jones and his officers stopped at the "Rising Sun" Tavern, just west of Aurora, ate breakfast and fed their horses. The tavern was then kept by Major David Stemple.

Terra Alta Is Defended

Mr. Parley DeBerry, of Terra Alta, located ten miles west of Oakland, writes entertainingly of the defense of Terra Alta, saying:

I was an eye-witness to at least a part of the raid of the Confederate General W. E. Jones into this section.

I was, at the time of that raid, a boy nearly nine years of age. My father's farm lay about one mile south of what is now the town of Corinth, and my Uncle Joseph DeBerry owned quite a large farm lying just north of and adjoining the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. His farm adjoined the West Virginia-Maryland line on the east and lay between the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and the old State highway and extended west to include the section where is now located a little summer resort known as "The Pines." My uncle's home, which stood about five hundred feet north of the railway was the only residence where now stands the town of Corinth.

On Sunday, April 26, 1863, I had gone to my uncle's home to play with my cousins William and Calvin, who were about two and four years my seniors. Shortly after noon we walked west on the railway about a half mile to where there was a spruce forest, our object being to get a supply of spruce gum which exuded from the trees and was used by us in lieu of chewing gum which had at that time not been invented, at least to our knowledge. After securing a goodly supply of the gum or wax we sauntered back along the railway to nearly opposite my uncle's home when we saw quite a company of horsemen coming along the road that ran along the south side of the railway and parallel with it.

I recall that Calvin, the oldest of the two cousins, whispered to us to "get that gum out of your mouth so you can talk to the gentlemen," as they reined their horses opposite us. Their first question was, after a courteous salute of "good afternoon, little gentlemen,"

"Do you know of any good horses in this section?" It instantly dawned on us who they were.

In the field just across the road from where they stood was a haystack and we could see a good bay horse standing by the stack, but it was not seen by the Confederates. They questioned us at some length. There was nothing but forest between where we stood and my father's farm, but part of the cleared land could be seen from there and would have been seen but for a woods fire that had broken out that morning in the forest. They asked us if there were any farms over that way, pointing in the direction of the farm, but we lied glibly and declared that it was nothing but forest.

Just at that time the roan horse walked out from behind the hay stack and when they caught sight of him, one of them with a sardonic grin said, "You lying little devils," and jumped off his horse and began taking the boards off the board fence so they could go into the field and catch the roan horse. When that took place we made a bee-line for my uncle's house.

We dashed through the house to the porch, which faced east, and overlooked a large meadow which extended to the Maryland line. As we came out on the porch, out of breath, my uncle and aunt were entertaining some guests on the porch, and I heard my uncle say:

"I wonder who all those people are coming into the meadow on horseback."

We could see perhaps two dozen riders putting their horses across the fence into the meadow. We had breath enough to say:

"Rebels," and with that my uncle went back through the house, we boys following, and he picked up some halters and bridles that hung at the rear of the house and made a bee-line for the pasture field on the west side of the farm near the pine forest, where now is the summer resort known as "The Pines." We hurriedly bridled the four horses that my uncle had put out to pasture that morning and lead them into the pine woods, but only got them about 100 feet from the road and tied them to saplings and got back into the road, when we met the Confederates, who stopped us again and inquired about horses.

Standing in the road we could see the horses that we had tied under the pine trees, but sitting on their horses they could not see them.

Just why my uncle's horses did not betray themselves by nickering, I never knew, but they did not. We then made a hurried trip to my father's farm where he had some ten or twelve head of horses and we took them all into the forest and hid them, but the Confederates did not go to the farm.

There was a small company of soldiers at Oakland, Md., a part of Company O, called the Home Guard, and I was told that they were captured without resistance, disarmed and paroled and their muskets were brought to the Youghogheny River about two miles west of Oakland and tossed into the stream. I do not know just how it was known at Terra Alta, then Cranberry Summit, that the Confederates were coming, but there was some little advance information.

Mathias F. Stuck, who owned a small grocery store there, heard of their coming and he armed himself with his rifle and took a position behind a stump on a vacant lot in the east end of town opposite what is now the B. & O. "Y." When the vanguard of the Confederates came opposite him he rose up and blazed away at them. It seems that his aim was a little faulty, but not too bad, for it went through the coat on the shoulder of one of the men but did not touch the flesh. They at once captured Mr. Stuck and boosted him up behind one of the riders and took him to a point along the old pike leading to Kingwood.

When about two miles from town they took him off the horse, stood him on a stump and put a rope around his neck and threw it over the limb of a tree and asked him if he had any last message to leave. He was a member of the Odd Fellows organization and made the Odd Fellows' sign of distress. It happened that the officer in charge of that squad was a member of the order and recognized the sign made by Stuck. He told the men they might take the man down from the stump and the rope off his neck and that he wanted to talk with him privately.

I had later on Mr. Stuck point out to me the location where he came so near being hanged, and he told me the officer took him back into the forest a little way and told him to keep on going and to stay in the woods for a couple of days at least before coming ont. Stuck took his advice and lived to tell about it.

Raider Returns To The Town

I was witness to a strange meeting about twenty years after the raid, when I had grown to manhood, and was a teacher in the Terra Alta school and boarding at a hotel kept by two daughters of Mr. Stuck.

One winter evening shortly after dark a traveling man from Baltimore, representing a wholesale queensware house, came to the hotel for his supper. After the meal he came into the lobby where several parties were sitting, among whom were Mr. Stuck and myself. He opened the conversation by saying:

"Well, gentlemen, this is the second time I have been in this town. The first time was on Sunday, April 26, 1863. I was a member of the Confederate raid that came through here and when we came into the east end of town a man rose from behind a stump and cut a furrow through the shoulder of my coat. We captured him and took him along the road a couple of miles west of town and were about to hang him when the officer in charge told us to 'desist,' that he wanted to talk to the man. He took him out of sight in the forest and in a little while came back stating that the man had gotten away from him and ran."

At that point Mr. Stuck, who had been watching him like a cat watches a rat, stepped over to him and held out his hand and said:

"Well, I am the man that fired that shot."

They had a real reunion together that night.

It has been stated that at Terra Alta, then known as Cranberry Summit, the raiders captured the guard of fifteen men and destroyed the railroad property. I think that is a mistake. I do not think that they destroyed any property here except that they broke open the main store here in the town, belonging to John P. Jones, and I was told afterwards by Mr. Jones that they took quite a lot of tobacco and perhaps some groceries, and that they knocked the heads out of several barrels of flour and poured the flour on the floor. They knocked the spigot out of a barrel of syrup and let the syrup run into the flour.

There were several people here who were known as strict Unionists, among them a doctor by the name of Parsons, who had been obliged to leave Tucker Co. because of his Union sentiments openly expressed, and they were looking for him. He had knowledge of their coming in time to get out of town into the forest and hid until the danger was passed. There were, I was told, several men who had prior to the war lived in this neighborhood and had gone South and jointed the Confederate Army and were acting largely as guides.

Some years after the war, I taught a country school located on what is now the Hopemont Sanitarium property and I boarded with David Freeland, who at that time owned the farm. He told me that on that Sunday he was sitting in the home and from a window he saw mounted men chasing his horses in the pasture field in an effort to catch them. He told me that he knew they were Rebels as soon as he saw them, and he picked up his hunting rifle and stepped out thinking to make them leave the horses alone. The highway ran just in front of the home, and when he stepped off the porch he heard the click of a carbine being cocked and he looked up and he said:

"What do you suppose I saw? I saw Jim Sprigg sitting on his horse with his carbine cocked and pointed toward me," and he said, "Uncle Dave, just let that rifle down there."

And Uncle Dave said, "I laid it down."

Jim Sprigg was a young man that had prior to the war lived on a farm that belonged to Freeland and was less than a mile from his home farm.

I could relate many more incidents of the raid into this section: how they took horses from the farmers and left jaded and run-down horses in their stead, and how they cut down the iron suspension bridge that crossed the Cheat River at Albrightsville, but I have already made this too long.

Just A Bit Previous

A lady recently called on the family of a minister in Loch Lynn. While waiting for him to appear she saw the minister's daughter. Wanting to be friendly and begin a conversation, she finally asked the child, "Well, little girl, has your father married anyone lately?"

"No," replied the girl, "he still has Mama."

Somebody asked us this week if there was anything we liked about Roosevelt, never having seen anything in The Republican favorable to that gentleman.

Yes, there are a couple of things we like about his policies. We like his stand on armaments. There is nothing that makes a nation have better respect for peace than the knowledge that a possible enemy is better prepared for war. Disarmament would be all right if every nation would agree and then do what they agree. But as long as they don't and won't, preparedness is a better safeguard of peace than any other method.

We like the idea of CCC camps, with restrictions.

We don't like, or never did—his NRA, his unlimited spending, his relief for political gain, his Supreme Court ideas, his lack of cooperation with business, his interference with private industry, his egotism, his attempts at control of the press, his attempts at control of everything, his antagonism against anybody who happens to disagree with him, his plans for government reorganization whereby most everything would be under executive control, his show of cooperation followed by a complete about face on many questions, his lack of concern in balancing the budget, his confidence in the general dumbness of the majority of people in this country leading him to believe he can get away with most anything.

We have an extended list if anybody cares to hear the balance of reasons why we don't like him and his administration.

The modern version of the "Three Little Pigs" is different from the old nursery tale. In the modern version, the two little pigs who spent their time playing and making "whoopee," instead of being devoured by the wolf, went on government relief and gave the merry laugh to the industrious little pig who had new to support them.

Spark of Wisdom

Ingratitude—We can be thankful to a friend for a few acres, or a little money; and yet the freedom and command of the whole earth, and for the great benefits of our being, our life, health and reason, we look upon ourselves as under no obligation.—Seneca.

We Take A Little Credit

While we never blow our own horn—well, hardly ever—at least not very much—oh, well, skip it—not more than once a week—it looks like this time we can take a little credit for a good deed.

Some weeks ago I was informed that when the New Germany CCC camp was abandoned that stoves were broken up and buried; blankets, clothing, etc., were being burned. This was in obedience to Government regulations that had been in effect in the army for years, but I remarked at the time that it was a shame that this material couldn't be distributed to the needy of the county.

One day last week an order came through allowing the commander at the Swallow Falls camp, where a lot of blankets, clothing, etc., had been stored, to sell these articles to the Welfare Board here for one cent each. County and town organizations contributed to the purchase fund and now many will be warm that were never warm before.

I can hardly believe the order came as a result of something printed in this column, but one who should know, said that was the reason.

MINISTERING TO PHYSICAL NEEDS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 1:29-45.
GOLDEN TEXT—And he healed many that were sick—Mark 1:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Went to Peter's House.
JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Went to Peter's House.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Helping the Sick.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity's Concern for Physical Health.

"The Mystery of Painlessness" is the title of a book published some years ago, in which the author pointed out that instead of bemoaning the physical ailments of man we should thankfully recognize that much of life is without pain. There is point to the suggestion, but one who has reached the years of maturity and who has stood shoulder to shoulder with suffering mankind is very conscious of the never-silent cry of those whose bodies are in need.

Our Lord was tender and solicitous of man. It was to him that the great host of impotent folk—the lame, the halt, the sick, and the blind—came for healing, and they came not in vain. Note, however, that in the midst of his works of mercy he did not forget his real objective, which was to deal with man's sin.

I. Healing (v. 29).

First, we find our Lord tenderly sharing the sorrow of the home of a friend. One can picture the anxious hush that hovered over the home as distressed relatives and friends sought to alleviate the suffering of the one with a fever. They knew the possibility of a serious outcome of the illness. Many of us have gone through that dark valley. All at once there was new hope, and soon there was joy. Jesus had come and had brought healing. Many of us have also had that blessed experience.

Note that the healing was instantaneous and the restoration complete. She arose to serve. This typifies God's healing of the sickness of the soul. If you are saved you are ready to stand up and serve.

Christianity is not a selfish faith, if it follows its Lord. We see in verses 32 to 34 that all the city came to his door with the diseased and demon-possessed, and he healed them all. The account of the kindly and intelligent care of the sick is written large on the pages of the history of the Christian church.

II. Praying (v. 35).

The Son of God sought out a place and a time for prayer communion with his Father. How often we who profess to follow him fail to pray at all. Certainly we need the grace and power that prayer can bring far more than Jesus did. But, we say, we are so busy. So was he. We are tired. So was he.

III. Preaching (vv. 36-39).

Jesus said, "Let us go . . . that I may preach . . . for therefore came I forth." It bears repetition in this age when men magnify the doing of mighty deeds, that while Jesus did many miracles (and not for a moment would we detract from their worth and glory) yet he repeatedly, by word and act, emphasized the importance of preaching.

Foolish though it may seem to the natural man (read I Cor. 1:18-25), preaching the gospel in the power of the Holy Spirit is now, as it has been through the centuries, God's chosen means of turning the world upside down (Acts 17:6). What a pity that churches and pastors are forsaking it for book reviews, dramas, social hours, forums, community centers, and what not! God give us a revival of great, humble, and fearless preaching of the Word!

IV. Cleansing (vv. 40-45).

There is a sense in which the cleansing of the leper was another act of healing, but leprosy is such a striking type of sin that the incident calls for special consideration.

Leprosy is like sin in that it is a destructive malady that pursues its insidious way without revealing its true nature until it is far advanced. It renders a man unclean, loathsome to himself and dangerous to others. At least such it was in the days of our Lord.

Is there no hope for the leper? Yes; Jesus has come. The smitten man cries out, "If thou wilt thou canst make me clean."

So, also, may the sinner be cleansed, for "whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved" (Rom. 10:13). He will not turn the vilest of sinners away.

The Feeling of Power

He knows that power is unborn, and, so perceiving throws himself unhesitatingly upon his thought, instantly rights himself, stands in the erect position, commands his limbs, works miracles; just as a man who stands on his feet is stronger than a man who stands on his head.

Beauty

This is what we want—we want the vision of a calmer and simpler beauty to tranquilize us in the midst of artificial tastes.

Some Investment!

According to the latest estimate it costs $10,028 to bring a child into the world and through his or her eighteenth year.

This takes no account of the parental hope and anguish going into the job that is not to be measured in dollars. Then, many times the only thing there is to show for the job is a mastery of the Big Apple.

From the foregoing figures you can find the proof for the statement a certain man made in a letter to the County Superintendent several years ago, "There's more profit in raising hogs."

It's a good thing for that man that his daddy didn't think of that before it was too late!

* * *

In spite of that one man, however, and a mere handful around in the county, there are those multitudes who consider their money well spent by rearing a family comfortably. And to help the children to learn a little more than a knowledge of how to do the Big Apple, there is the problem of the Community Building for children of today and children of tomorrow. Let's not let up on this question. Keep it before yourself and before others. The time will come for action.

* * *

While we must needs wait for the building, there is an opportunity right now to take advantage of skating on the lake at Mountain Lake Park. Last Sunday afternoon there must have been fifty or more boys and girls out there on their skates. Sometimes they didn't remain on their skates long—but they got up and tried again. There was room for two or three hundred more people there.

* * *

With the return of interest in winter sports activities, Oakland is ideally situated where youngsters can learn how to ski, skate and sledride. (But you're supposed to sledride outside the city limits). Perhaps the old-fashioned sleigh rides will become popular also—and if they do, I want a foot heater installed in every corner of the sleigh.

The town needs wholesome activities for its youth and a little thought toward the development of those activities.

Mayor Fraley, I believe, is already considering a place for skiing, and that is good.

Encouragement For Us

There's always the problem in the small town of many people of necessity leaving when they grow up and have to earn a living. There are not enough industries in small towns to take care of the increase in population. Many also get the urge to travel and leave their home town because they see no future. They don't want to remain small townish.

However, there is encouragement to those who remain, as reflected in a poem published in the New York Times on January 12. This poem was sent to Archibaldson here in the office by the Rev. Felix Robinson.

THE STAY-AT-HOME

You followed many roads from sun to sun
And skimmed the oceans freely as a bird
To watch the way a thousand things were done,
To find afar the rare and final word.

I stayed at home here in the little town
Where you and I were born and reared together,
Envying you the flashes of renown,
I who explored but townsmen and the weather.

Yet now that you have journeyed back, I know
That I have gained from life as much as you,
For you have never watched a village grow
Nor followed lives a generation thru;
And though you may be steeped in foreign lore,
I, who have home folks, do not ask for more.

—Isabelle Bryans Longfellow.

Spark Of Wisdom

It is with narrow-souled peoples as with narrow-necked bottles—the less they have in them the more noise they make in pouring it out.—Pope.

* * *

A questionaire was sent out recently by a news bureau to several thousand newspapers throughout the United States. The questions covered current legislative issues. A large number of answers were received.

To the question, "Do you believe Congress should attempt to balance the budget through reductions in Federal activities, including relief? Over 92 peer ecent said yes; Maryland more than 12 to 1.

To the question, "Do you favor repeal or revision of the capital gains tax, and the undistributed profits tax?" over 90 per cent said yes.

To the question, "Do you favor continuance of the trend to extend Federal competition with private business?" over 96 per cent said no.

At least this shows where the majority of newspapers stand on such New Deal legislation.

* * *

"Good morning; is this the Welfare office? Well, I'd like to purchase one of those overcoats you are selling for one cent!" Or maybe the next time it would be windbreakers, shirts, blankets, or shoes.

After the three or four hundredth telephone or personal call, this began to get tiring to those in the office of the Welfare Board.

Since last week's story that all these things had been purchased for one cent each and would be distributed to the needy, they have been very busy. Most of those calling weren't on relief, or WPA, or anything. They just wanted a bargain in coats or blankets, or what have you. But they soon learned that they were only for families on relief.

If it had not been for that I would have made application for some of the blankets for camping next summer. And a windbreaker for one cent wouldn't be so bad either.

State To Distribute No Rabbits During Current Year

Word has been received from State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte that it is financially impossible for the State to purchase any rabbits to liberate in the covers of the State this year.

Last year the State Game Department had to borrow $8,000 from the hunters' license receipts of 1937 and this year the State Game Department will have $11,213 less to operate on than last year.

Last February the State liberated 12,500 cotton-tail rabbits in Maryland.

It is believed that with the short hunting season last year there will be sufficient brood stock left from these habbits to provide good hunting next fall.

However, several of the sportsmen clubs in Western Maryland have already taken it upon themselves to purchase rabbits.

Mr. LeCompte hopes to plant 10,000 bob-white quail in the State from the two bob-white farms at Gwynnbrook and Wicomico; also 300 wild turkeys, and there are 2,800 ring-neck and mutant pheasants for distribution next spring.

Fabric Identification

New weaves and mixtures of fibers often complicate the problem of shopping for clothes. Many of the new fabrics baffle the shopper who wants to know what fibers, and what proportion of each, they contain. This information is, or should be, of importance to the shopper since methods of laundering, cleaning, pressing and storing vary according to the kind of fibers and the proportion of each used in fabrics. The best aid to identifying fabrics is a label that gives clear and complete information. Lacking labels, shoppers may use a few simple tests at home which will help them to know what they are buying.

The burning tests is one way of telling whether material is pure-dye silk, weighted silk, or synthetic like rayon. Fray both lengthwise and crosswise threads in a sample of the goods and apply a lighted match. Pure-dye silk burns with an odor of burning hair and forms tiny black balls. Silk heavily weighted with metal leaves a black, crisp skeleton of the weave rather than black kballs. Synthetics appear to melt as they burn, give off a slight pungent odor and leave a hard, glassy-looking ash.

The lye test helps distinguish between animal and vegetable fibers and is useful in finding out just how much silk or wool a fabric contains. Boil the sample of goods for ten minutes in a mixture of one pint of water and one tablespoon of lye. After this boiling, all the silk or wool will have disappeared, leaving only cotton, linen or synthetic that the fabric may have contained. Anyone using lye should be extremely careful in handling the material, as it will burn the skin.

WHICH would you rather have in 1958..

A FARM or half a Farm?

WHAT will be the condition of your farm 10 years from now—20 years—30 years? Is it steadily improving or going down hill?

To farmers who offer sound security and are good credit risks we readily lend money to purchase farm land, make permanent improvements, pay old debts, and for a number of other purposes. The money is available at low interest rates, with as long as 30-odd years to pay. Small annual or semi-annual payments gradually retire the loan.

Advantages of a Land Bank Loan

Low interest—long terms—no renewals—greater security—prepayment privileges—a cooperative loan—permanent credit source. Be sure to ask us, or write the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore for a FREE COPY of "Planned Financing."

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1938.

SOMETHING NEEDED—

While the letter to the City Council by the Scout Committee, and an editorial in The Republican have not produced a community building, they have both stirred up much talk and interest.

A majority of people are much in favor of a place for our youth. The biggest question is how it is to be done. Some estimate the cost at about $70,000. Others think it could be done for much less.

A group also presented a plea to the Commissioners this week for either a gymnasium for the high school or an entire new building. Here again the question was—HOW?

Nobody expects a community building or a high school building to spring up overnight. But the more talk about it and the more interest in it, the sooner will such a need be realized. Let's keep some enthusiasm alive for the needs of youth.

THEY DISAGREE

We seem to have come now to the point in the history of the New Deal where even the economic experts themselves disagree. Five years have elapsed and the various alphabetical governmental agencies, whose duty it was to end the depression, have "done their darndest" and we still have a depression, or at least its twin sister, a recession. Eighteen billions have been expended in pump-priming and results are not yet satisfactory.

Of course, blaming it all on to big business is calculated to avoid any political consequences which might issue from the recession, but that does not solve the problem of how to find the corner around which prosperity has been waiting for eight or nine years.

To show the extent of disagreement among the social engineers of the New Deal, the Boston Transcript recently cited the conflicting theories of Donald Richberg, former head of the NRA, and Robert Jackson, the "trust buster" and potential Democratic candidate for Governor of New York.

Mr. Richberg says we must have a more orderly flow of business. He adds that when we have a market we go in and sell to the limit, with a result that we oversell it this year and have a slump next year. Output of goods should be adjusted to the needs of the people, and to bring about such adjustment Mr. Richberg suggests a national planning board.

On the other hand, Mr. Jackson is in favor of mass production. His cure is high volume, mass production that would enable the manufacturer to produce more cheaply and pay higher wages.

Both of these distinguished gentlemen can't be right. If we have mass production, as Mr. Jackson suggests, the next thing we run into is overproduction and the slump which Mr. Richberg talks about.

On the other hand, if we have national planning to regulate output to demand, as Mr. Richberg suggests, then we can't have mass production, cheaper prices and higher wages. The tendency will be toward higher or leveled prices and standardized wages.

There have, of course, been other differences of opinion and technique in the New Deal. We have had business regimentation which would enable business to get from under the anti-trust law, and vicious attacks on monopoly. We have had curtailment of agricultural production and the advocacy of speeding up industrial production. We have had the fixing of "reasonable" prices and a demand for lower prices. We have had artificially controlled farm crops and a demand for wider foreign markets which can't be satisfied unless we have the goods with which to fill them.

It is now about time for the boys to get together. May we suggest a debate between Mr. Jackson and Mr. Richberg to clarify the present foggy atmosphere?

How Times Do Change

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Terra Alta Oracle, published at Terra Alta, West Va., died during the holidays but from its ashes rose the Preston Republican, a nwesy, bright and aggressive weekly, edited by Gus A. Bolden, native of Oakland.

Youghiogheny Lodge, Knights of Pythias, was instituted at Friendsville with twenty charter members. Fred Haney was its chancellor commander. Assisting in th einstallation were Truman West, Will Sturgiess, D. E. Bolden, John D. Taggart, George D. White, Austin Brown, Jacob Meyers and Thomas Little, members of the Oakland lodge.

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad officials had under advisement a plan to change the roadbed of their line at Snawy Creek, between Terra Alta and Oakland in order to overcome the sharpe cudves and eliminate the heavy grade at that point.

The issue of The Republican of January 13, 1898, was printed upon a new press, built by C. B. Cottrill and Company at Westeriy, Rhode Island. The machine was shipped by water to Baltimore and from that point was brought to Oakland by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The press was purchased through the old Baltimore Type Foundry. The work of installing the machine was superintended by the late Samuel Lawton, a master machinist of his day, and was in operation within twenty-four hours from the time the first piece was placed in position. The press, after forty years of constant use, is used today in printing The Republican. During all these forty years of continuous use the cost of replacement of parts and repairs has been negligible.

The sudden change from cold to mild, spring-like weather put a stop to the ice harvest. The ice being harvested averaged about eight inches. A number of priveate ice houses in the town were filled with ice from Judge Wilson's lake, nerth of town, while the Baltimor eand Ohio house at the Oakland Hotel was filled by William Broderick by ice from his lake east of town.

The Bar Association of Garrett county was incorporated for the purpose of establishing a law library for use of its members and the Court. Rooms were rented in the McComas building and books belonging to the association were put therein. Members included Thomas J. Peddicord, Gilmor S. Hamill, A. B. Gender, Fred. A. Thayer, E. H. Sincell, J. C. Renninger, John T. Mitchell, Edwin L. Mitchell, A. G. Sturgiss, James C. Peddicord and William A. Daily.

J. W. Lakin, Terra Alta, and D. E. Offutt, Jr., Oakland, formed a copartnership for the purpos eof engaging in the general merchandise business at Rowlesburg.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Final figures on the new general reassessment in the county showed real estate values at more than $11,000,000.

For more than a month the thermometer had not registered above the freezing point except upon one or two occasions. The ground was frozen to a depth of three to four feet and many water pipes were in consequence closed tight by the frost. Oakland high school was forced to close until pipes were thawed. There was much coasting. A bobsled upset at the First National Bank corner and Miss Virginia White suffered an injury to her ankle. Townshend Naylor collided head-on with a sled preceding that upon which he was riding and he suffered a cut on his forehead.

Ice harvest at Mountain Lake Park was greater than in any previous year. More than one hundred twenty car oads lhad had been shipped out. The ice measured two feet or more in thickkness.

"Teddy" Mason returned home after several weeks in Avilton and Grantsvill where he had been engaged in quarantine work among smallpox victime in that portion of the county.

The Fuel Administrator ordered every manufacturing plant east of the Misssissippi River to close for five days in an affort to relieve the coal situation, which had become acute on account of the severity of the weather.

Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor has ruled that employes and salaried officers of the Home Owners Loan Corporation in Maryland are subject to the new State income tax. No other federal agencies operating in the State were affected directly by the decision.

Mountain Top Ministers' Association Meets At Gormania

Members of the Mountain Top Ministers' Association held their January meeting Monday morning in the M. E. church at Gormania, Rev. Ira Lyons, pastor.

A paper on "Personal Ethics" was read by Rev. Donald W. Brown, pastor of the Lutheran church at Aurora, it being the second of a series on Christian ethics.

Members of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist and the Presbyterian churches of Gormania served a dinner to the ministers. The February meeting will be held in Kitzmiller.

Increased interest and attendance is noted in the Association since the meetings are scheduled in various communities, according to Rev. C. A. Shilke, president. At the February meeting, Rev. Shilke will read a paper on "Business Ethics."

Shilke, who will vacate the Lutheran parsonage the latter part of this month, will occupy the Moore home until the return of Dr. and Mrs. Moore.

The rather unusual appearance of evergreen shrubbery along the streets and in the yards of Oakland householders was noted yesterday when the eastern exposure of the pines and other evergreens were white with frost, while the western exposure of the same shrubs were their natural beautiful green. The explanation is made that a damp, penetrating wind was coming in from the east, with the mercury at about twenty degrees F., the result being the moisture deposited upon the needles becoming frozen and pure white as a result.

Library Receives Gift of Maryland Anthology

The Oakland Free Public Library has received a volume entitled "Three Hundred Years," an anthology of Maryland poetry and poets, from Frederick Thayer, Jr., who is one of its contributors.

So far as is known, this is the first comprehensive collection of poetry by Marylanders ever made. It traces the history of Maryland poetry from 1634 to the present, and contains the work of twenty-three poets, the most notable being Edgar Allen Poe, Sidney Lanier, Edward Coote Pinkney, Father Tabb, Lizette Woodworth Reese and Hervey Allen.

Biographies of the various poets are given, and much interesting Maryland history is included. The book is now on exhibition at the Enoch Pratt Library in Baltimore, and, according to Joseph L. Wheeler, the librarian, has attracted widespread comment.

Mr. Thayer is represented with six poems. His work has previously been published in Harper's, The Forum and Books—N. Y. Herald-Tribune.

Elzie Layman Convicted

Found guilty on charges of being drunk and disorderly and assaulting an officer, at Frostburg, Elzie Layman of this county, was sentenced last night in Frostburg to serve two years in the House of Correction.

According to Officer Walter Eichorn, Layman assaulted him when being taken to jail after he had been removed from a coffee room of a hotel. Layman's father, Louis Layman, is a patient in Miners' hospital, suffering with a fractured leg, resulting from a scuffle with Police Chief Benjamin Thomas recently. The elder Layman also resisted arrest.

Counterfeit $5 Bills Afloat

The police department was notified yesterday by the Department of Justice to be on the lookout for counterfeit bills of $5.00 denomination that were being passed in this area.

The bills have the engraving showing the bust of Abraham Lincoln on them, as is proper, but it is poorly executed and close scrutiny of the bill will lead one to detect the counterfeit workmanship.

Sunday Services In Community Churches

Red House Lutheran Parish

The pastor's sermons for January deal with the general theme, "How Christians Face the Future." The subject this week is, "Facing the Future Cheerfully, Affectionately and Helpfully." The hopeful, prayerful and thoughtful attitudes have been considered. The hopeful Christian goes boldly to the throne of divine grace, but not thoughtlessly. From there he takes up his daily tasks with a cheerful spirit, a congenial disposition, and with a sincere desire to help bear the burdens and share the sorrows of others.

DR. REEVES' TRAVELS IN PERSIA SEARCHING FOR OIL

Local Geologist Writes Entertainingly From An Historic Part Of The World

To the Editor of The Republican.

Dear Sir:—The following letter was received by the Rev. David C. Trimble, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church. It was written by Dr. Frank Reeves, well-known resident of Youghiogheny Forest, south of Oakland, who is now engaged in oil research by the Amiranian Oil Company of Theran, Persia. The letter follows in part:

Neebed, Iran, Dec. 5, 1937.

I am leaving my interesting work and am seeing a great deal of rugged mountainous country. I have traveled over ten thousand miles by car and one or two thousand on horses, mules, donkeys, and camels.

We arrived in Theran, the capital of Persia, in early June. The 15th of June my party left for the field, eqipped with two cars, a lot of camp gear and two native helpers. My right hand assistant is Bennett Frank Bine, a graduate student and instructor at Harvard—a very pleasant and capable geologist. Walter Wilson, whom I expected to join me shortly after I got going, was delayed in the States because he was a British subject. He only recently got his permit to enter this country and is now on his way to Persia and will join me in about a week.

Since leaving Therau, nearly six months ago, we have been constantly on the move making geological surveys through the Elburz mountains of northern Persia and in the deserts of Central Persia. For two months we traveled with pack horses in the remote mountain districts along the Afghan and Russian borders.

At one frontier fort I was held up for a few days, suspected of being a Russian spy. I had left our base camp and taken a four days' trip there to examine a reported oil seep and left my interpreter behind with Bine and also forgotten my papers. I had some difficulty in prevailing upon the border police to let me go. They finally allowed me to return to camp under guard. When they saw my papers they released me.

Bine and I often take long trips on horseback and sometimes travel without anything except our bed rolls. On such trips we pick up the language much faster than when we have our interpreter with us. The natives are very friendly and hospitable, especially the semi-nomadic tribes that live in the open during the summer and fall weather. These consist chiefly of Turkomans, Kurds and Beluchii.

The Persian peasant live in small villages, consisting of a closely packed cluster of small huts, encircled usually by a high wall to protect them formerly from the raids of the wild Turkoman tribes. The huts and walls, also fences, and most everything used for shelter, are made of mud and sundied brick. Some of the villages are very old and are built on the ruins of still older villages. Around the villages are small irrigated fields of grain—wheat, barley, cotton and rice. Considerable fruit is grown and great quantities of melons.

Outside of these small irrigated areas the country is treeless and appears barren, but a scattered growth of sage brush and some dried tufts of grass support numerous flocks of sheep, goats, and camels. There is also a considerable amount of wild game, such as gazelles, big horn sheep, wild hogs and mountain goats. There are also many wolves, jackals and leopards. I have shot some of these animals with a .22 rifle bought at Meltire's in Oakland. With a larger guage rifle I could shoot all kinds of big game. Last week I ran into two leopards and had a try at them with a .22, but shot from my saddle and missed them, fortunately. They are ugly customers when wounded.

Winter is approaching and the weather is getting a bit rough, with snow and ice, making it necessary for us to find shelter in native houses and caravansaries. During the summer it was very hot, but the fall months were ideal for field work.

It rains very seldom here—a bit of snow and rain falls in the winter. For five months we slept in the open without any shelter except possibly the shade of a tree it we could find one. There are usually a few trees growing along the irrigation ditches and below springs. In some of the mountain gorges there are beautiful bases of trees growing along clear mountain streams. These streams are often conducted for miles down to good farming lands in the deserts through underground canals, sometimes hundreds of feet below the surface of the ground. The Persians and Arabs are very skillful in building these canals without surveying instruments or tools of any kind except a pick and shovel.

All farming is done in a very primitive way. The ground is plowed with a heavy piece of wood with a plow share fastened to it and drawn by oxen. When ripe, the grain is cut with a sickle and threshed out with oxen walking over it. Much of the grain is ground by small water mills which will grind only from five to ten bushels per day. On some of the mountain streams near a fertile valley I have counted as many as twenty of these mill placed in tandem-fashion along a mile's course of the stream. There are also mills driven by the wind, consisting of an upright beam supporting vertical planks, looking like a huge paddle-wheel standing on end. The wind strikes these planks through a vertical opening in a wall. In some places there are scores of these placed behind the city walls, so placed that one side of the propeller gets the force of the wind and the other side does not.

The villagers make all their own clothes and the silver and copper smiths make very beautiful vessels for all kinds of purposes.

Most of the Persian carpets are also made in the villages by children sitting in rows and all working in unison with an older person squatting in the center and chanting out directions as to what color of thread to use, etc.

Well, I fear I have tried your patience with a too lenghty, illegible letter and will close, wishing you a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Sincerely yours,
FRANK REEVES.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

Still The Quarterback

Undoubtedly, events of the past three weeks have widened the circle of those who believe that the most serious aspect of th enational economic situation is the extraordinary lack of stability about the President. Faced with the realities of a depression, he not only has failed to chart a clear course for himself but he amazingly vacillates between the divergent action urged by conflicting groups of advisers, with neither of which he really sees eye to eye and certainly neither of which now has complete confidence in him.

* * *

At a time particularly calling for a clear-headed sense of direction, he adheres to his shifty first-term strategy and still pictures himself—to use his own simile—as the football quarterback whose next play is determined by the success of the last one. That may be all right on a football field, but it is not a satisfactory way to manage the affairs of a great nation in a crisis. How anyone can expect business or labor, finance, journalism or Congress to adjust themselves, support and cooperate with a Government obviously without a fixed economic philosophy, or any clarity of thought about one, is not easy to see. Ever since the present depression (which Mr. Roosevelt resents being called such) became too acute to ignore, he has promoted a series of happenings which, instead of restoring confidence and compelling cooperation, have enhanced confusion, baffled most impartial observers and dismayed the more intelligent of his intimate friends. That is the truth about the situation.

* * *

Either personally or through his inspired aides, he has alternately patted business on the back and kicked it in the pants. First he has frowned upon the suggestions of his anti-capitalistic counselors, but later convinced them that his "heart is in the right place," that he does not intend to "let the people down" by making any concessions to business at all. And then a day or so later these so-called "liberals" are again perturbed by the emergence from the White House of outstanding exponents of Big Business, who assert that a "constructive talk" was had and that from now on relations between the Government and industry are bound to be better.

* * *

Last week, one hour before the appearance of a particularly important group representing finance, industry and labor, specially invited to confer with the President, a sensational statement came from him avowing his new holding-company policy, which, if carried out, one Democratic Senator—Adams, of Colorado—said would mean "economic anarchy." And this was followed by the dramatic tearing to pieces at his press conference of a memorandum left with him by a utility leader who came down to Washington hoping for a "better understanding." Incidentally, it is a fact that at least one of the public-utility executives recently sent for left the White House very puzzled indeed. Personally invited to come to see the President, he found himself cordially greeted, listened for ten minutes to an interesting discourse on deep-sea fishing, was told several good stories and then, when the President's secretary announced another appointment, was courteously dismissed without having had any opportunity to mention the question on which he was to be consulted.

* * *

That sort of thing has happened before. Men have gone to see the President at his request, come away without having talked upon anything of real importance, found their visit recorded in the newspapers, been forced to conclude that for some occult White House purpose they had been used as window dressing. Undoubtedly, some of the business-men conferences of the last three weeks have been window dressing and nothing else. And there will be more of them. This week there is to be a large gathering of fifty-odd, chaperoned by Secretary Roper, all ready to "cooperate," all anxious for a "better understanding." That this conference will be harmonious and the business men come out "encouraged" is fairly sure. But it is equally sure that at his next press conference or with the "Richberg Plan," or with a gesture toward further inflationary expenditures or in some other way, Mr. Roosevelt will reassure his Left Wing friends, who are deeply pained whenever he seems about to recover faith in the multiplication table.

* * *

The fact is that the President appreciates the business point of view, recognizes the truth of what his conservative advisers have told him, knows he cannot pull the New Deal, or the country, out of the hole unless business recovers its confidence and courage. He knows all that, but he simply cannot bear alienating his radical friends, or having them say that he has "surrendered to Wall Street," "betrayed his trust," "gone over to the Tories"—or use toward him any of th eother stock phrases which fall so readily from their lipe. It is unforutnate for the country that this is his state of mind, because it prevents any real strength of administration at a time when it is very badly needed. This business of playing both ends against the middle may be all right when things are on an even keel, but it is not without danger when they are not.

MODERN MOTIVE POWER BEING UTILIZED BY B. & O.

Diesel Powered Engines Hauling Crack Trains Thru Here Daily

With delivery during the next few days of the fourth of the 3600 H-P Diesel-electric engines built for it by Electric-Motive Corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors, the Baltimore and Ohio will shortly be operating the National Limited, its crack New York-St. Louis train, in both directions through Oakland with these big and powerful locomotives.

One of the National's new engines has been in operation for more than a week, and has already shown its capabilities, on one day taking the train at Washington, Ind., more than an hour late (because of delayed southwestern connections at St. Louis) and arriving at Parkersburg ahead of schedule.

The Diesels will handle the train between Washington, D. C., and Washington, Ind., including the steep grades of the Alleghenies where this type of power works at great efficiency. Two other units of the same type have been handling the other top-flight east and west train of the B. & O., the Capitol Limited, between Chicago and Washington for the last few months, and have not only shown their great capacity as haulers but have brought favorable comments from hundreds of passengers on their smooth operating qualities—regardless of speed.

Unlike the Diesel units that are being used in the short, articulated trains that have been operating during the last few years on other railroads, and that are housed in the forward part of the leading car, the B. & O.'s Diesel is exclusively a power unit, and can be used on any train of proper tonnage. The units consist of two Winton V type high-compression two-cycle engines, burning Diesel oil and developing 900 engine horsepower each at 750 R. P. M., or 1800 horsepower for the whole unit. Each engine has twelve cylinders with 8-inch bore and 10-inch stroke, and weighs less than 20 pounds per horsepower. Further, this type engine can be used in multiples and can thus be adapted to haul passenger trains of varying tonnage and over terrain of diversified character.

Although speeds as high as 100 miles an hour may be attained with this type of Diesel, its principal advantages are the development of practically full power for use in starting a train, and rapid acceleration, it being estimated that a speed of sixty miles an hour can be attained with full train load within three minutes of the start.

The route traversed by the National, now hauled by these beautiful streamlined locomotives, includes some of the most interesting parts of the historic B. & O. From a point slightly west of Washington, D. C., through Oakland and as far as Grafton, West Va., it is a section of the "old Main Line" of the B. & O. that first connected the Ohio River (at Wheeling, West Va.) with the Atlantic, at Baltimore, on Christmas Eve of 1852. West of the Ohio, the route is for the most part the old Ohio and Mississippi, which was the first line to connect the two great rivers, and which for many years has been a part of the B. & O.

GRANTSVILLE

Boy Scout Summary

The highlights of 1937 in the activities of the Grantsville troop of Boy Scouts are varied and show a mixture of work and play, service and healthful recreation, educational advantages, accomplishments and financial success.

Troop community "good turns" include: January, gathering 300 pounds of clothing for Red Cross Flood Relief; May, planting iris on Shade Hill, west of town, and decorating veterans graves for Memorial Day; December, collecting and reconditioning toys and distributing them at the community Christmas tree; sending clothing, toys, candy, fruit, pictures and books to a needy family and personally taking baskets to eight other underprivileged families in the outlying community.

Three weiner roasts and one corn roast were held throughout the year when a number of scout tests were passed.

One ton of newspapers and magazines were gathered in April which were sold to enrich the troop funds, and in May the practice of selling salt to pay dues was inaugurated. Two bake sales were held, in July and November. The troop paid all registration fees, placed "Boys' Life" in the home of every Scout, purchased three complete uniforms and financed camping and tour.

The Scoutmaster with Harry and Sonny Patton, Gordon McKenzie and Mark Schaefer attended the Boy Scout National Jamboree in Washington, D. C., July 6 to 10. July 12 to 19, a week of camping was spent at the farm of Edgar Michael, northeast of Grantsville, and in August a three-day camp was conducted at the same place.

Late in the fall, work was begun on the Scout meeting house at the rear of the scoutmaster's property which is hoped to be completed next spring. The floor was leveled up, the whole building surfaced on the inside, carpentry work done and a log-style surfacing of the exterior was started.

Officials are: troop committee, James Schaefer, chairman; Norman Patton and Roy C. Patton; scoutmaster, George W. Diefenbach; assistant scoutmaster, Clyde F. Bender; scribe, Belmont Miller; and treasurer, Harry Patton, 2nd Class Scout, who has done individual work as reporter to the Cumberland Council scout paper.

Old Home Week

The Grantsville Volunteer Fire department has placed registration books in the various business places for the purpose of registering the names of people that have moved from this community. This is being done in order that a mailing list can be impartially procured and that plans can be formulated for Old Home Week to be held at Grantsville, August 7 to 14. The Department will appreciate any cooperation in getting names and addresses in one of the books.

DEER PARK COUPLE HAVE GOLDEN WEDDING EVENT

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bobet Celebrate Anniversary Quietly

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bobet, Deer Park, 86 and 75 years old, respectively, quietly celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home on Monday, January 17.

A wedding dinner was served in their honor by their children, who came home for the occasion. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bobet and daughter Rosemary, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Bobet and daughter Carolee, all of Fairmont, West Va.; Mrs. Eva Bramme and Mrs. Harry Myrick, both of Columbus, Ohio.

The surprise of the anniversary was the receipt of a cablegram extending greetings and best wishes from Mrs. Bobet's old home in Backnang, Germany, sent by her youngest sister, Sophia.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobet were married in Keyser, West Va., by Rev. Curley, a Lutheran pastor. Two days later they moved to Deer Park, where they have remained ever since. Mr. Bobet was a lumberman. He was employed by the late Henry G. Davis during the lumbering operations carried on by that nationally known figure. Later he was employed as a carpenter and caretaker at the Deer Park Hotel. Mr. Bobet was born in Cumberland, while Mrs. Bobet was born in Germany and came to American, landing on these shores on May 20, 1882, the voyage requiring 21 days. Mrs. Bobet says she never "had a desire to return to my native land."

Mr. and Mrs. Bobet received many congratulations and gifts, among the latter a large bouquet of roses, presented by Miss Meta Robbe, of Oakland, also a native of Germany, and the members of the ladies' auxiliary of the Episcopal church of Deer Park.

MT. LAKE PARK

We certainly got some queer reactions from our beaver article last week. Don't know whether they were good or not. Most everyone seemed to think it was some sort of a joke and that we were just "kidding." Well, the only ones we were kidding were ourselves, because certainly it was a serious article, at least so far as we were concerned, so—

Nothing special going on in the Park. The Neighborhood Club seems to be the only live organization here. The members are always doing something.

SIXTY-TWO LICENSES TO WED ISSUED IN JANUARY

Number For First Month Of The Year Is Slightly Above Normal

Although the number of licenses to marry for the first ten days of January showed a decrease, the past week's total showed a return to normal.

Thirty-six permits were issued during the past week ending Monday at noon and twenty-six for the period before that, bringing the total for January thus far to sixty-two.

The first month of the year is usually rather dull in the matter of marriage license applications, as only 99 were granted during January of last year. This month's total is expected to be more than that number.

Five licenses issued were marked "don't publish," while four applicants were refused. One couple, former man and wife, decided to have another try at married life together. Another couple had to make two trips here to get their license. The girl in this case was not eighteen years of age until on January 17. When the couple came on January 14 and applied, the license was refused. They returned, however, on Monday, her birthday, and secured the permit.

Injured In Car Wreck

A. R. Martin was injured last evening about two miles west of Kingwood, W. Va., when a new Pontiac automobile which he was driving slipped on the icy highway and turned over.

Mr. Martin sustained an injury to his leg and was bruised about the face and body. The car was badly damaged. Mr. Martin and other International dealers were attending a meeting in Kingwood, W. Va., and he was brought to his home by Ross O. Decker, of Oakland.

Automobiles driven by Donald Helbig and Joseph E. Helbig, cousins, collided at the corner of Fourth and Alder streets yesterday at noon, causing damage to the vehicles but injuring none of the occupants. Donald Helbig and several other high school students were traveling south on Fourth street while Joseph Helbig was traveling east on Alder when the accident occurred. The former's car came to a halt on the sidewalk in front of the Catholic church.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith, residing in an apartment at "The Rest," and another occupant were badly bruised when the car in which they were returning home from a point in Pennsylvania skidded on the icy road and turned over last Sunday morning.

Is Sought on Cattle Theft Charge

Robert Lichliter, 34, who escaped from the Cumberland City jail on December 24, was returned there last week from Keyser, and is being held on two charges of grand larceny. Police said he was driving a truck, stolen in Fairmont, when he was arrested in Keyser. He had been in the Cumberland jail awaiting trial on charges of stealing an overcoat and dinner pail in the Baltimore and Ohio yards in that city.

Garrett county authorities are said to have been seeking Lichliter on a charge of cattle stealing near Deer Park some months ago. Police at Cumberland said Lichliter admitted serving two terms in the State penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va., and twice escaping from the prison.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS . . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

In the Baltimore Sun and Republished by special permission

A Better Choice Likely

While undoubtedly the selection of Mr. Hugo Black has diminished the honor of appointment to the Supreme Court and lessened the distinction of service thereon, it has had one beneficial effect—it has made it impossible—or, at any rate, much more difficult—for Mr. Roosevelt to appoint another man of the same general type and caliber.

In filling the new vacancy created by the retirement of Justice Sutherland, it seems certain that, though he may not raise the intellectual and character level of the court, he will not again lower it. In the first place, with perhaps one exception, there is not among the men listed as available anyone open to quite the same kind of criticism that met Mr. Black. In the second place, even if there were another such, and even though he were a Senator, his confirmation would not be easy. Senatorial courtesy was so badly abused in the case of Mr. Black that the chances are it will never be evoked again—certainly not in the case of a Supreme Court appointee—or to jam through a name to which real objection is offered.

In the third place, the state of mind of the President toward the court is not nearly so inflamed as it was last summer. At that time he was very angry. His effort to pack it with six men of his own selection had collapsed after a long and bitter fight, which had split the Democratic party and reacted very strongly against the President. Not only was the control he sought denied him but his prestige suffered through a defeat from a Congress in which he had a four-to-one party majority. While no one thinks that before the disclosures of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette Mr. Roosevelt knew that Mr. Black had been a member of the Ku Klux Klan, he hardly could have failed to have known he had been elected by Klan support, because that fact had been widely proclaimed at the time. And, of course, he knew before Mr. Black was confirmed that the latter was accused of Klan membership on the Senate floor. It seemed clear that the Black appointment was made in a vindicitive spirit and with the idea of humiliating the Court and forcing a revolting Senate to take a man it did not like and did not want.

Smce then in a series of decisions, culminating in the one delivered by Justice Sutherland himself the day before his announcement sustaining PWA loans to municipalities for lighting plants, the court has upheld much New Deal legislation. In none of these favoring opinions has Mr. Black's been the deciding voice, but they certainly leave the President with little to complain of. Freed then, of any recent reason for rancor and with his defeat nearly a year old, Mr. Roosevelt ought to be able to consider Mr. Sutherland's successor far more calmly than he did Justice Van Devanter's. Naturally, it is to be expected that he will appoint a New Dealer—but so long as he names one whose character, temperament, training and experience equipe him to sit on the bench, it is unreasonable as well as futile to protest. The thing to be feared is an appointee, named without regard for his qualifications, who will lower the dignity of the court and detract from the esteem in which it is held by the people. Having made one such appointment, while smarting under defeat, it is not likely Mr. Roosevelt will make another like it now. If nothing else, his self-interest will impel him to a more worthy choice.

The President has not been happy in his judicial appointments either to the Supreme Court or to the lower ones. The Sutherland retirement gives him a chance to redeem himself—and serve the country, too. Incidentally, it must be a rather rueful reflection for him to realize how completely unnecessary his whole court fight really was—how easily, if he had taken the advice of his friends and waited, he could have spared himself much damage and attained his "objectives" without striking a blow.

REV. ARCHIBALD MOORE DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Succumbs As He Prepares To Retire For the Night; Was A Prominent Figure In Church

Rev. Archibald Moore, D.D., retired minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, and former superintendent of the Morgantown and Wheeling District of the West Virginia Conference of that denomination, died suddenly at his home on Oak street in Oakland Monday evening as he was preparing to retire for the night. A heart attack came as he sat in his bedroom. He and Mrs. Moore had planned to leave Oakland next Monday for points in Florida to remain until early spring.

Dr. Moore, who was 76 years of age, had completed 57 years of service in the ministry and had served churches at Oakland and many points throughout the State of West Virginia. He came to Oakland as a permanent resident when he retired from active work in the church eight years ago, in October, 1929.

Dr. Moore was born on May 11, 1861, in Noble county, Ohio, and with his parents moved to Hamlin, Lincoln county, West Va., while still a lad. He was educated in the public schools of that section and later at Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware. He was married January 31, 1886, to Miss Lucy Lawrence, of Hamlin, and two years ago the couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home in Oakland.

Surviving, besides his widow, are a daughter, Mrs. Morgan Hinebaugh, of Baltimore, and two sons, Lawrence Brooks Moore, of Huntington, W. Va., and Dr. Dana T. Moore, of Sterrett, Logan county, West Va.; five grandchildren; also three sisters and one brother, Miss Nannie Moore, Miss Lowry Moore and Mrs. Mary Young, all of Huntington, W. Va., and Alonzo Moore, of Branchland, West Va.

Dr. Moore was a delegate to the General Methodist Conference in 1900 and again in 1920, and served on various commissions of the conference which sought the union of the Methodist Episcopal church with the Southern Methodist division. He was also a trustee of West Virginia Wesleyan College at Buckhannon for twenty-five years, giving up that position when he retired from active work in the church eight years ago.

He was superintendent of Wheeling District for six years; the Oakland district, and after it was combined with the Morgantown district, head of the combined Morgantown district for nine years.

He began preaching while a young man at the Flat Top Mountain Circuit, near Hamlin, then the West Hamlin circuit, Milton and Barboursville circuit; Mulden, Clarksburg, Zane street, Wheeling; Grafton, North Street, Wheeling; Mannington, St. Andrews, Parkersburg; Oakland, twice as pastor, for periods of two and three years; High Lawn, Huntington, and finally, St. Mary's.

Dr. Moore was a candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture in West Virginia in 1912, and was also a candidate for Congress while a resident of Mannington, W. Va. Fraternally, he was a member of the Masonic fraternity and Knights of Pythias.

Funeral services are to be conducted this (Thursday) afternoon at two o'clock from the home on Oak street, Dr. W. B. King, Parkersburg; Dr. Frank N. Lynch, Marietta, O.; Rev. Gregory Bleakly, Mountain Lake Park, and Rev. J. C. Buckley, Huntington, W. Va., officiating. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

An Effort Being Made To Secure CCC Buildings For Oakland

A proposition has been prepared nnd presented to WPA officials by the Mayor and City Council asking for the removal of buildings from an abandoned CCC camp to be used by the town for various purposes.

These buildings were offered to incorporated towns some time ago, but it was not known whether they were still available when the proposition by the town officials was made.

It is the plan of the authorities to use severnl of the structures on the new golf course and one or two of them on the city lot on North Third street, which could be utilized by the scout troops and other organizations as meeting places.

Providing the project is approved, WPA officials will have charge of razing the buildings and re-constructing them on town property at points designated by town officers.

Garrett Not Excluded As Cold Wave Grips Nation

Garrett county was not excluded as temperatures all over the nation fell Tuesday night in a prelude to new and colder wave. The mercury dropped rapidly on Monday night as the wind changed from east to west, sweeping out a period of enrly spring-like weather. Wednesday morning the temperature at the government station at Weber's showed three above zero.

The fringe of a storm which swept northern states brushed across the entire State of Maryland with general high winds. Thunder and lightning accompanied the storm here Monday evening, while there were heavy snow flurries on Tuesday nnd Tuesday evening and far into the night.

MISS DILLON RECEIVES HER MASTER'S DEGREE

Spends Last Four Summers In New York University

Miss Alverta Dillon, instructor in Oakland high school, completed the requirements for a Master of Arts degree in Natural Science last summer. She has just received word that she had been awarded the degree.

This degree was earned by attending summer school at Columbia University, New York City, for six weeks every year from 1933 to 1937. Columbia University is one of the outstanding schools in the country, where many teachers go for graduate work. There she studied bacteriology, social hygiene, physiology and geometry among other things. The work was culminated by a four-weeks' field course in Lakeville, Connecticut, last summer.

Miss Dillon attended high school in Accident, Md., after completing her elementary grades in Washington, D. C. She then went to Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., and majored in biology, general science, English and mathematics. This is her sixth year in Oakland high school as an instructor in algebra and biology to freshmen and sophomores.

Senior Classes Enjoy Talk By Neil C. Fraley

On Thursday, January 20, at ten o'clock, Mr. Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney for Garrett county, spoke to the members of the senior class on the system of courts in Maryland.

Mr. Fraley used a murder as an example of a criminal offense and took the case from the time of the commission of the crime through the preliminary hearing, grand jury and Circuit Court to the rendition of the verdict. He explained first degree murder, second degree murder and manslaughter and the penalties acompanying each. Mr. Fraley also differentiated between criminal cases, civil cases and equity cases.

He elucidated for us the rather complicated system of law-enforcing officials of the State. He told us that in each county there is a state's attorney, a sheriff and a deputy sheriff; in each election district there is a magistrate, or a justice of the peace, as he is commonly known. Mr. Fraley also explained the system of judges of the Circuit Court.

Hunter Is Fined

PEOPLE WILL CONTRIBUTE FOR CONTROL OF CANCER

Containers to Be Placed In Public Places Saturday, January 29

People of Oakland and nearby communities will have an opportunity to contribute toward the control of cancer on Saturday, January 29, when members of the Oakland Civic Club are placing containers in the banks, stores, and other public places of Oakland to receive contributions.

January 31 has been set aside as a State-wide cancer control fund day, but the day will be observed locally on January 29. A program has been arranged by the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs over the Columbia Broadcasting system, on Monday, January 31, at 3:00 p. m., which may he heard over WJSV, Washington, and WCAO, Baltimore.

The number of patients seeking aid through clinics at the University of Maryland is increasing by leaps and bounds, according to members of the Civic Club committee in charge of this project, coming from nearly every county in the State. The number of patients treated since 1931 has been 12,546.

Surgery, radium, x-ray and diathermy are methods used to combat cancer. Since inception of the department 1320 radium treatments have been given, and one of the great difficulties is that only one patient can be treated at a time, as the supply of radium is very limited.

It was stated that the most urgent need is a more adequate supply of radium so that the cancer patient can be taken care of promptly.

Funds raised will be used to purchase radium for the clinics connected with the University of Maryland and Memorial Hospital, in Cumberland.

At the regular meeting of the local Civic Club on Tuesday afternoon, held in the home economics building of the high school, Dr. N. I. Broadwater and Dr. E. I. Baumgartner spoke on cancer. Dr. Broadwater spoke of its treatment and Dr. Baumgartner spoke of its cause and diagnosis.

Approximately twenty members and guests were present. Tea was served at the conclusion of the meeting.

The Birthday Ball, to raise funds to fight infantile paralysis, will be held on Friday, February 4, at the William-James Hotel. Dancing will be from 9 to 1, and Reed Raines and his orchestra will furnish the music.

To Tell Commissioners Of Needs At Elementary School

A committee composed of the instructors at the school has invited a number of interested citizens to take part in the meeting. Listed among the facilities needed are additional class rooms, an auditorium and other modernized conveniences.

A letter signed bv all teachers sent interested patrons states: "Our boys and girls should be given the best educational opportunities in a modernized school building for modern social demands."

Miss Dorothy Edwards Becomes Bride of James C. Frame

On Friday morning, January 21, at ten o'clock, the marriage of Miss Dorothy Edwards to Mr. James C. Frame was solemnized. The ceremony was performed hy Reverend W. S. Patterson at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Ashby, Jr., in Oakland.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate families and a few invited guests. Miss Crystal Elliott, of Oakland, and Lindsay Frame, of Columbus, Ohio, brother of Mr. Frame, were the attendants.

The bride was attired in brown crepe with green accessories, and wore a corsage of Talisman roses. Miss Elliott wore a raspberry crepe dress. Her corsage also was of roses.

Mrs. Frame is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. U. Edwards, of Grantsville. She is a grnduate of Grantsville High school, class of 1929, and also of West Virginia University at Morgantown, where she received her Bachelor of Science degree. She also studied elocution. Mrs. Frame has been an instructor of physical education, English and science in Oakland High school for the past three years.

Mr. Frame, formerly of Fairmont, W. Va., is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Frame, of Mt. Lake Park. He attended Ohio State university and for three years was a member of the staff of the Garrett County Welfare Board of Oakland. He now is director of Public Assistance in Preston county, and is stationed at Kingwood.

A reception followed the wedding. Mrs. Frame will continue teaching.

Mrs. Ernest Townshend went to Cumberland this afternoon, called to that city by the illness of her son Singleton Townshend, who was taken to a hospital in Cumberland this morning. He will likely undergo an operation.

OAKLAND BUSY SATURDAY —AND ALMOST PEACEFUL

With Few Exceptions Residents Act Like Normal Individuals

Oakland was as busy as usual on Saturday night of last week and almost as peaceful--but not quite.

For instance, Mrs. Julia Shaffer, Sixth and Alder streets, was much startled when a bullet, evidently fired from a revolver or high-powered rifle, entered a room in which she was sitting. It had come through a kitchen window and through a door into the room and stopped several feet from her, but it was sufficient cause for a call to her son, Edward A. Shaffer, president of the City Council, at the fire house and also to notify county officers.

Investigation finally brought the officers to the conclusion that the bullet must have been a stray shot, as the path of the bullet indicated that no person standing on the ground near the house could have fired it.

Then, too, someone was caught "fishing" out of season in front of the Third Street Market. A man from Mountain Lake Park tucked a big flounder under his coat and started away, only to run into Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley, who had been watching. Harvey Mussard, proprietor, decided not to prosecute, since the man returned the fish and paid a bill of $1.30 for groceries bought previously.

Two young men of town with ideas and not money, wanted to take a joy ride in an uncle's car. They were caught extracting a little gasoline via the hose route, from a car in front of Mrs. Mary Stanton's home on Second street. They were told to go to their homes and report to their parents. They will be given a hearing today in a Justice of the Peace court.

Somebody was also stomping about in the vacant apartment on the second floor of Henry McComas' home on Second street, occupied on the lower floor by Mr. and Mrs. Henry McComas and children. When Henry went to investigate, the person made a hasty exit via the back stairway and disappeared down the alley. Nothing was reported missing.

Then, in addition, there was a woman on West Pennington street who was somewhat "under the weather." After rousing the people of the neighborhood and causing a general disturbance someone asked what she wanted. "I want Liberty street," she cride. She was only four blocks out of the way at that. After resting in jail the balance of the night it is presumed she found Liberty street when liberated the following morning.

As far as can be learned the rest of the citizens behaved themselves as normal individuals, staying at home, tending to their business, watching other people tend to theirs, or just roamin' around.

Mt. Lake-Loch Lynn Group Of Homemakers Have Meeting

The Mt. Lake-Loch Lynn Homemakers club held its regular meeting in the Aid Hall. Mrs. Olga Elliott was appointed current events reporter; Mrs. Pearle Sweitzer, music chairman and Mrs. Zelda Gnegy, reading chairman.

Mrs. Sweitzer gave an account of "Gone With The Wind," and Mrs. Gnegy discussed "Highland Heritage." New members welcomed were Mrs. Mark Moon and Mrs. Emmett Merat. Miss Ethel Turney was a visitor.

At a special meeting Tuesday Mrs. Kermit Glotfelty, county council president, discussed "Better Family Living," and outlined the program and goals to be accomplished in 1938. Mrs. O. P. Jones, president of the Woman's International League for Peace and Freedom, spoke concerning the peace movement. Mrs. Gnegy told of the widespread reading interest in all clubs. Mrs. Delma Arnold, music chairman, gave suggestions to use in home and club. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the business session.

Teacher Added To Faculty

Another teacher was added to the staff of the Oakland elementary school this week, Miss Anna Louise Connelly, of Monessen, Pa., having been appointed instructor in English for students of the sixth and seventh grades.

With the addition of Miss Connolly to the faculty, the school has now thirteen instructors, two of whom, however, give only part-time instuction in music and art.

POSES AS G-MAN WHILE A GUEST AT A LOCAL HOTEL BUT IS NOW UNDER ARREST ON CAR THEFT CHARGES

Leaves the William-James Hotel Forgetting To Pay Two Weeks' Bill; Manager's Car Also Goes

ARREST MADE IN FLORIDA

Posing as a G-Man while staying in Oakland at the William-James Hotel, Robert K. Barnett, of Philadelphia, is now under arrest at Jacksonville, Florida, the man being apprehended by officers of the Department of Justice, whom he impersonated.

Barnett is charged with the theft of Jack Towler's Oldsmobile sedan and its transportation to another State, the theft occurring about ten days ago. Barnett also left the hotel without paying a two-weeks' board bill. Mr. Towler was notified by the Department of Justice in Washington on Tuesday that his car had been recovered and Barnett jailed in the Southern city.

According to the story of Jack Towler, manager of the hotel, Barnett had been a guest there earlier in the fall, had paid for everything before leaving and appeared to be a respectable person. While he did not state his "business" to Mr. Towler upon either visit here, he told several employes at the hotel that he was a G-Man and was working on a case in West Virginia.

Barnett left the hotel on Monday, January 17, without paying his bill, said Mr. Towler, and it was not until Wednesday that the car was missed from the garage, there being no occasion to use it prior to that time. County officials were notified and also G. A. Fraley, whose company carried insurance on the automobile.

Finding Barnett's Philadelphia address Mr. Towler contacted his mother who admitted her son had "cost her a lot of money and had been in trouble" on previous occasions. A call from Barnett's mother a short time later informed Mr. Towler that she had just heard from her son in Jacksonville, Florida, where he said he had employment. The fact that Barnett had crossed State lines with the automobile gave the Federal Bureau of Investigation jurisdiction in the case and it wasn't long until the car was recovered and Barnett arrested.

The car has not yet been returned to Oakland, and it is not known as to where Barnett will stand trial.

Mr. Towler said this case was one of the very few attempts made to "skip" a hotel bill since he has been in charge of the local house.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Bringing People to Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity's Concern for Spiritual Health.

Man is so constantly concerned with his physical nature, the needs and interests of his body, that he is prone to forget that there is within him a spiritual nature which is in fact his real self. The body which is the temporary dwelling place of the soul is most important—but relatively it is of but slight significance when considered alongside of the spiritual life of man.

Our lesson presents the Lord Jesus as being rightly concerned with the needs of the palsied man's body, but his act of healing was incidental to the infinitely more important act of forgiving his sins. Consider him, for his was indeed

I. A Hopeless Case (v. 3).

Incurably afflicted and helpless physically, but far more deeply afflicted spiritually was this poor man, for he was still in his sins. No man was able to heal his body, only God could heal his soul. He was indeed hopeless until he met Jesus. He knows no hopeless case. With God all things are possible, and Jesus Christ is God.

We are even as was this man, for without God we too are without hope (Eph. 2:12). Let us face the facts and admit that unless we are saved through Christ we are eternally and completely lost.

II. Impossible Conditions (vv. 1, 2, 4).

We say that the circumstances surrounding this man were such as to make it impossible for him to reach the Lord, for so they would have been apart from the spirit of divine urgency which impelled his helpers to cut through every excuse and brush aside every hindrance.

"Where there's a will there's a way." Had these men been controlled by convention they would never have put their friend at the feet of Jesus. But note that before taking up the roof they tried the door. They tried to use the proper entry, but it was blocked. It often is—sometimes by customs, sometimes by religious ceremony, often by vain philosophy.

III. Immediate Conversion (v. 5).

At once Jesus sees their faith and forgives the man his sins. God always welcomes and honors faith. Note that Jesus—who as God had the power to forgive sins—immediately cleansed him from all unrighteousness.

This man's affliction proved to be his greatest blessing. If he had not had the palsy he might never have met the Lord. Suffering properly borne may be a means of grace.

IV. Secret Criticism (vv. 6, 7).

What a serious thought it is that the unspoken word which we think we have hidden away in the heart or mind is known to God. "All things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do" (Heb. 4:13). "There is nothing hid that shall not be known" (Luke 12:2). What does the Lord see when he looks into your heart and mine?

Their theology was faultless—their reasoning was logical, but their premise was wrong. They were right in saying that only God could forgive sin. But they were wrong in assuming that Jesus was not God, and therefore a blasphemer.

V. Miraculous Confirmation (vv. 8-12).

Forgiving sins was harder than healing the body, but these enemies of Jesus lived so much in the realm of the physical that they missed that important truth. He meets the challenge of their unbelief by going into their own limited field of observation. They were not able to test the effectiveness of His forgiveness of sins. They did not believe in Him, hence they would not receive it by faith.

Let us remember that the incident took place in the early days of our Lord's ministry. While we do not condone their hostility to the tender and loving service of our Lord to humanity, we can understand their slowness to accept his claims to divine power. In our day we have no such excuse, for all gospel history is available to us. God help us that we may not sit in the seat of the scornful and "demand a sign" before we will believe.

Harmonies of Nature

There are but few souls who perceive how far the harmonies of Nature resound in accordance with ours, and how much the great whole is but one Aeolian harp with longer or shorter strings, slower and quicker movements, breathed upon by the Divine Being before Whom it rests.—Richter.

Pure Heart and Clear Mind

Give me the pure heart, O Lord, to feel Thy presence near me. Give me the clear mind that undersatnds.

B & O's operating vice-president, Charles W. Galloway, drives the engine first run on the same railroad by his grandfather, William Galloway, just a century ago, and takes Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, for a ride. The 1837 locomotive is in "Wells Fargo," Paramount's forthcoming epic of American transportation, in which Frances Dee, granddaughter of B & O conductor, and Joel McCrea, are starred. Baltimore society girls in the picture are, left to right (on tender) Miss Mary Beall Carter, Mrs. Alfred Brumley; (on ground) Miss Nell Hurlock, Mrs. E. Kingdon Hurlock and Mrs. Fred Stuart.

As Others See Us

"As Others See Us" seems to be an apt caption for comment which was printed some time ago in the London, England, Sphere. As it comes to this newspapeer, it is headed "Just Foolishness." Whichever title you prefer, here it is:

The United States contains 6 per cent of the world's area and 7 per cent of its population. It normally consumes 48 per cent of its tin, 56 per cent of its rubber, 21 percent of its sugar, 72 per cent of its silk, 36 per cent of its coal, 42 per cent of its pig iron, 47 per cent of its copper and 69 per cent of its petroleum.

The United States operates 60 per cent of the world's telephone and telagraph facilities, owns 80 per cent of the motor cars in use, operates 33 per cent of the railroads. It produces 70 per cent of the oil, 60 per cent of the wheat and cotton, 50 per cent of the copper and pig iron and 40 per cent of the lead and coal output of the globe.

The United States possesses almost $11,000,000,000 in gold, or nearly half of the world's monetary metal. It has two-thirds of civilization's banking resources. The purchasing power of the population is greater than that of the 500,000,000 people in Europe and much larger than that of the more than a billion Asiatics.

Responsible leadership which cannot translate such a bulging economy into assured prosperity is destitute of capacity. But pompous statesmen, looking over the estate, declare that the methods by which it was created are all wrong, ought to be abandoned, must be discarded, that the time has come to substitute political management for individual initiative and supervision.

There is only one way to characterize that proposal—it is just damn foolishness.

Perhaps we in the United States should more often take stock of the marvelous progress which our comparatively young nation has made and of the American system under this progress has been made possible.

Rush Holt, West Virginia Senator and Democratic critic of the New Deal, has recently sent out a letter in which he says it is time to clean up the whole relief program and give money to those who need it.

He takes from the record facts about the National Emergency Council, which he says has its principal work to clip newspapers and inform officials about the public attitude. This is done, he says, by individuals at high salaries from money appropriated to feed the hungry.

Since 1933, $3,997,932 has been appropriated. Holt listed salaries of officials from one at $8,500 to fifty-two at $1080, including 416 employes. The total salaries amounted to $898,960. Eighteen got $6,00 each; fifteen got $4,500 each; eleven got $3,600 each, and so on down the line.

As Holt said in his letter, "That much money would feed many hungry people."

* * *

From the replies that the Cumberland Times got for a "Want Ad" for a truck driver (161), it is apparent that in spite of Roosevelt's properity (?) there are still many persons hungry and who want work. There are still one hundred and sixty truck drivers out of work at least.

CHANGES MADE IN SPORTS RULES FOR TRACK MEET

Teachers Attend Meeting And Discuss Changes In Rules

At a meeting of teachers interested in athletics in Oakland high school on Monday, January 17, Mr. Thomas C. Ferguson, State Supervisor of Physical Education, explained the changes in the program of events for the annual track and field day and in the new badge test procedure.

Mr. Ferguson said he believed that the above program was more sound educationally than the programs heretofore and that any events that might be harmful to the participants have been removed.

Until this year the badge tests for boys and girls have been given under the supervision of the P. A. L. This year, the State Department is entirely separate from the P. A. L., and we will use our own State badge tests. Credit will be given for any badges won under the P. A. L. and the contestant will try for the State badge equivalent to the next P. A. L. badge he would try for.

Following is a table giving the equivalence of the State badges to the P. A. L. badges:

Bronze	State Badge I
Silver	State Badge II
Gold	State Badge III
Super Gold A	State Badge IV
Super Gold B	State Badge V
Super Gold C	State Badge VI
Super Gold D	State Badge VII
Super Gold E	State Badge VIII

Anyone who has not won a badge may start with Test I. A contestant will have at least three trials to earn his badge, but he can earn only one a year.

Badge tests will be started as soon as possible in this school and it is hoped that every pupil will want to earn a badge.

LICENSES FOR JANUARY NEAR ONE HUNDRED MARK

Ninety-Three Already Issued; 31 Granted During Past Week

Marriage licenses granted at the Garrett county Court House during January have already neared the one hundred mark, with almost a certainty that the total will go over the century before the period ends. Last year during the month of January 99 were issued.

Thirty-one licenses were issued during the past week ending Monday at noon, bringing the total to 93 for the month. Fourteen of these were issued on Saturday. Three licenses issued were marked "don't publish." One couple, former husband and wife, decided on a second attempt at married life.

GAINS AND LOSSES IN 1937 STATE HEALTH CONDITIONS

Nearly 5,500 More Births Than Deaths Were Recorded

Health conditions in Maryland in 1937 were generally favorable, as indicated by a report issued by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, containing the provisional figures for births and deaths in the State during the year. There were nearly 5,500 more births than deaths. There were 27,636 births reported in 1937 nnd 22,090 deaths in comparison with 26,542 births and 21,956 deaths in 1936. Of the births reported in 1937, 21,660 were white and 5,976 colored. Of the deaths, 17,092 were white and 4,998 colored. Infant deaths dropped from 1,842 in 1936 to 1,704 in 1937.

The births reported in 1937 were divided as follows: 12,383 in Baltimore City, 9,279 white and 3,104 colored; 15,253 in the counties, 12,381 white and 2,872 colored. There were 11,427 deaths in Baltimore City, 8,593 white and 2,834 colored, and 10,663 in the counties, of which 8,499 were white and 2,164 colored.

Considering the births and deaths in relation to population, the report shows that in 1937 there were approximately 16 births and 12 deaths in each thousand of the population. There were 15 births and 12 deaths in each thousand of the white population and 20 births and 17 deaths in each thousand of the colored population.

Of the 22,090 deaths reported in 1937 in the State, 1,704, or 7.7 per cent —one in every 13—were babies under a year old. The infant deaths were distributed as follows: Total in the State, 1,093 white and 611 colored; Baltimore City 401 white and 270 colored; total counties, 692 white and 341 colored. Over half of the infant deaths—867—occurred in the first month of life.

What are listed as the degenrative diseases—usually occurring in middle age, or in the older age groups—were responsible for 12,110 deaths or over half of the total, an increase of more than 200 over the total for the same causes in 1936. The deaths in this group for the two years were as follows: Heart disease, 5,268 in 1937 and 5,069 in 1936; nephritis, 2,328 in 1937 and 2,364 in 1936; cancer, 2,257 in 1937 and 2,149 in 1936; cerebral hemorrhage, 1,815 in 1937 and 1,839 in 1936; diabetes, 442 in 1937 and 459 in 1936.

Deaths from typhoid fever rose from 27 in 1936 to 31 in 1937. There were more deaths from influenza—291—in comparison with 209 in 1936—but there were decreases in pneumonia, tuberculosis and diphtheria. There were 1,827 deaths from pneumonia, 1,401 from tuberculosis and 22 from diphtheria in comparison with 1,834 from pneumonia, 1,426 from tuberculosis and 25 from diphtheria in 1936.

With a tax collector stationed at every cocktail party this source alone should bring the treasury ample funds with which to finance all of the President's appropriations.

A BOX OF PIN-HEAD TAX

By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

RIGHT now the government seems to be taxing everything, including our patience.

There once was a day when, if you heard the word "tax," you thought of a small box full of little demi-tasse nails which bit you when you tried to pull one out to mend the window shade.

Now when anyone asks if you have some tacks in the house, you rush for the desk drawer and pull out a handful of final notices.

Of course, these only represent the sort of taxes which come to visit you in the home, and range in size from the big, burly Federal Income Tax Return counterpain, down to the little itsy-bitsy two-dollar poll-tax. Just why I should ever receive the latter, I have never understood. Poll-tax indeed, when I've never even priced a parrot, much less kept one.

I pay my dog tax, though. They call it a license, of course, but it's a tax on my pocketbook no matter what they call it. I suppose the tax on shoes is the real dog tax . . . oh well, that one is at least my own, poor thing!

The first fast one the government put over on us in a big way, was that intelligence test, the income tax, and what a crossword puzzle that turned out to be! At first it wasn't so popular, but now the fifteenth of March has become the fixed date for the annual Munchausen contest, and everybody goes at it in a spirit of catch-as-catch-can and rather likes it. They say "It's fun to be fooled" but it's even more fun trying to fool the Collector of Eternal Revenue.

The states, many of them being a lot of old copy-cats, got out a second edition of the above mentioned. The State Income Tax may be a state affair but it is also that in the plural—a state of affairs:—and if you don't believe me, just wait until you have to pay yours this year!

The whole country is now like midtown New York at midday: taxis, taxis everywhere and you can't make a move in any direction without running into 'em.

Of course the gas tax is a good thing in a way because it keeps a lot of people in their homes. But it's a shame it don't apply on the floor of the house of representatives.

While as for this sales tax they have got in a few states such as California and New York, well, it's funny how people are. When the government allowed that 2¾ per cent beer was legal, the folks kicked because it wasn't strong enough. But a 2 per cent sales tax is so strong they claim it knocks 'em for a headache. Oh well, it takes all kinds of people to make a world and then what have you got?

The beauty who is getting all the attention just now is the inheritance tax. Around where I live, they call it the New Inheritance Tax. Well, I must say that years ago, all I inherited from my Uncle Bill was a lot of taxes, so if they think inheritance taxes are something new, they are goofy! I admit there was a farm attached—quite heavily attached—to the taxes Uncle left me, but it was so well snowed under that by the time I dug off the last line I had to slap it back again to keep the roof from caving in from age. If the inheritance tax goes far enough, we won't even be sure of our own tombstones.

Ah well, taxes never come single in spite of all Henry George said. The only people they really help are the newspaper cartoonists. With the rest of the population they have given rise to a lot of prejudice. Why, my brother, for instance, don't like to be known as a taxi-driver, because he's afraid people will think he's a revenue man.

Now I am not narrow-minded or unpatriotic about this tax business. I realize the poor starving politicians cannot be allowed to go on home relief. Probably their homes would have no sense of relief at all if they stayed home all day. Also I am perfectly well aware that the office holders have a short season of it, even four years isn't much, so naturally they have to provide for their lean years while they can, or some day they might have to go to work.

I know, too, that the Government Machinery has to be supported although why it can't come down to earth instead, is beyond me. Oh heck, what I mean is, I know that taxes are necessary for the Public Weal. Or maybe it's the Public Veal—you know, killing the fat-head calf. Aw, peppermints; I'll quit trying to be highbrow about it and admit that all I know is you've got to pay 'em or else—

So as long as taxes have got to be paid, why not make them popular? Nobody minds giving up their dough for something which gives them a thrill—why, they will even give up other people's dough for that. So in my simple feminine fashion, I propose that we quit taxing necessary things and tax according to what is known as the Putnam Plan.

To begin with, this plan would take the tax off of theater tickets and put it on to wives who take singing lessons at home. Don't cheer, boys, this won't stop them.

The plan says further that there shall be a tax on every spectator at all sensational divorce or murder trials.

All malicious gossip shall be taxed at a rate of 20 per cent of the net income of the gossiper. And a tax of 5 per cent of the gross income of the gossipee.

All smoking room stories over one year old shall be taxed at the rate of 50 cents per repetition. With a tax-collector stationed at every cocktail party this source alone should bring the treasury ample funds with which to finance all of the President's appropriations and leave enough over for a bromo seltzer.

Practical jokes shall be taxed on a sliding scale. That gives me an idea! Can you just picture a fat woman stepping onto a sliding scale? Hnh! So you won't laugh, eh? Oh well, what do I care? But this is a rich idea, this taxing practical jokes. And what I really started out to say was, the jokes would be taxed in proportion to their cleverness and originality. The dumber the joke, the higher the tax. Joe Cook, for instance, would get off practically free.

The list of properly taxable things could go on practically endlessly, beginning with visits from mothers-in-law and ending with buttered parsnips, and such a tax list, far from making Mr. Taxpayer, the Forgotten Man and Mr. Average Citizen feel even more gloomy than they look from their pictures in the papers—well, far from making them feel oppressed, it would have them practically laughing out loud.

Nobody could object to seeing a guy pay a tax on a stale egg, or shell out ten bucks to the government for having said "Olive Oil" or "Abyssinia" as farewell to a pal.

In fact, this Perfect Putnam Plan if carried out properly, might even result in the happy populace digging up the tax money for their taxed brethren voluntarily, with song and dance, instead of giving the government a song and dance about not being able to pay at all, the why a lot of them do now.

But all this depends on my plan being carried out, and I don't mean feet first, either.

Nice Offers Fiscal Roundup Including Items Not Listed In Regular Biennial State Budget

Governor Cites Impossibility Of Reflecting Certain Operations In Official Estimates, And Tabulates Them For Maryland Public

From time to time Governor Nice has discussed aspects of the State government under his administration in the columns of various newspapers of the State. In the accompanying article he summarizes for the people of Maryland the State's operating expenses.

By HARRY W. NICE
Governor of Maryland

Only one with a deficient or obstinate personality does not profit by constructive criticism and does not give serious consideration to well-meant suggestion.

During the last session of the Legislature there was much said about the State budget which I submitted for the consideration of the General Assembly. A large part of this loose talk was partisan and political and not worthy of serious consideration, but out of the plethora of discussion there are one or two suggestions justifying constructive action. The one of these that has given me cause for considerable thought is the statement that the Maryland State budget has not reflected for official or public scrutiny the entire fiscal program of the operations of the State administration.

Explains Requirements

This is true. It cannot be otherwise under the constitutional requirements for compiling our State budget. The Constituion of Maryland requires that a budget shall be submitted including all appropriations for a certain two-year period as established by law. At the time the budget was submitted to the Legislature it could not include any appropriations to the State fund for aid to the needy, as the entire relief program and the taxes in support thereof terminated on March 31, 1937. Consequently, this made the relief program non-existent for the fiscal years 1938 and 1939, and if reenacted it of necessity became a matter of supplementary appropriation outside the State budget.

Also, when the present budget was compiled, although the act of establishing the State Unemployment Compensation Division was passed and became law December 17, 1936, it was impossible to incorporate any reliable setup for this program, as it would take, and did take, months of organization and negotiations with the Federal Government to bring the State unemployment compensation program into working form. It was thus necessary to postpone the budgeting of this newly inaugurated State department until such time as it had become a working unit possible of being programmed.

Cites Federal Funds

Furthermore, it is never feasible at the time the State budget is submitted to the Legislature to include estimates of Federal allotments supplementing State appropriations, and this was the more definitely impossible last year, as the Congress of the United States was approaching what was considered to be, and what did turn out to be, a very controversial session and no one knew what Federal appropriations would be forthcoming.

In the light of these facts it has been impossible under the present setup for the State budget proper to include all of the proposed administrative activities and the appropriations for them made by the General Assembly of Maryland. But while this is true, I have concluded that there should be some compilation of the entire fiscal program made up for the information of those who are interested in the State's finances, and I am therefore introducing a change from previous practice in order to accomplish this.

To Try New System

Heretofore, there has been a reprint made of the State budget compiled by the Budget Director with the distribution of certain allocations provided for by the law. I believe that it would be of distinct advantage to bring together in that volume the entire fiscal program of the State government, in so far as it can be collected, comprising the State budget as Part I, the relief setup as Part II, the unemployment insurance program as Part III, and, lastly, a summary of the appropriations from the various bond issues authorized by the last General Assembly.

At the same time, in the absence of any legal restrictions as to what shall or shall not be promulgated in such a compilation, I feel that it will be of interest to the citizens of the State to have some explanatory notes ntroduced and to know approximately what Federal funds are being administered in addition to the State appropriations.

In this volume there will be a general summary of operating funds administered by our State departments and agencies. (Table I, appended). Such a summary follows. In addition thereto there are other expenditures of public funds not appropriated by our Legislature and not administered, in the strictest sense of the word, by our State agencies, but which enter the State program because of an intimate correlation to the State appropriations. These auxiliary funds are expended by the Federal and other agencies contributing them with the knowledge and cooperation of our State governmental departments. A listing of these also, as far as it has been feasible, is appended. (Table II, appended).

Totals Noted

It will be noted that the expenditures of budgetary State funds proper, including restoration to the operating State Roads funds from the State bond issue and the State bonds for the teachers' retirement system, total, as estimated for the fiscal year 1938, $37,669,805.90, while the total funds administered by the State agencies for operating expenses of the State government, including the extra-budgetary items of Federal funds, public relief and unemployment compensation and other dedicated and trust funds, are $60,957,559.34.

Appended is a comparative table (Table III, appended) of these two listings and some very interesting comparisons are thereby produced. In the first column is the listing of budgetary funds proper and in column two is a total expenditure of funds, both budgetary and supplemental, administered by State agencies.

It will be noted in connection with the last table that the State budget proper, representing the regular or usual activities of the State administration, is only $150,000 larger than it was in 1932, even in the face of large increases in departmental functions and a natural growth in population to be served, and the total, including extra-budgetary funds due to public relief and other sovial welfare activities, is less than three years ago when Federal relief appropriations were at their height. Yet we are now operating old-age assistance and unemployment compensation, not in the fiscal setup before 1935.

Cites Welfare Trend

These figures are of vital interest to the people of Maryland and are a direct reflection of the present trend toward social welfare and the care of the State's indigent, which over the last few years have become firmly established as governmental functions.

It is only fair that the people should realize what these increments in governmental activity are costing them, and, while I believe in a large part of these new activities in principle, the people of Maryland should be informed of what these added functions of government represent in dollars and cents.

It is hoped that thus bringing together a summary of all the various activities of the State reflected in their fiscal significance will be of use to those who are interested as citizens and students of Maryland's fiscal problems and to those who are charged with the responsibility of shaping her financial policies. It is for this reason that I am presenting these fiscal matters in this form.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by special permission.

Strange Palace Politics

As said in this place the other day, the extraordinary way in which the politics of the Administration has recently developed, is as confusing to many as the simultaneous White House advocacy of obviously conflicting economic policies. If there is a way of reconciling with reason what is now going on politically it would be interesting to have it presented.

* * *

For example, there is the amazing spectacle of the President, quite clearly without the approval, acquiescence or cooperation (which certainly seems essential) of his political generalissimo and close personal friend, Mr James A. Farley, backing the New York Gubernatorial aspirations of one of his radical young friends and subordinates—Mr. Robert H. Jackson. As has been pointed out, it is obvious that if Mr. Jackson should be nominated and elected Governor of New York in 1938, he would have an advantage over other aspirants for the Presidential nomination in 1940. This fact has greatly pained the other aspirants, some of whom are not exactly suffering in silence. What grieves them most is the inescapable nature of the convicition that Mr. Roosevelt has picked Mr. Jackson as his successor.

* * *

Upon no other theory can they explain the situation. They know, of course, that if it were not for the Roosevelt backing, Mr. Jackson would not have a ghost of a chance for Governor; and they know—because there was never anything more obvious—that where the feverish Mr. Jackson is not thickly covered with a Gubernatorial rash he is all broken out with Presidential bee stings. As an amused observer said the other day, "He thinks he's in now." It isn't necessary to tell the politicians what this all adds up to. They know and not many of them like it. For one thing, it is altogether too hand-picked to be palatable. For another, young Mr. Jackson is just a trifle "too unanimous," as they say on the Eastern Shore of Maryland. For another, Mr. Farley has far too many friends in the Administration and out of it, in the Democratic party generally and in New York particularly, for them not to feel some resentment (not, it is fair to say, in the least fostered by him) at what seems an inexplicable elimination.

* * *

No word of complaint has come from Mr. Farley and probably none will ever come. He has been—and is—far more loyal to Mr. Roosevelt than all the Jacksons, Corcorans, Cohens and other Brain Trusters combined, some of whom have lost few opportunities for his diparagement. He has served the President more faithfully and done him infinitely greater good. He has taken a tremendous lot of journalistic punishment with a smile, urbanely accepting blame which was not really his, built up a great political organization which only he knows how to make function fully. In other words, wholly aside from his Cabinet position, Mr. Farley is an outstanding Administration figure, and the idea of ignoring him on any White House political policy—particularly one connected with his own State of New York, where he still happens to be Democratic State chairman—certainly seems absurd.

* * *

Yet, amazing as it seems, to some extent at least, that—or something pretty close to that—has happened in connection with the Jackson candidacy. It may be that Mr. Farley cannot afford, as his friends assert, to make the fight for on even take the Governorship, much as he would like it. Perhaps the President knows that. Perhaps Mr. Farley has not been pushed aside. None the less, his closest friends know that he was not consulted about the Jackson candidacy and is not a part of that movement. It was reported that he had told Mr. Roosevelt that Mr. Jackson is "all right with me" and that he would "go along." But that happens not to be true. He has let his friends in New York politics—including other aspirants—know that he is not committed and furthermore is not going to be committed.

* * *

It is a curious state of affairs. That the President and his Postmaster General, who is not only national chairman but State chairman, too, should not see eye to eye in as vital a political matter as the New York Governorship is almost incredible. Yet, it is obvious on the surface that such is the fact—and beneath the surface it is more obvious and more interesting. Clearly, the Jackson hope is that soon or late the President will put pressure enough on Mr. Farley to swing him into line. Perhaps he can and will. And perhaps Mr. Farley, loyal though he is, just won't be swung. Stranger things have happened—and not many observers think Mr. Jackson, hot favorite of the President, and of Mr. Dubinski, the labor leader, as it is claimed he is, can be nominated in a Democratic convention without the Farley organization. Despite the new mark of Presidentitl esteem in making Mr. Jackson Solicitor General in the place of Mr. Reed, close observers believe his candidacy has fallen a little flat. Some think it will continue flat and that soon or late the White House interest in Mr. Jackson's candidacy will evaporate to the point where it can be asserted it never existed.

CONTAGIOUS SICKNESS ON INCREASE IN PAST YEAR

There Were 56,123 Cases Of Notifiable Diseases In State During 1937

Provisional figures issued by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, show an increase in the total cases of sickness in the State from contagious or infectious diseases in 1937 over the number reported in 1936.

There were 56,123 cases of "notifiable" diseases reported to the State Department of Health in 1937 in comparison with 47,261 in 1936; 39,487 in 1935; 63,089 in 1934, and 39,781 in 1933. The total in 1937 was divided between Baltimore City and the counties as follows: Baltimore City, 35,185; the counties, 20,938.

The increase in 1937 was due largely to an epidemic of measles during the first five months of the year and to a flare of influenza during January and February. There were over 4,500 more cases of measles reported than in 1936, a total of 12,225 cases in 1937 in comparison with 7,640 in 1936, and nearly 2,600 more of influenza, a total of 3,442 as compared to 846 cases in 1936. Other increases over the totals for 1936 were as follows: Whooping cough, from 4,337 cases in 1936 to 5,061 in 1937; the venereal diseases, from 12,390 to 13,539; and tuberculosis from 2,766 to 3,191. Typhoid with 327 cases reported had a less favorable record than in 1936 when 273 cases occurred; poliomylitis with 82 cases in comparison with 38, in 1936, reflected the nation-wide increase. Scarlet fever dropped from 2,727 cases in 1936, to 2,057 in 1937.

Forty-two cases of undulent fever, 37 of Rocky Mountain spotted fever and typhus, 2? of tularemia (rabbit fever), 17 of malaria, and 182 of Vincent's angina (trench mouth), were reported in 1937 in comparison with 41 of undulant fever, 33 of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, 31 of tularemia, 28 of malaria and 142 of Vincent's angina in 1936.

Over nine-tenths of the total sickness from "catching" diseases reported in Maryland in 1937 was divided among three groups of diseases. The so-called children's diseases—measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough, diphtheria (510 cases) mumps, and chicken pox were charged with more than 50 per cent of the total. The venereal diseases, including 9,941 cases of syphilis, were responsible for over 24 per cent. The pneumonias with 3,369 cases reported, tuberculosis with 3,191 and influenza with 3,442 cases, accounted for 18 per cent of the total. The remainder were scattered among the rest of the "notifiable" diseases.

The list of such diseases includes about 40 diseases that are communicable or "catching" in some way. Physicians in attendance are requested to report the occurrence of such diseases among their patients, to the nearest health officer, Dr. Riley said, in order that the health department may know what diseases are prevalent, and in what community they are occurring, so that measures to prevent their spread may be instituted without avoidable delay.

Homemakers' Column

Edited by Miss Mildred Barton, Home Demonstration Agent, Oakland

Has one ever stopped to think just how much beauty there would be around us if it were not for color? Much of the joy of sunsets, flowers, trees, and birds comes from their exquisite colors. Through color the individual has a means of artistic—or not—self-expression. A knowledge of certain facts concerning color and its application to dress is of importance to the person who wishes to make dress a means of artistic self-expression.

Helen Shelby points out the following personal characteristics to be considered in choosing color:

Size—Bright, intense colors attract attention and tend to increase apparent size more than softer, dull colors. Dark blue, brown, dull green, dark gray are good for large figures.

Personality—The activity of one's expressions has a great real to do with the intensity of colors. Persons of dainty type will choose, in general, the colors classed as dainty. The active, dainty person will find light, bright, crisp, clear colors suit her best, while the quiet type will choose soft, gentle, grayed colors. The active, dramatic person with her strong coloring and dashing manner, will be able to wear the most intense and striking color combinations, while the quiet, dramatic person will find rich, dark, dignified colors best express her personality.

Bright colors in dress are showy and attract the eye for the moment. Such colors are difficult to wear and grow tiresome very quickly. The suitable, subtle colors attract less attention but give the wearer pleasure for a longer time. If the colors are correct, they have the power of modifying the coloring of the skin, the hair, and the eyes, and of making the figure appear smaller or larger than it actually is.

A safe rule is: Never let the costume overshadow the wearer. Color should be used to enhance the person wearing it, and not be conspicuous in itself.

A WELL BALANCED DIET BEST WAY TO KEEP FIT

Is Effective in Developing Powers Of Resistance To Disease

One of the most effective ways of keeping fit through the winter months and of developing the powers of resistance to disease, according to Dr. R. H. Riley, director of the State Department of Health, is through the habitual use of a well balanced diet. We are only beginning to realize, he said, the part the diet plays in the defense mechanism of the system.

"In days gone by", he continued, "a certain amount of ill health was expected as a matter of course, during the winter months. After a few months of snow and cold every one felt run down. This was probably due to the fact that the winter diet had very little variety and contained few fresh or green foods. It was natural that by spring every one complained of that tired feeling and there was a great demand for spring tonics. Wonderful results were claimed for such tonics. Few of those who used them realized that the increased vitality they enjoyed probably came from sunshine, new spring greens, and plenty of eggs and milk.

"There is no excuse now for getting run-down in the winter because of the lack of a balanced diet. Vegetables and fruits are on the market now all the year round, or if we cannot get all of them fresh there are canned products which are an excellent substitute for fresh foods. Cod liver oil is available also to give us most of the benefits of sunshine.

"The dietary dangers to be especially guarded against in the winter are lack of iron which is necessary for blood building and lack of vitamins which are required for vigorous health and for resistance to disease. Foods that are rich in iron are: Green, leafy vegetables (such as kale, spinach, beet greens, mustard greens), lean meat, especially liver and kidney, egg-yolk, oysters, dried fruits, and whole wheat grains. Foods that are especially rich in vitamins are: Milk, eggs, green, leafy vegetables, fruits, whole grain cereals, and organ meats (such as liver, kidneys, heart) and cod liver oil. Since one of the important vitamins, vitamin C, is easily destroyed by ordinary cooking it is wise to use some raw fruits or vegetables each day.

"If these iron and vitamin-containing foods are used liberally there will be no need for sulphur and molasses, nor for any other special tonic in the spring."

FRALEY TELLS ROTARIANS WHERE TAX MONEY GOES

State's Attorney Discusses Taxes And Inner Workings Of The County Commissioners' Office

COUNTY'S CONDITION GOOD

"What Becomes of the Taxpayers' Dollar" was the subject discussed by Neil C. Fraley, State's Attorney, before members of the Oakland Rotary Club at its regular meeting last Friday evening.

In addition to an axplanation of the expenses of the Commissioners of the county, Mr. Fraley also contrasted the financial condition of the county at present with that of several years previous, and outlined a number of things that had been accomplished by the members of the present Board of Commissioners.

Basing the tax rate at $1 and the assessable basis at seventeen and one-half million dollars, as it was in 1937, Mr. Fraley pointed out that 87 cents of that dollar was demanded by State laws over which the Commissioners had no immediate control. He listed schools as taking 47 cents; debt service, 10 cents; old age pensions, aid to children, administrative cost of welfare, 10 cents; salaries of public officials, 10 cents; care of county people in asylums, State institutions, blind and direct relief, 10 cents. In addition it was necessary, he said, to maintain public buildings, pay for lights, gas, janitor service, publishing and printing, health work, and take care of various other items.

The social legislation, he explained, was an additional burden that had been placed on the county since 1935, and had it not been for the tax on beer, which amounts to $25,000, it would have been necessary to raise the tax rate.

He also explained that the money for debt service went to pay off lateral road bonds which had become due. The county is bonded for the sum of $137,-000 for these road bonds, which is less than one per cent of the assessable basis. Allegany county, he asserted, is bonded for more than ten per cent of its basis.

In stating the financial condition of the county to be excellent he showed that three years ago there were unpaid current bills of approximately $25,000, half of which was due State institutions, practically no funds in the treasury and $100,000 in unpaid orders in the hands of banks and individuals. The county had received many letters from W. S. Gordy, State Comptroller, demanding payment of the sum due the State.

Contrasting that picture with the situation today, he said all current obligations had been paid to date, as of January 1, outstanding orders had been reduced to $60,000, there were no outstanding orders back of the 1936 levy, and there was $45,000 in cash in the treasury. There were also outstanding taxes of $116,000 yet to be collected.

Mr. Fraley also told the Rotarians that within the past three years more had been done for schools than in any previous period. He cited the construction of schools at Grantsville, Vindex, completion of the Red House school, addition to Loch Lynn, repairs to Mt. Lake, installation of sanitary necessities at Accident, purchase of ground for the Oakland and Kitzmiller high schools and for the Bloomington school, and practically every rural school in Garrett painted and repaired.

Rotarians were also told that twenty-five miles of road had been built, much of it through WPA labor, with the county sharing a part of the cost.

At the regular meeting of the club this Friday evening, Delbert Davis, cashier of the First National Bank, will give a review of the current issue of The Rotarian Magazine.

Contributions for Cancer Control Amounted to $32.90

Contributions to the cancer control fund amounted to $32.90 on Saturday, it was announced by Mrs. F. D. Bittle, chnirman of the committee appointed by the Oakland Civic club to have charge of this work.

The Civic club of Oakland was assisting in a program being conducted by the Maryland Federntion of Women's clubs, to raise funds for control of cancer. Half of the amount raised here will be sent to the University of Maryland cancer clinic, and half to the Memorial hospital, Cumberlnnd, for use in their work of cancer control.

ADDITION TO ELEMENTARY SCHOOL IS BEING SOUGHT

Delegation Was Before County Commissioners Last Friday

A definite request for the purchnse of ground, the employment of an architect to design a building, and $30,-000 or less to begin activities for nn addition, was made by a delegation representing the Oakland Elementary school, at a called meeting of the Board of County Commissioners last Friday afternoon. About fifty men and women attended.

The needs of the elementary school were brought before the Commissioners by Mrs. C. W. Ream, principal; Harold M. Dawson, George H. Hanst, Mrs. William W. Grant and Scott W. Shirer, points covered by the speakers including the crowded condition of the various rooms and lack of space, the need of an auditorium, the need of keeping pace with the times and the plumbing, ventilating and sanitary conditions now pervailing in the antiquated building.

This meeting before the Commissioners was one of several during the past few weeks. Other delegations from Kitzmiller, Accident, Bloomington and Oakland high school, have appeared before the Board asking additions or new buildings. Upon each occasion the Board has expressed itself as sympathetic and as realizing the needs, but pointed out their inability to remedy the difficulties without funds.

GROUNDHOG DAY LEGEND COMES DOWN THRU AGES

Issue Of The Republican Forty Years Ago Carries Story

Yesterday, February 2nd, was Groundhog Day. There is no doubt he saw his shadow.

The issue of The Republican of 40 years ago shows that although the basis of the superstition surrounding the animal and his periodic appearance on the day set for it, was about the same as it is today, it has been years since people have heard about the legend of how the groundhog got here.

The legend as printed then follows:

"Groundhog Day comes on the second of February and on this day it is said that the groundhog governs the weather for six weeks following and the shadow of the groundhog on this day invariably means six weeks cold weather.

"In some rural districts this sign never fails and old timers say that the groundhog is seen to appear and look about for his sadow and no sooner than he sees it he retires and prepares for six weeks cold winter weather.

"The groundhog many centuries ago was an inhabitant of the sun. The sun was the only planet known on which the groundhog existed and the groundhog was then the size of all animals combined. He was then the giant king of the animal kingdom. His majesty not being contented with being king of all animals rebelled against the mother planet and made himself a home within the glowing mass. The sun saw that something must be done to curtail his progress and therefore drew a focus on the mammoth size of the animal. This heat was so intense that it melted the groundhog down to his present size. But he still persisted and when the sun saw the huge mass his enemy had excavated, he at once resorted to transportation and took the huge mass with all groundhogs on board and set it nfloat.

"This mass then formed the earth, the center of which is yet a glowing mass and subject to volcanic eruption in order to destroy the groundhogs that abound on its surface. The sun knew the groundhog could not withstand severe zero weather and soon after the dog stars disappear, starts rapidly toward the autumnal equinox and seeks to exterminate the little pest by long freezing weather. The second of February being the anniversary of transportation the sun on this day pierces through clouds and sees his little enemy still living and renews his effort and refuses to give warmth and heat for six weeks longer.

"This is the reason why we have to have such cold weather after the second of February and this is the influence the groundhog has in regard to the weather."

The Red House Sewing Circle will meet in the Sunday school room of the Red House church on Tuesday, February 8.

BIG GAIN MADE IN REAL ESTATE BY REASSESSMENT

Tax Basis Is Increased By More Than Two And One-Quarter Million Dollars,

INTANGIBLES NOT YET IN

A gain in the assessable basis of the county of more than two and one-quarter million dollars, just in real estate, is shown by the records at the office of the County Commissioners and announced yesterday hy R. C. McComas, Supervisor of Assessments, bringing the total amount for real and tangible personal property to the sum of $18,725,538. To find the entire assessable basis of the county it will be necessary to add the intangible personal property assessment, which can only be estimated at this time.

The Commissioners made the basis $20,205,598 for the purpose of laying the levy which was completed late on Monday night. This is two and one-half million dollars above last year's basis, and slightly above that of 1932, when the basis figures began to go down on account of reductions being made in the assessment of the Youghiogheny Hydro-Electric Power Company and various other corporations and individuals on the books of the county.

Real estate gains were made in ten districts, while losses were sustained in Districts 6, 7, 10, 11, 13 and 15. Gains in the various districts were explained by Mr. McComas and the Commissioners as follows:

District 1, new buildings and increased value of property along Deep Creek Lake; District 2, much land formerly assessed as barren is now tillable and several large tracts formerly assessed in District No. 6, were transferred to this district.

District No. 3, increases in public utilities, especially the Potomac Transmission Company; District 4, increase in assessment of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company; District 8, increased value in pasture and tillable land which was formerly assessed lower than any point in the county; District 9, increase in assessment of Potomac Edison Company; District 14, increase in public utilities assessments.

No. 13 lost because of depreciation in coal land and mines, while 7 and 10 lost because portions of these districts and part of No. 8 were taken to form District 16. In District 11 the loss was explained by much land being sold to the Government, which is not taxable. Changes in Districts 5, 12 and 15 were only slight, in comparison with others. There was a loss of $1,595 in tangible personal property.

The amounts of the old and new assessments by districts, with gains and losses, both in real estate and tangible personal property, will be found tabulated on page eight.

Looking back over the records it is found by comparison that in 1931 the assessable basis was $20,769,186, and the tax rate that year was $1.77. The following year the basis was $20,182,-077 and the rate was $1.60. In 1933, when the State took over the roads, the basis dropped to $17,876,195 and the rate was $1.06. Since 1934 the rate has been $1.00, while the assessable basis until this year has remained under eighteen million dollars.

Mr. McComas points out that the increase had come from increased utility company assessments mainly and the discovery of a number of pieces of property which had not been taxed previously. It was not occasioned by any hardship on the people, as both real and personal items were reduced in many cases.

DEER PARK MAN HELD AS WITNNESS TO CRIME IN '35

Victor Browning Freed On Bond But Must go Before Grand Jury At Snow Hill In March

CHARGED WITH ASSAULT

Victor "Van" Browning, 35, of Deer Park, is out of jail at Snow Hill under bond, following his arrest on a warrant charging him with assault with intent to murder Charles S. Pusey, Somerset county (Md.) farmer, found dead on the Pocomoke City-Cedar Hill highway near Snow Hill, in May, 1935.

Sheriff Ernest C. West, of Worcester county stated that Browning had been arrested at Deer Park, his home, on Friday on a warrant issued at Pocomoke City and lodged in jail on Saturday. West also said he believed that other persons were involved and that other arrests might be expected.

Browning denied any connection with the case and his friends in this county are of the opinion that he is innocent. Browning, at the time of the commission of the crime, was in a CCC camp as a mechanic at Snow Hill. He had been back at his home in Deer Park for several months.

Pusey, who was a farmer living near Princess Anne, was found dead on the highway. His body was badly mangled, but officers were unable to find any blood on the road or in that vicinity. A coroner's jury declined to return a verdict, stating it believed he had been killed elsewhere and the body dumped on the road.

Browning was freed on Monday after furnishing bond in $500 set for him as a material witness. He was ordered to return to Snow Hill on March [illegible] to go before the grand jury and testify concerning what he knows of the matter.

ISABELLA, CATERPILLAR, PREDICTS A HEAVY SNOW

Will Come to Maryland on Tuesday, February 8, Forester Says

Isabella, the caterpillar, says there'll be heavy snow in Maryland next week.

At least, that's what Charles N. Butler, now of Garrett county, gleans from Isabella's reactions.

She's been right twice on weather predictions, Butler reported to the State Forestry Department in Baltimore, enabling him to forecast correctly one snowstorm and a cold wave so far this winter.

Butler, superintendent of a CCC forestry project, told the Forestry Department he became interested in claims of Garrett countians that tiger-moth caterpillars, known to science as Pyrraretia Isabella, could predict weather changes.

Tradition says, he reported, that Isabella's color proportions change to indicate the severity of the winter. She's three inches long, black at bow and stern and yellow amidships. Butler made calculations with a calibrated ruler and a slide rule.

He said he figured the proportion of warm weather to cold, took account of the thickness of Isabella's fuzz, and soon had a schedule of forecasts which he sent to State Forester Besley.

Besley said yesterday Butler's first two predictions both came true in Garrett county. His latest is "heavy snow on February 8."

Movie Tax Totals $702.30

Receipts from the tax on Sunday moving pictures, from March 24, 1937, to January 30, 1938, amounted to $702.30, according to figures given out by J. Frank Browning, city clerk.

This money has been distributed as follows: Crippled children fund, $350.52; Oakland library, $175.26; Oakland Fire Department, $175.26; check book, $1.25; cash on hand, 1 cent.

Receipts from this source were greater during January than any other month, $93.85 being turned over to the City Council.

County Escapes Frigid Weather

Frigid wenther, which was moving eastward and which had expected to envelop this territory, was sidetracked by shifting winds, and ns a result Garrett county has had comparatively mild weather during the week, going below the freezing mark at night but thawing during the day.

Colder weather is predicted for the week-end, following the rain of today.

Applications For Unemployment Compensation Continue

Applications for unemployment compensation continue to be filed at the office of the Maryland State Employment service. The number up to last night was approximately 1,550, with half of that number being original applications. It is necessary for the applicants to return a second time to file certain papers before one is eligible for unemployment compensation.

Milburn Mann, in charge of the Garrett county branch, announced a change of schedule, effective February 1, as follows: Grantsville, every Tuesday at the town hall, 9:30 to 4; at Friendsville, election building, every Tuesday afternoon, 2 to 4.

The Oakland office is open every Wednesday, Thursday and Friday—Thursday from 1:30 to 4 and the other two days from 9 to 4.. The office is closed Monday, Tuesday and Saturday.

COMMISSIONERS ANNOUNCE TAX RATE OF 85 CENTS

TOTAL ONLY APPROXIMATE

Garrett County's tax rate was fixed at 85 cents on each $100 of assessable property by the Board of County Commissioners, according to the annual levy which was completed late Monday evening. The rate is 15 cents less on each $100 of assessable property than has been levied during the past five years, although a change in the law created some uncertainty among the taxpayers of the county as to whether taxes have been raised or lowered.

With the rate at 85 cents, all important county officers, including those connected with the health office, the county agent and home demonstration agent, are retained, and in addition sums of money were levied to take care of the school building requirements and the needs of repairing a number of the farm-to-market roads. Adequate sums were also levied for various kinds of relief.

While no figures were termed exact, approximate amounts are given today which show that money will be expended as follows:

Public schools, $91,966.31 for general operating expenses and $40,000 for capital outlay; oiling and screening farm to market roads, $20,000; old age pensions, $13,000; general public assistance, $5,000; almshouse and asylum, $9,000; aid to children, $2,020.55; Children's Aid Society, $2,300; elections, $10,000; Welfare Board, administrative costs, $3,500; fire departments, $2,000; debt service, redeeming bonds, $10,000, and interest, $6,800; public health work, $2,500; county agent's office, $1,800; county treasurer's office, $2,148.85. Over $22,000 is set aside in the contingent fund, and levies for other departments remain about as usual: court fund, orphans' court, corporations, commissioners' office, court house expenses, etc.

Under the law enacted last winter, the levy had to be made on or before February first, the change in the fiscal year in that law being made from January 1 to December 31. Previously it had been July 1 to June 30, and gave the farmers an opportunity to pay their taxes after the crops on their farms had been harvested.

The new law also changed the discount period, making taxes discountable on or before June 1 of each year, and just at the time when farmers generally are short of ready money because of the fact that just at this time of the year their outlay has to be made for seed, fertilizer, farm machinery, etc. The new law also cuts the discount rate from 3 to 2 per cent.

Because of the new law which makes a five-months' period, from January to June, when very little tax money will be collected, the Commissioners last year made the rate $1.00 to tide the finances over this period. This money, now in the treasury, will enable the Commissioners to meet all bills until the 1938 tax bills are prepared and mailed and some of them paid.

All levy figures above nre only approximate. The completed levy in detail will be printed in The Republican next week.

The assessable basis for the county was placed at $20,205,598, which does not include some of the intangible personal property, such as securities and bank stocks. This figure was estimated at $572,125.82, but will probably be increased. The exact figures are lacking on account of the incomplete reassessment.

Magnetic Storm February 21 May Disrupt Communications

A Carnegie Institute scientist predicts a magnetic storm about February 21, which may disrupt the world's communications systems.

Dr. A. C. McNish said that storms which have occurred during the past week are likely to recur in less than a month's time. Such storms which cause serious interference with radio, telegraph and telephone and set compass needles to fluctuating wildly, are due to the occurrence of titanic volcanoes of gas on the surface of the sun.

Tremendous displays of the aurora borealis usually accompany magnetic storms, Dr. McNish said.

Lesson for February 6

CHALLENGING THE SOCIAL ORDER

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:13-22.

GOLDEN TEXT—I came not to call the righteous, but sinners—Mark 2:17.

PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Had Dinner With Matthew.

JUNIOR TOPIC—When Jesus Passed By.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Helping by Being Friendly.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Crusading for a Christian Society.

"Crusading for a Christian Society," is one of the topics assigned for consideration today. Everyone who is right thinking would be glad if the social order of which we are all a part might be made Christian, for it is far from it now. But fore-doomed to failure are the attempts to Christianize society by some great program of "social regeneration." God's way is to save the individual who makes up the social order. When a man is right with God he will be right with his fellow man.

The Scripture lesson for today is full of outstanding spiritual principles of the greatest practical import to both Christians and the unconverted. It should be studied by the guidance of the Holy Spirit and taught in his power.

I. One Sinner Becomes a Servant (vv. 13, 14).

Capernaum was so situated that it provided an excellent location for the collection of the Roman taxes which the Jews so hated. There at the "receipt of custom" sat a Jew named Levi, who was no doubt despised by his neighbors because he had joined in this distasteful business. To him came the gracious Lord with the invitation, "Follow me." How different would be the history of the cause of Christ on earth if every other man who thus was called had done likewise. To follow the Master means sacrifice and breaking with the old life, but it also means peace and glory.

II. Many Sinners Meet the Lord (v. 15).

Levi, who now becomes Matthew, showed his love for the Lord by desiring that his friends might also meet him. So he prepared a dinner for them in his own house, to which he also invited Jesus.

It is always dangerous for a Christian to maintain social contact with his former companions in sin, if he does so for his own enjoyment or advantage. But to be their friends that one may win them to Christ, that is most desirable.

III. Some Righteous Folk Miss the Lord (vv. 16, 17).

Sin is an unspeakably horrible thing that separates men from God, but it is not an insuperable barrier, for the moment a man confesses his sin and calls on the Saviour he is saved. But self-righteousness—that is the impassable barrier. God can do nothing for the man who rests his hope of salvation on his own good character, high morality, and respectable position in society.

IV. Fasting and Feasting—When and Why (vv. 18-20).

God established one fast day for Israel. They established many, especially the Pharisees. Religion that loses its spiritual life and power clings with tenacity to outward observances and symbols.

Should one never fast? Yes, to the true follower of Jesus there come times when the urgency of soul concerning the problems of one's own life, the lives of others, the needs of the world, shuts the door of interest to anything as ordinary as food for the body.

Feasting and rejoicing—are these spiritual and uplifting? Christianity is a joyful faith. It is not to be hidden in damp, dark cloisters; it thrives in the sunshine, in the happy laughter of a child, in the cheerful shout of the saint. The Church is the Bride of Christ. If the friends of the bridegroom were to rejoice (v. 19), should not the Bride shout for joy?

V. New Things versus Old Things (vv. 21, 22).

The Pharisees wanted the gospel of grace to conform to the narrow channels of their interpretation of the law. Was not the law good? Yes. Jesus said he came not to destroy it, but to fulfill it (Matt. 5:17). He bore the curse of the law that we might be free (Gal. 3:13, 14). But he also brought in the new covenant of assurance and grace.

The mixing of grace and law, or the effort to do so, has continued even to our day. Let us be clear on that point—we are saved by grace, not by the works of the law (Eph. 2:8, 9). We work because we are saved, not in order to be saved.

Prayer

If the eye is fixed on God, thought may roam where it will without irreverence, for every thought is then converted into a prayer.

Need Exercising

The only way to restore a weakened will is by exercising itself in details of duty.

Constant Joy

"Rejoice evermore," says the apostle; let your joy be constant and durable.

Scoops Column

By Scoop Himself

There's nothing that can be done about it this year, but it is our belief that funds raised for the fight against infantile paralysis should be left in the section in which they are raised—at least a good percentage—such as was done with Birthday Ball proceeds up until this year.

When all the proceeds from dances all over the country go into a central agency, there arises too much chance for graft, and there is hardly a way to check up.

The way publicity concerning these dances has reached The Republican office within the past two or three months, would lead one to believe that all of the money raised is spent on having paid publicity writers concoct a lot of stories about these celebrations. Had this newspaper used all of the material it would have been necessary to print 16 to 20 pages each week.

Some gentleman in New York who has more money than he knows what to do with, is said to pay expenses of all publicity, so that the money doesn't have to come out of the funds that should go to fight this disease. However, when every cent raised this year goes to a national committee, it makes the pathway easy for unscrupulous people, and you'll have to admit there are plenty of them mixed up in politics. (Politics, by the way, isn't supposed to have anything to do with it, and shouldn't. But try and keep a politician away when he smells money).

To buy a dance ticket, even though you don't dance, just to help fight infantile paralysis, is indeed a noble deed—providing the money for that ticket goes where it should. When 70 per cent stayed in the community in which it was raised, people were sure of that much. This year people aren't getting much "kick" out of raising funds to go to an unknown destination, and this is not the only protest. Newspapers are telling of quite a few places that don't like the idea one bit.

This is a protest against the method, not the subject. We need funds to fight infantile paralysis, cancer, syphilis and need them badly.

Perhaps a dance or some other benefit, run locally, later in the spring, would provide some of the necessary funds for Garrett county.

Weather Or Not

Garrett county weather this winter seems quite nice—thus far. On January 23 the warmlike weather took many persons out for drives—some even going to Swallow Falls for a meander through the forests and around Muddy Creek and the Youghiogheny River.

It cooled off to 3 above zero during the week, but there was spring-like weather again this past Sunday. One lady picked pansies from her rock garden. That's much better than Michigan or New York can do this winter.

Of course we're not one to crow too soon. We'll have to wait and see what the groundhog thinks of the situation and what his plans are.

* * *

Facts Of The Week

A salesman reported that Garrett county and the surrounding territory was one of the best for his product—bicarbonate of soda.

People around here use a lot of it to put into their buckwheat cake batter every morning, and then when they get indigestion from eating the buckwheat cakes, they dissolve a lot of it in water and drink it.

* * *

It has been said that one way to stimulate business would be to get rid of about seven million second-hand automobiles now cluttering the market.

Maybe Uncle Sam could purchase them and give them to those folks on relief who don't already have cars.

* * *

The number of automobiles owned per hundred persons is as follows in these countries: Twenty-two in the United States; eleven in Canada; five in France; two in Germany and one in Italy. Americans own and operate 70 per cent of the automobiles in the world.

And speaking of incomes, the average worker's income in America is $1275; the average British worker earns $783 per year; the German worker has an annual income of only $718; the Italian gets only $239.

That is the difference in living conditions under a democracy and under a dictatorship and the difference between free private enterprise and complete governmental control of business.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1938

SCHOOL BUILDINGS ARE BECOMING BIG PROBLEM—

The problem of adequate school buildings in Garrett county is getting to be quite a big one, and people are really in earnest in their demands for relief along this line and will remain so until something definite is accomplished.

Delegations from various communities have been before the Board of County Commissioners asking for help.

Bloomington has no school building at all and wants one. It should have it.

Buildings at Kitzmiller are entirely inadequate. People of Kitzmiller want a new elementary building and should have it.

Accident school is crowded and the people there want improvements. Their wants are justified.

Oakland elementary school, constructed to accommodate 250 children, now has almost 500 enrolled, and the crowded conditions are almost intolerable to both teachers and pupils.

The same conditions exists in Oakland high school where about 500 students are enrolled.

The problem of sanitary arrangements in both of these schools is a serious one, menacing the health of the young people attending them. Facilities are far too inadequate as well as out of date.

In a proposed budget for capital outlay for school, F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent of Education, which was submitted to the Board of County Commissioners, asked for the sum of $177,890.90, to purchase land for Bloomington, Oakland high and Oakland elementary, for new buildings at Accident, Kitzmiller, Oakland high and Oakland elementary; new equipment at Grantsville, Loch Lynn Heights, Mountain Lake Park and reconditioning of various schools in rural sections of the county.

Of course he didn't get that amount and probably didn't expect it, but it represents the needs of the county at the present time. It is our belief that the figures submitted are far too low. The sum of $250,000 or $300,000 is needed to provide adequate school buildings in this county. The only building large enough today to accommodate the pupils is the new building at Grantsville, and as far as is known Friendsville and Kempton have no complaints. But other places are demanding some action.

The program of consolidation of schools and the transportation of pupils by bus have crowded the centrally located communities out of all proportion to their ability to accommodate properly.

There are only two possible ways to settle this much vexed question of raising the money for schools. One is by direct taxation and the other is by a bond issue.

The Commissioners have gone as far as they could by direct levy without a mandate from the people, and people generally vote against a bond issue, just from a force of habit and possibly conviction.

A heavy taxpayer just the other day made the statement that if he were a Commissioner his name would go down in history, because he'd levy $5 on each $100 of assessable property and build this county some decent schools.

Of course it would never do to levy any such sum on the people of the county, but he has the right idea. Garrett county cannot feel proud of its school buildings, but it can well feel ashamed.

It is going to be up to the people to remedy this situation in some manner. Parents of children who attend these schools must help. In fact, everybody must help.

Miss Wilda Jordan and sister, Miss Erma Jordan, of Crellin, were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Warner and daughter Hazel, at Turner-Douglas, West Va., on Sunday.

Getting a Bit Unruly

REGARDING REGISTRATION

Since bringing up the subject last week of a registration for citizens of Oakland before being allowed to vote in a municipal election, and pointing out that nothing had been done since it was discovered last year that a law requiring such a registration was already on the statute books but had never been enforced, it has come to the attention of The Republican that the law is not a good one.

From recollections of various people it seems the late J. C. Renninger was city attorney in 1924 at the time the law was passed, and at that time Mr. Renninger declared the law invalid, because of inadequacy of its content. It provided no way to conduct such a registration, and several other important necessities were omitted.

After the question was brought up last year Mr. Julius C. Renninger, Jr., present city attorney, without knowing that his father had condemned the bill, also looked it over and said it was not legal.

It is evident then that something is the matter with the law, and, if so, the next best thing to do is to have a proper bill prepared, providing for a registration of the citizens of Oakland, and have it presented at the next session of the legislature. This is the purpose of the present city council, it is understood.

Therefore, another city election will occur with possibilities of many people voting who are not entitled to do so. Only by the extreme watchfulness of the challengers, will "stuffing" of the ballot box be eliminateed.

CITY ELECTION AHEAD—

A city election is not much more than a month away, and several days prior to that there will be a citizens' meeting to select a list of candidates.

For the past number of years only a mere handful of people have taken part in these citizens' meetings where candidates are selected to run the city's affairs. In spite of this the town has usually been fortunate in getting men who are conscientious in serving. But it may not always be thus.

To insure candidates of a high type more people must participate. Here is a chance for the women of town. There have never been more than three women at any of these meetings in the past ten years.

Parents who are interested in the welfare of youth are needed to take an active part. Perhaps some day there will be a chance for a community building. The councilmen should be interested. If not a community building, there are other problems just as important coming up every week, and competent councilmen are needed to take care of these affairs.

An active interest before election will go far in getting the right persons for such responsibilities.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

The Social Security Shell Game

Washington, Jan. 31.

A few weeks ago Mr. John L. Lewis suggested that the Federal Government take $5,000,000,000 from the Social Security reserve funds and invest it in low-cost housing. This, he thought, would not only stimulate recovery and give aid to the unemployed but prove a wise investment for the Government.

* * *

There are only two reasons why Mr. Lewis' suggestion cannot be carried out. One is that the law prohibits the investment of these funds in anything except Government securities; the other, because the Government is spending this money for current expenses almost as fast as it comes in and has nothing remotely resembling five billions in cash in the reserve—or ever will have, if its present policy continues. Of course, a way might be found to obviate the first reason by printing more Government securities and taking the cash out—but the cash isn't there.

* * *

The fact is, Mr. Morgenthau, the Secretary of the Treasury, has been doing exactly that for a considerable time now—taking the cash out and putting the Treasury I O U's in, until, as Mr. Paul Mallon recently pointed out, the Social Security cupboard is bare of everything except "unemployed trust fund certificates," which is what the Treasury prefers to call these particular notes. With the present depression has come a demand upon the Federal Treasury from a good many States for their share of the unemployment insurance money, and Mr. Morgenthau has had to dig it up out of the general funds because there isn't anything in the reserve but notes.

* * *

What is happening is simple. When the money from the pay-roll taxes comes in, the Secretary of the Treasury does not put it in the Social Security reserve. It never goes there at all. It goes directly into the general Treasury cash drawer and it is the I O U's which go into the reserve. The cash is spent on current expenses for relief, governmental agencies of one kind and another. It is true the law compels the Treasury to invest these Social Security funds, which pour in now in a steady and increasing flood from employes and employers, in Government securities at 2½ per cent interest—but it does not compel it to spend the money. The defense of the Treasury is if it did not meet its running expenses with this money it would have to borrow money on Government securities, thus increasing the national debt and paying the interest to the banks or individuals subscribing to the securities.

* * *

Actually, what the Treasury is doing is spending the money intrusted to it for one purpose for quite different purposes, substituting for the cash its promissory notes. This undoubtedly is legal under the act. And it isn't fair to blame Mr. Morgenthau, who probably knows the risks of what he is doing as well as anyone and wishes he did not have to. Actually, the act practically compels the Treasury to do what is being done. There is no question that the slick gentlemen who drafted this law thought they had done a singularly clever thing, which would enable the New Deal to continue its expenditures indefinitely and ultimately pay off the whole national debt. And so it might if the money were used to buy up outstanding Government securities and corral them in the reserve fund. Even then, eventually there would arise a fantastic fiscal problem. But that isn't being done at all. It isn't the existing promises to pay which are being put in place of cash, but new ones issued for the special purpose.

* * *

It is legal, all right, but if it were by an individual or corporation it would be called misappropriation of trust funds, or by an even uglier name. The whole dizzy scheme is typical of New Deal finance and its dangers are obvious. At the moment, the Treasury is enabled to get away with it because the fund has just started and it is not nearly as big as it will be. Up to January 1, $440,000,000 in unemployment insurance taxes had been collected and spent. It is planned to meet the Treasury notes given for this amount with new notes to be issued this summer when the first notes mature.

* *

But the fund grows all the time and so does the demand for money from the States, from those entitled to old-age pensions and the multitude of other beneficiaries under the law. When these demands reach a certain point it is clear the Treasury is not going to have the cash to meet them—and there is but one way to get it—to-wit, more taxes. The present policy does three rather shocking things—first, it conceals a large and steady increase in the national debt due to the new Government securities issued but not sold to the public; second, it makes the imposition of new and heavier taxes inevitable; third, it accelerates our tendency toward the cruder form of inflation, by the unrestrained and unchecked printing of money, which, in effect, is what these new issues of notes amount to.

* * *

It is reasonable to think that if and when the millions of wage earners whose weekly pay is being pinched to go into this Social Security fund realize that it isn't being held in trust for them at all and that soon or late they have got to be taxed all over again to pay the old-age pensions—it is reasonable to think that the resentment will be very great. The hocus-pocus in this business has not generally permeated yet, but if it ever does the New Dealers may wish they had never heard of the subject.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

Swanton was peaceful. From the weekly letter was the following: Another of those disgraceful affairs took place at the postoffice among the political reformers. Our M. D. and one of our blacksmiths attempted to practice on each other, the latter arming himself with a poker and the doctor with a large measure and with a great many unmentionable expletives they came together. When the smoke had cleared away it was found that the doctor had given the blacksmith a dose over the eye. The revival services in the U. B. church are to be continued this week.

A new charter was being prepared for Oakland to be sent to the State Legislature for enactment into law. The bill provided for increasing the minimum tax rate and power to extend the town's limits. A bill was also prepared providing for bonds of $25,000 to raise a fund to pay debts for improving streets and to purchase an electric light plant. Another bill provided for a bond issue to raise a fund to construct water works.

A petition was circulated asking that the State Normal school be located in Oakland.

A bill had been introduced in the General Assembly providing for the creation of a new election district, to be known as District No. 13, and to be composed of parts of Districts 1 and 10. Another bill provided for dividing Election District No. 7 into two Districts 7 and 14.

A heavy fall of snow closed the roads for two days.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The marriage of Miss Anna Gonder to Lawrence K. Dixon, both of Oakland, was announced.

People awoke to one of the most severe storms of the winter, with the mercury showing 12 degrees below zero at seven o'clock. It remained below zero most of the day.

Thirty-five hundred acres of coal land in District No. 8, south of Sand Run, were sold to the Dodson Bituminous Coal Corporation, which company then planned the early development of the property. The company was already operating mines at Barnum and Dodson.

Two societies were organized at the high school to sell Thrift Stamps. Miss Mary Drake Naylor headed one group which had sold $407 in stamps. Carlton Hinebaugh led the other with sales amounting to $165.

An order of the Federal Fuel Administrator stated there would be nine heatless Mondays throughout the nation, but this was not to apply to schools, churches, libraries, hospitals, etc. The coal supply in the nation was low. In Ohio farmers cut down their orchards and the townspeople their shade trees to be used as fuel, as it was impossible to obtain coal. The value of coal mines in this community was never more apparent.

JANUARY'S LICENSES TO WED REACH TOTAL OF 113

With twenty marriage licenses issued during the past week ending on Monday evening, January's total was brought to 113, the first time on record that the figure had reached the 100 mark. Taking the past month's figures as a basis, it was thought likely that the total for the entire year would surpass 1828 which were granted during 1937.

Of the month's total, 63 of the couples came from West Virginia, 25 couples from Pennsylvania and only ten from Maryland. Other States represented were Ohio and New York.

The Amish School Fight

The Amish and Mennonite farmers in the Lancaster county section of Pennsylvania are making strenuous objections to the new school law signed by Governor Earle on July 1, 1937.

The dispute arises over the increase in the compulsory school age. The "Plain Folks" believe and are asking that the authorities exempt their children from attendance when they complete their low grades, regardless of age. The minimum school age, privileged for exemption, is now 10 years. The following petition is being circulated among all farmers throughout the State, with a view of retaining the old school regulations for rural districts:

Concerning the New School Law

We the undersigned religious countryfolks, pertaining to Agriculture, do hereby certify that Conscientiously, we cannot send our Children unto the world's nurture and teachings until they are grown up.

And do hereby petition the Boards of public instruction to be Lenient with a well-meaning people.

If we are Granted eight months schooling in a year and the Children are exempt when they get through the low grades, and let us have the one-room schoolhouses, and teach the truth, we can, with free conscience, send our Children to the Public Schools.

We would be very thankful if the above would be granted.

Already 3,000 signatures have been obtained and there are many unsigned thousands who are sympathetic to the plea of these fine farmers.—The New-Yorker.

20,000 DAMAGED BOOKS REPAIRED IN 2 COUNTIES

Good Work Shown In Results Of WPA Mending Projects in Garrett and Allegany Counties

3,451 COMPLETED HERE

More than 20,000 damaged public library and school books have been renovated and restored to use by the WPA book mending projects in Allegany and Garrett counties.

These State-wide book mending projects are sponsored by the Maryland Library Commission, Miss Adelene Pratt, director.

Because of these projects several thousand dollars have been saved by school boards and libraries to use for the purchase of new books.

In Allegany and Garrett counties there are six units of the project. These are operating in Cumberland, Lonaconing, Westernport and Oakland. The county school boards and library boards of the two counties are contributing space, use of equipment and materials for the project.

The workers have not only been provided employment, but they are learning a useful occupation to pursue when WPA library projects are over.

Books repaired and completed in Garrett county, by workers of its one project at Oakland, totaled 3,451. This project was started here February 16, 1937, and at the end of eighteen months there will be 3,290 volumes renovated and completed and again put into circulation. There are five workers employed on the Garrett county project. Workers have been employed on these projects in Allegany county since early in 1936.

Cataloging And Circulation

In addition to repairing worn out books, the workers have helped in the cataloging and circulation of books. Through their help, 60,000 volumes have been loaned and 4,000 books cataloged in Allegany and Garrett counties.

Books no longer usable are collected and sent to the nearest WPA book mending unit. Here they are sorted. Those which are past mending are saved to supply missing pages for other books in better condition.

Then the books are cleaned. The workers examine the book for missing pages, remove pencil marks and wash each page. They mend each torn page and neatly "tip in" the missing pages taken from discarded books. If these missing pages cannot be found, from discarded books, a type written copy of the page is made and inserted.

The books are then taken from their worn out jackets. The workers put the contents in a clamp, drill small holes through the book with a hand drill, or awl, and sew with the best grade linen thread which gives the book even greater strength than it had when new.

Employ Absolute Accuracy

Then comes the recasing and actual binding process which requires absolute accuracy of measurement. When the old backs cannot be used, heavy binder boards are cut and covered with a specially prepared waterproof cloth for the covers. The fabric and lining must fit perfectly to obtain a neatly finished product.

The final step is the lettering. The worker marks with the electric stylus the title, autor and library number on the back of the book. This finishes the operation and the book is ready for use. When a comparison is made of this neatly mended and lettered copy with one ready for renovating the result seems almost miraculous, according to Mrs. Cora G. Perry, supervisor of library projects for Allegany and Garrett counties.

Supervisors check each operation on every book, and where faulty workmanship is found, the book is returned to the employe responsible.

Each worker does every process on the book to be restored. When it is completed she inserts a sticker with the date and her name on it. Because the book menders take great pride in their own completed work, few books are returned for correction.

The school officials and librarians of Garrett and Allegany counties are gratified with the high class of work done.

MT. LAKE PARK

Last week, due to illness, we had no column, which was, no doubt, just as well. However, our competitor in another paper did have an article and one that was quite worthwhile. It harked back to the old days—and we mean old—long before our own time, and that's plenty.

Somehow it set us thinking about the old times we knew; those days when we pinned on a season ticket to Chautauqua. It meant we could go in and out as often as we pleased. Our thoughts went to those splendid programs with the Hungarian gypsies and their music, the attractive Sybil Sammis, soloist: Sam Jones, Russell Conwell, William J. Bryan, Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage, Richard Pearson Hobson and a score of others. Among the attractions was Stevens Band from Steubenville, Ohio, which played out of doors until the regular program began. They were a fine lot of boys. If the attraction happened to be stereopticon views with a lecture you could discern, in the darkness, shadowy figures moving toward the exit. Had you followed them you would have found them at the lake where boats were already taken for any of the crowd who might be fortunate enough to escape the lecture. We didn't have a great deal of time and as a rule the boys would arrange for some one to warn us in time to reach the amphitheatre when the lights came on.

Someone has suggested a memory column and has offered to send items to us. What do you think? If you have a remembrance or memory of the bygone days when Mountain Lake was in its glory, won't you send it in to us. There should be a wealth of interesting material among our readers.

Thomas Takes Close Game From Oakland

An invading Thomas high school quint nosed out Coach Thomas Baucom's Oakland high five in an overtime clash here Tuesday night, 33-31.

The battle was close and hard-fought. Thomas was in front 12-11 at the quarter, 18-16 at the half and 21-20 at the close of the third period. Late in the final quarter of the regular game, Frazee's basket for Oakland tied the score at 26-26, necessitating the extra period.

Battling on even terms for the major part of the overtime stanza, the game was decided on Helmick's long shot a minute or so before the whistle. Kley then goaled for Oakland but the referee declared the basket ineligible.

Frazee, Oakland forward, took high-scoring honors with 14 points, while DiBacco accounted for 11 of the Thoma smarkers.

END POLITICAL ROYALISM G. O. P. IS TOLD BY FRANK

Says It Must Be More Expressive Of American Spirit Than New Deal's Fascism

Dr. Glenn Frank told the nation's Republicans last Saturday evening their party "must be more faithfully expressive of the American spirit than the Fascist program of the New Deal," which, he said, "threatens to Hitlerize what was once democratic self-government."

Dr. Frank, chairman of a national Republican program committee of more than 150 called to meet in Chicago February 28, made a broadcast address at the Kansas Day banquet celebrating the seventy-seventh anniversary of the state's admission into the union.

Enunciates 5-Point Program

With Alf M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential nominee and Chairman John D. M. Hamilton nearby, Dr. Frank enunciated a five-point creed he described as expressive of the mood in which the party should approach its responsibilities.

At a luncheon, Landon said of Dr. Frank that "we are proud to have as our guest a man who was a victim of another man who talks free speech and then denies it to the people of Wisconsin." Landon apparently referred to the controversy in which the administration of Gov. Philip LaFollette replaced Dr. Frank as president of the University of Wisconsin.

Hamilton predicted a Republican gain of 25 to 40 House seats in the 1938 Congressional elections.

"Incredible as it sounds," said Dr. Frank, "the New Deal is seeking slavishly to duplicate all the techniques employed by big business in the early years of the twentieth century. . . Political royalism takes the place of economic royalism. . . American millions stand to gain more from monopoly under politicians than from monopoly under business men. . . American liberalism has been betrayed in its own household with the Judas kiss of a new despotism."

"The Republican party," said Dr. Frank, "must be more sensitive to the human needs of the millions than many political programs of the last quarter century have been."

MAXIMUM TRUCK LOADS REDUCED BY COMMISSION

Trucks Weighing More Than 12,000 Pounds Cannot Travel; Route 219 Included In Order

WINTER IRINGS DAMAGES

The Maryland State Roads Commission in a busy session on Tuesday, ordered drastic reductions in truck weights on the State roads, warned its engineers to watch for "loafing" on WPA roads projects and decided to press demands for restoration of salaries to all roads employes whose pay was cut in 1933.

By unanimous resolutions the Commission reduced truck weights from 23,000 pounds to 12,000 pounds, including load and trucks, for a ninety-day period on sections of highway affecting all but two of the main roads through the State.

Chief Engineer Nathan L. Smith announced that Route 219, from Keyser Ridge through Oakland to Red House, in this county, was one of those in the State which are to be closed within the next few days to trucks weighing more than 12,000 pounds.

Serious Damage To Roads

Stress of winter weather conditions, occasioned by freezing and thawing of recent weeks, has caused "serious failure" in many highways, Dr. Homer E. Tabler, commission chairman, told other members of the Commission. "Unless we cut these weights immediately," he warned, "we'll spend every cent we have in repairing them after winter is over."

Dr. Tabler sponsored a resolution directing the chief engineer to warn commission junior engineers to make periodic inspection of WPA projects sponsored by the roads unit. He said he found work progressing "altogether too slowly" on a project in Allegany county and another in Washington county. He threatened to withdraw sponsorship wherever engineers reported a project moving too slowly.

The Roads Commission now supplies equipment, trucks and supervision for WPA projects it sponsors, charging costs of such supplies to the roads funds of the county in which each project is located.

Miss Elizabeth Browning Weds Henry G. Catucci on Sunday

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Browning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Browning, of Oakland, to Mr. Henry G. Catucci, of Washington, D. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Catucci, took place Sunday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. William F. Sauer, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church, Oakland, assisted by Rev. Fr. Lawrence Sullivan, of North Eastern, Mass.

The home was decorated with native laurel. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a white satin gown with circular train and tulle veil falling from a coronet set with tiny seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Lucille Browning, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of green taffeta and carried pink rose buds. Little Miss Sarah Jane King, of Washington, was flower girl and wore a gown of blue taffeta and carried yellow rose buds. Mr. Lochrane Gary, of Washington, was the groom's best man. The bride was graduated from Oakland High school and until a year or so ago was active in the local Girl Scout troop. She was also a member of the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church and church choir. Last June she completed a course in journalism in Washington and for the past several months had been employed as secretary to John J. Buckley, a real estate broker in that city.

SOIL EROSION IS TOPIC FOR MEETING ON TUESDAY

Reforestation And Production of Christmas Trees by Local People Also to be Discussed

MEETING IS AT SWANTON

Soil erosion, reforestation and the commercial production of Christmas trees, will be subjects discussed at a group meeting of farmers and other interested citizens in the school house at Swanton, next Tuesday evening, February 15, at 7:30.

Deforestation of the countryside, which is being carried on so rapidly, has created a serious problem for the present and the future, and Garrett county is no exception in this country, according to John H. Carter, county agent, who will speak that evening on the subject of "Land Conservation".

Another speaker will be Rudolf F. Boening, for several years connected with the Federal government conservation work in this country and in Germany. Mr. Boening received his forest training and apprenticeship over a period of four years in Germany and also spent two years in the forests of Siberia while a prisoner of war. Mr. Boening will tell of forestation work in Europe as it has been carried on for many years, and will show how the proper care of the forest will bring in substantial financial returns.

Mr. Carter stated that a number of Garrett countians had been talking lately of the possibility of starting up a Christmas tree industry in this section as is now being done on a large scale in some of the northern states and in Canada. Some of the trees sold here during Christmas this past season were shipped from the north, he pointed out.

This county has the soil and climate to produce trees commercially on a large scale and this question will also be discussed at the meeting on Tuesday evening. All citizens who are interested are invited to attend.

Valentines Tell Old, Old Story, Just The Same

Valentines for 1938 are clipped and modern to some extent, but they tell the old, old story, just the same. Extravagant sentiment and effusive messages are gone, but the "I Love You" idea runs through them all, though often it's in slang.

You can't do away with hearts in the decorations, but all aren't bright red this year. Some are in shades of blue or grey, and orchid. Sometimes they're outlined with gold or silver.

Notable among this year's valentines is the increasing number of cards for exchange between husband and wife, these in the business say. Also striking is the number of cards for girls to send to their boy friends. They're not waiting for Leap Year. Some of them suggest romantic regard and others are in the frank spirit of warm affection.

The form may be different, but the spirit of St. Valentine is like it has been for ages and ages.

Two Agriculture Clubs Have Regular Meetings

The Asher Glade Community Club and the Yough Boosters met last Tuesday and Wednesday evenings in their respective communities. Charley B. Miller, president of the organizations, told those present that recent studies by the economics departments showed that the 1938 farm income would be less than the 1937 income and that expenditures should be made accordingly.

Mr. Miller and Mr. Orville Frazee told about a trip they and several others had taken to the Pennsylvania Farm Products show at Harrisburg, Pa., recently. A general discussion followed the talks.

At the meeting of the Yough Boosters, John H. Carter, county agent, explained about the 1938 soil conservation program. At the Asher Glade meeting, S. L. Crosthwait, University of Maryland Extension Service, spoke about the Japanese Beetle, and its tremendous destructiveness. He also gave some plans for control.

At the next meeting of the Asher Glade club on March 1, the 1938 soil conservation program will be discussed. The Yough Boosters will meet March 2. Music for last Wednesday's meeting was furnished by Junior Frazee, Claude Fike, Charles Thomas, and Fred Selby.

Contests And Other Features on Program to be Presented in Oakland High Auditorium

LARGE NUMBER EXPECTED

The main feature of Boy Scout Anniversary Week, a scout jamboree, in the Oakland High School auditorium, will be held this evening, February 10, beginning at 8 o'clock, when scouts from several troops will compete in a number of contests, and present an interesting program.

This is the only public meeting planned during the Anniversary Week and a large crowd of parents and other interested citizens is anticipated. Admission will be 10 cents with scouts and scout officials admitted free.

Following the opening ceremony by senior patrol leaders of troops 1 and 3, Oakland, Henry W. McComas, scoutmaster of troop 3, will welcome those who attend. Four short plays will follow, being enacted by members of the four patrols of troop 1.

Contests in signaling, first aid, fire building and knot tying will follow. Judge of these contests will be F. E. Rathbun, Lawrence M. Fraley, G. C. Stemple, Delbert Davis, H. C. Riggs, Dr. N. I. Broadwater, B. I. Gonder, Jr., Harley Dawson, and H. L. Jones. Entries will include the Altamont Lone Scouts and members of Kitzmiller and Oakland troops. Friendsville and Grantsville troops were also invited to participate.

An installation ceremony of the Altamont Lone Scouts will follow, with senior patrol leaders and Ralph M. Luman, assistant scoutmaster of troop 1, in charge. Lone scouts are James Lake and Glenn Woods.

Contest awards will then be presented by H. A. Loraditch and George H. Hanst, chairmen of Oakland troop committees. Rev. George F. Packard, scoutmaster of troop 1, will award a cup to the most completely uniformed patrol of troop 1. Dr. W. W. Grant will present an award for the best scout exhibit, and the closing ceremony will follow in charge of the senior patrol leaders of troops 1 and 2, Stanley Stahl and James Helbig.

In observance of the 28th anniversary celebration of the founding of scouting in America scouts of Oakland troop 1 attended services at the Methodist church on last Sunday morning. On Tuesday evening they met in the High school auditorium at 8:15 to rededicate themselves to the scout oath and laws, at the same time all other scouts throughout the nation were engaged in the same thing.

Saturday afternoon and evening, February 12, the scouts will have live expositions, exemplifying their principles and teachings, on the streets of Oakland. There will also be scout displays in Gortner's and Miller's store windows. Scout anniversary week is held annually to include February 8 and Lincoln's birthday.

In last night's game Kley scored eight points for Oakland. Quarter scores were 13-4, and 22-8, in favor of Bruce.

Tentative Program Outlined For K. of P. Celebration

A tentative program for the anniversary celebration and Ladies' Night, to be held by the local Knights of Pythias lodge in Castle Hall, Third Street, on Friday evening, February 18, was outlined at the regular meeting of that organization last Friday evening.

The principal address will be delivered by Rev. David C. Trimble, while Dr. Henry W. McComas will give the address of welcome. Dr. McComas is the only living charter member. There will also be remarks by O. G. Sanders, past grand chancellor of the state of West Virginia.

The entertainment features will be in charge of Mrs. Russell H. Brown, and refreshments will bring the evening program to a close.

FARMERS PREPARE TO GET 1938 FLOW OF MAPLE SAP

Unseasonable Weather Causing Sap to Flow Earlier Than Usual

The unseasonable weather for the second straight year has the maple syrup producers "up one of their trees." They don't quite know the outcome but are certain that the warm weather has started the maple sap to moving and that they must begin their work earlier than usual this year.

John Horchler, two miles north of Grantsville, opened his camp last week and reported a good flow. Farmers throughout the Grantsville, Bittinger, Accident and Ryan's Glade sections of the county, where sugar maple groves are located, are now preparing for the 1938 flow of sap. Usually they don't open their camps until the latter part of February.

If warm weather continues the producers are fearful of a short and unprofitable season. Warm days and cold nights are necessary to make a good season, and a season usually lasts six weeks.

The sugar and syrup making industry provides a good source of income annually to about 125 farmers of the county. Some of the large trees yield possibly as much as $5 in revenue each year, and it is estimated that the maple sugar industry in the county amounts to about $75,000 annually.

Educational Day to be Observed by United Brethren Churches

Educational Day, an annual event, will be observed in churches throughout the United Brethren denomination, including those on the Mt. Lake Park charge, on Sunday, February 13, it was announced by Rev. E. A. Crites, pastor.

The day is observed for placing special emphasis upon the needs of Christian higher education, and especially Otterbein college, which is owned and controlled by the United Brethren church. The church college is the outgrowth of the ardent devotion of religious leaders and is one of America's foremost training agencies for Christian leadership and development of Christian character.

Offerings in the various churches during the day will be given toward the support of this college at Westerville. Otterbein is one of five colleges supported by the denomination.

A special program for the day is being arranged by the local pastor, Rev. E. A. Crites, Mt. Lake Park.

Standard Oil Drivers Meet Monday at William-James Hotel

At a gathering of the Standard Oil Company's motor vehicle operators in Western Maryland and West Virginia, at the William-James hotel, Oakland, on Monday, February 7, L. W. Schubert, representative from Division headquarters, delivered an address in the interest of safety. His talk included many causes for accidents and how they can be avoided, and how to operate a motor vehicle under all conditions.

At the close of the meeting H. H. Wiegand, local sales manager, complimented their driveers on their accident record for 1937, which showed a decrease of 38 percent in their own organization while accidents increased throughout Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia. Employes who completed one or more years of free accident driving were awarded a card case with a certificate of merit. The company has an accident committee which reviews every accident to determine whether or not it was avoidable or unavoidable on the part of the employe, and the handling of the case is based on the facts found.

CITY ELECTION WILL BE HELD MONDAY, MARCH 14

Judges and Clerks Appointed at Regular Meeting of Council—Other Matters Taken Up

Judges and clerks who will serve at the annual municipal election on Monday, March 14, were appointed at the regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and City council on Monday evening.

George D. White, Charles E. White and Harry West were selected as judges, and Misses Edith Bolden and Elizabeth West, as clerks.

At the election, a mayor, three councilmen and a treasurer will be chosen. Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley, and Earl Shartzer, Dr. Ralph Kercheval and Henry W. McComas, Jr., were elected in 1936 for two year terms. Hold-over members of the council will be Edward A. Shaffer, Irvin R. Rudy and Elmroy Bolden. Richard Davis, treasurer, was elected to serve one year.

Besides the appointment of judges and clerks of election, the council discussed several other matters.

Mr. Raymond D. Houck was before the council with a request to purchase a part of the town's property, on North Third street, so that he could enlarge his garage. No definite decision was made.

E. R. Jones asked the council to repair the alley between Second and Third streets, running between his property and that of F. H. Feld.

Leslie Baker, who has erected a house on the Oakland-Mt. Lake Park road, at the east edge of town, has asked again that he be given city water. Mr. Baker's property is within the corporation and the present line runs only to the East End Service station. James Compton was ordered to make a survey and report on the cost of the new line.

H. R. Ringer was granted a permit to add a gasoline tank and pump at his place of business on Oak street.

A letter was read from the Scout Troop Committee asking for the interest of the mayor and council in securing a comunity building for Oakland. The letter was passed for futur consideration.

Specifications were gone over for the electric wiring of the water farm, west of town, but no definite action was taken.

The speed of trains through Oakland again came up for discussion. After complaints had been sent to B. and O. officials several months ago the town was informed that engineers had been notified and should they not keep their speed at a moderate rate, that the town was to inform the company. According to the council, some of the engineers had continually disregarded the order, and the city clerk was ordered to make a report to B. and O. officials.

Bills amounting to $1,126 were ordered paid. Among the bills were those for back salaries of all city officials, and an order to the Fire Department for $100. This latter item made a total of $150 paid to the Fire Department during the last fiscal year in comparison to $1,500 for the past few years.

The final meeting of the present council will be held on Monday, March 7.

Itemized Account Of Levy Appears This Week

An itemized account of the levy, which was laid last week by the County Commissioners, appears in this week's issue of The Republican, along with a statement from the Commissioners giving their reasons for appropriations for maintenance of roads and capital outlay for schools.

The levy shows that $281,044.95 will be needed to run the affairs of the county for the fiscal year. The full statement appears on page six.

Motor Accidents Less During January Than Year Ago

The first month of the year began with 31 less deaths than the corresponding period of 1937. January, 1937, had 67 deaths as compared with 36 deaths for January this year, a decrease of 31.

According to the summary twenty-four persons killed in January were pedestrains, five were passengers, and seven were the operators. A majority of the accidents occurred at intersections with the next largest number on straight concrete roads during clear weather.

Lesson for February 13

CONSERVING THE SABBATH FOR MAN

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:23 3:6.
GOLDEN TEXT—And He said unto them, the Sabbath was made for man—Mark 2:27.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Holy Day.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Holy Day.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Shall I Do on Sunday?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Using the Sabbath for the Whole Man.

"A man's soul is in a bad state when he begins to regard man-made rites and ceremonies as things of superior importance and exalts them above the preaching of the gospel. It is a symptom of spiritual disease. There is mischief within. It is too often the recourse of an uneasy conscience . . . No wonder St. Paul said to the Galatians, 'Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years. I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed on you labor in vain.'" These are the comments of John Charles Ryle, Lord Bishop of Liverpool, on the lesson of today.

The formalists of Christ's day, the Pharisees, had overlooked the heart of God's law and the holy living which it was intended to produce, and had bound up even the observance of the Sabbath (which was intended to be a day of rest and gladness) in such a mass of technical "thou shalt nots" that it was a day of fear. They had a false outward profession of worship and had entirely missed the true spirituality of God's law, a fact which drew upon their heads the anger and rebuke of our Lord.

While we as Christians do not observe the Jewish Sabbath, there are principles of doctrine and life bound up in this lesson concerning the Sabbath which we may with profit apply to our day of rest—the first day of the week—the resurrection day, often called "the Lord's Day."

I. False Spirituality Unmasked.

The two incidents in our lesson reveal that under the cloak of earnestly observing the law of the Sabbath the Pharisees were actually covering their own hypocrisy and their hatred for Christ.

The accusations against the disciples because they had taken and eaten grain was not on the ground that they had stolen, for the law (Deut. 23:25) guaranteed that right to the one who had passed through his neighbor's field. They contended, however, that the disciples had worked on the Sabbath in picking and hulling the grain.

The healing of the man with the withered arm revealed that back of their professed concern for the Sabbath was a real hatred for Christ. It is an appalling thing that in the house of worship on the very Sabbath day these men, outwardly so religious, were plotting against our Lord. "They watched him," and even so the enemies of the cross watch us who are his followers.

II. True Spirituality Defined.

Jesus cuts across human hypocrisy and hatred to declare that the true keeping of the Sabbath is to do the work of God. No work of necessity (like plucking the grain) or of mercy (like healing the withered arm) is ever out of place on the day of rest.

How shall we know what we may do on the Lord's Day? Two guiding principles appear in our lesson. (1) Know and follow God's Word. Note the use that Jesus made of it in verses 25 and 26. No man will misuse the Sabbath or the Lord's Day who understands God's Word and obeys it. (2) Live in accordance with the spirit of the Lord Jesus. When tradition stood in the way of the best interests of man, He broke with tradition. If He could do good on the Sabbath He did it.

A word of caution is needed, for some have sought to interpret this lesson as providing biblical ground for doing all sorts of things on their day of rest That day is for man's good, not for his destruction. His greatest good is served by rest, worship, spiritual development, Christian fellowship, and the doing of deeds of neeessity and mercy.

III. Righteous Indignation Manifested.

Our Lord rightly showed His holy anger (v. 5) against his hardhearted critics. He was the Holy One who did not permit His anger to go beyond its proper expression. Man, it must be confessed, seldom is able to control and direct even his righteous indignation. But there is such a thing as being angry without sin (Eph. 4:26), and one could sometimes wish that God's children could be moved to a holy anger against all sin and unrighteousness.

Comforting Word

This is a comforting word of Scripture which presents Christ as a shepherd whose sheep had strayed.

God's Grace

Think what the grace of God is like. Grace is love loving the unlovely.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

North Carolina's libel laws seem reasonable enough, as it is said that a newspaper may clear itself of liability if he retracts offending statements within a reasonable time. But it appears that in a case which has recently arisen a retraction would only make matters worse.

Commenting on the candidacy of F. D. Grist for the United States Senate, the Greensboro News said the gentleman would make "an elegant dog-catcher." Mr. Grist demanded a retraction of the statement which was highly offensive to him.

The editor seemed willing to do the right thing, but pointed out that retraction would imply that the gentleman would not make an elegant dog-catcher; in other words, was not fit to be a dog-catcher. And the News admits that "there is nothing whatever in the public record of this distinguished citizen that would warrant such a conclusion."

So, at last report the News was standing by its original statement, refusing to retact, and declaring "it will stand a lawsuit first."

Another Tax Story

In 1927 the Curtis Publishing Company filed fourteen tax returns with Federal, state and local governments. It cost $850 to prepare them. In 1937 this company filed about 44,500 tax returns, the cost of preparing which was $21,000. In 1927 this company filed one tax return in Canada. In 1937 it filed one return there.

Far be it from us to tell the telephone company what kind of poles to erect on this new line toward Friendsville and Accident, but they look to us like they would stand just one good sleet storm—and no more.

Maybe they're a special kind of wood, and maybe they're lined with steel—and so maybe they are strong enough. But they don't look it.

Your Actual Value

Should anyone have any doubt of your actual value don't let him analyze you in terms of the chemist, or people will discover you're not such a "big shot as you think."

No matter how limited the mental faculties, a carcass of 150 pounds, in the words of the chemist, contains just enough fat for seven cakes of soap, carbon for 9,000 pencils, phosphorous to make about 2,000 matchheads, magnesium for one dose of salts, iron to make on medium sized nail, sufficient lime that would just white-wash a chicken coop, enough sulphur to rid one toy dog of fleas and just enough water to fill a five gallon can. That's YOU reduced to your actual value.

MAKING LAND PRODUCTIVE

Not very many years ago, and within the memory of a number of living residents, all hillsides and mountains of this country had the natural protection of dense forests, thus insuring the slopes against the destructive influences of erosion, preserving the lowlands from the damage of devastating floods, insuring a well regulated and abundant water supply throughout the year, and providing adequate refuge for a variety of game.

This section might still possess such forests had not man unwisely, carelessly and unscientically denuded the hills and mountains, thus destroying the billions of leaves which served to softeen the heavy fall of rain, and the thick sponge of humus, fertile topsoil, which acted as a reservoir supplying the surplus water to brooks and streams.

Instead, thousands of acres of waste land with inferior topsoil are seen often gutted with ugly gullies which constitute a liability and not an asset to every farmer.

Through soil erosion control and proper forestation, rehabilitation of the land now affected can take place. A meeting is being held next Tuesday at Swanton, to learn about such things. Federal and state governments are interested in these problems but the individual farmer and landowner must not only become interested but get down to actual work.

The realization that reforestation might prove a financial aid to farmers through the sale of Christmas trees, just like the maple syrup industry provides money each yenr to those having sugar maple groves, may be the means of getting people of the county vitally interested.

Financial returns on Christmas trees planted this spring, could be realized in ten years. Meanwhile erosion would be lessened. Wise cutting in ten years would insure proper forests that would retain water and lessen floods.

There would be very little cost in raising a forest. Returns would be very great in comparison.

The subject is worth much serious thought.

GET MORE FOR WHAT YOU SELL BUT PAY LESS FOR WHAT YOU BUY

Last Sunday's issue of the Cumberland Times, the leading Democratic journal of Western Maryland, has until in very recent months supported some of the policies of the Administration in part. It, however, is beginning to see where such policies are leading the nation, the individuals composing it, the small business man, the farmer, the great and small industries, and all others engaged in commerce. The Times' article, captioned as above, follows:

"It is a delightful plan to dream about. Get more for what you sell but pay less for what you buy. It would surely make everyone happy, and, eventually rich. The trouble is it can never be anything of greater value than a dream, because it will not work. And no power on earth can make it work—not even the President of the United States and all the organized groups he may induce to try to mnke dreams come true. There is just as much renson and practicability in a dreamer's statement that one shall get more for what he sells and at the same time pay less for what he buys, as there is in the Presidential press conference utterance of a few days ago that the prices of the products of industry shall be reduced but the wage scales of those who work in industry shall not be reduced. Politicians and near-politicians have a penchant for uttering and making much of popular slogans. The slogan, wages shall not he reduced, is always popular, especially with persons who talk more than they think or who dream more than they reason. Nobody wants to see wages reduced if the reduction can be avoided. But everyone of common sense knows there is no way by which wages can be paid except from the proceeds of what the products of labor can be sold for. Everyone knows that the cost of nearly everything people use is based on the cost of the labor required to produce and distribute that commodity, whether it be a paper of pins, a ton of steel, a basket of potatoes, a wagon load of lumber, a pair of shoes or a pair of stockings. If any of these things, or any other commodity be sold, continuously, for less than cost, the transactions must bring ruin to the seller and an end to emloyment for the workers, which might mean ruin for them as well as for those who employ them.

"President Roosevelt says industry must reduce prices by reducing profits. There may be some industries whose profits are great enough to enable them to reduce prices without reducing costs. But taking all the industries of the country, it is doubtful, if they would agree to wipe out all their profits, they could reduce prices sufficiently to induce greater volume of buying without reducing costs. The railroads for an example. And what of the industries that are making no profits at all, or whose profits are too small to permit a reduction of a tenth of one per cent in selling prices without the danger of bankruptcy? There are many such throughout the country. Together they employ great numbers of people. Many of these small industries must compete with large industries. How can they continue to exist if they must sell at a loss or not sell at all? And if they cease to exist, where will those working in such industries find employment? And who will absorb the loss of revenue to the governmtnt, national, state and municipal, when these industries can no longer pay taxes?

"'Wage scales shall not be reduced' is a statement that has a popular appeal and will always prompt tumultuous applause in a crowd. But slogans that appeal to the emotions of a crowd, or a multitude for that matter, will never stop a recession or cure a depression. Of what good are high wage scales to the twelve million to fifteen millions people in the country who are out of work? Of what comfort is it to the ten thousand or more persons in this community who can find nothing to do, to read flashes from the White House that wage scales shall not be reduced? And the "buying power." That phrase is much overworked. Many are fooled by it. Everyone wants the people to have as much buying power as possible. But buying power, to result in general good, must be distributed. And the best results would be obtained if buying power were distributed as equitably as possible. The way to increase the buyng power of the people is to get the employable people back to work.

NOTEWORTHY RECORDS OF HEALTH MADE DURING '37

The year 1937 went down into history with some noteworthy health records to its credit.

Provisional figures assembled by the State Department of Health, and announced by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Department, shows that though there was an incrense in the total number of cases of diphtheria reported in the State, there were fewer cases in the counties than in 1936. Sixteen of the twenty-three counties of the State came through the year without any deaths from diphtheria charged against them and in seven of the sixteen there were no cases of the disease reported. The seven with neither cases nor deaths were Allegany, Carroll, Cecil, Kent, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Worcester. The additional counties in which there were no deaths from diphtheria were Calvert, Caroline, Charles, Dorchester, Garrett, Howard, Montgomery, St. Mary's and Somerset.

Mothers throughout the State are urged, Dr. Riley said, to have their babies protected against diphtheria before they are a year old, and certainly before they are old enough to go to school. The mothers are advised to go to the family doctor and if that is not possible to have the children immunized at the clinics arranged by the county health officers. In practically every instance, he said, when children have developed diphtheria, the record has shown that they had not been protected against the disease.

Typhoid fever had a less favorable record than 1936. There were 327 cases with 31 deaths reported in 1937 in comparison with 266 cases and 27 deaths in 1936. No part of the State was entirely free from the disease but for eight counties—Anna Arundel, Caroline, Harford, Howard, Kent, Queen Anne's, St. Mary's, Talbot—no resident deaths from typhoid were reported.

Three counties- Calvert, Caroline and Howard—had no maternal deaths from conditions associated with childbirth. More babies were born in the State in 1937--27,636, in comparison with 26,512 in 1936 and fewer babies died before rounding out the first year of life—1,704 in 1937 in comparison with 1,842 in 1936. In other words, Dr. Riley said, 69 babies in each thousand born in 1936 died before the end of the year, and in 1937 the number of infant deaths dropped to 62 out of each thousand born.

Prenatal conferences for the care of expectant mothers have been established, Dr. Riley said, in nearly all of the counties. Over 1,600 women attended these conferences last year and had the benefit of medical supervision and advice and follow up nursing care.

MARYLAND BIBLE SOCIETY

The Path of Prejudice

If the Bible is the Word of God, and there are millions who steadfastly believe that it is, a solemn warning should be sounded in the ears of those who, because of an assumed superiority of race, insult and persecute the Jewish race. In the 12th chapter of Genesis, and the first three verses, the reason for this solemn warning may be found: "Now the Lord had said unto Abram, get thee out of my country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee and make thy name great: and thou shalt he a blessing: and I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee, and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed."

Some of the world's great nations, blinded by prejudice, have overlooked the threat of this Abrahamic covenant and thereby may be courting disaster.

The following is an extract from a conversation, reported by a colporteur of British and Foreign Bible Society, and which took place at Mechlenberg, Germany.

At the entrance of a village this colporteur met three men, one of them being the schoolmaster, who looked at the books but declined to make a purchase.

"Surely you don't still try to sell this old Jewish book," the schoolmaster remarked. "It will soon vanish." "I still sell the Old Testament," replied the colporteur. "It was our Saviour's Bible." "O, go away with your Saviour." "If you are a schoolmaster, do you not teach your pupils the Ten Commandments which come from the Bible—from the Old Testament?" "Yes, I know that," the schoolmaster responded, "but I do not want to have anything more to do with the Old Testament. It was written by Jews, and Jews are the worst people in the world."

"You curse the Jews," was the colporteur's reply, "but I do not find that you are at all better than the Jewish teachers of that time. There is surely no captain so foolish as to say he needs no compass, but will steer his ship by the bump of locality. Such teachers will bring our children to ruin."

The schoolteacher, however, went away muttering: "I will not bow down before this God, Jehovah!"

This was a hard day for the colporteur, but before it ended he had a happier experience. On reaching a group of workmen's cottages he met an old man who was obviously delighted that someone had come with Bibles.

"I have five grandchildren who are to be confirmed at Easter," he exclaimed. "I shall give to each of them a present of a Bible." He paid for the five Bibles and the colporteur's comment was: "So God helps. One man rejects His Word and another gives His Word to five young people."

The colporteur had further evidences that many people in Germany have not lost their faith in Christianity. An old woman asked him in great excitement if he was selling Bibles for the new religion. When he told her that he, with many, many others still believed in the God of the Bible, she looked relieved and said "I am so old and have always been so happy in my church, I cannot believe that it is all wrong." All wrong! It is about the only thing left in the world that is all right! If the nations of the world would again write in their basic law the Ten Commandments as Alfred the Great did in the eighth century, and if that great king's pious wish that the youth of his realm should engage in nothing until they could read well the Holy Scriptures, the hope and safety of the world would be far more secure than it is in our chaotic age. Let us return to the Bible as the foundation of our liberties and our happiness. If it be first read as a duty, it will come to be treasured as a source of strength, consolation, happiness and peace.

George Among English Kings

Someone writing recently of the Georges who have been kings of England, called attention to those qualities which stood out in clear relief in the character of the late King George V. Admitting freely that this good king was adorned by no brilliant gifts nor outstanding qualities of statesmenship, it was averred that he had won his way to the hearts of his people by homlier and far more practical virtues. He put duty first; he lived for his people; he set a high standard for his personal life; he drew his strength from God, and for the rest he was an English gentleman, honorable, humble-minded, unselfish, kindly. So living, so dying, he left behind him the imperishable memory of a good man, who was great because he was good. He redeemed the name of George among the Kings of England.

The new King of England has explicitly and frankly stated that he means to fashion his kingship on that of his father; this promise has been kept both by word and deed in the few short months since his accession as George VI.

On the 23rd day of May the Maryland Bible Society presented copies of the New Testament and Psalms to the graduating class of the United States Naval Academy. Mr. J. Henry Baker, in addressing the midshipmen, called attention to the religious significance of the English coronation ceremonies and of the central place given to the Bible. The coronation is first and last a religious act. The King is consecrated to his high office, and the blessings of Almighty God is invoked on his behalf. The service in Westminster Abbey, with its ancient ritual and pageantry, is the solemn recognition of the fact that only by Divine grace can a King truly fulfill his kingly vocation. The coronation is an occasion of rejoicing not only on the great thoroughfares and in the residential sections of the rich and powerful, but likewise in the humble sections of the poor. What happens in London is typical of what happens in every town, city, village and hamlet throughout the Empire. The people rejoice, but their rejoicing is more than a merry-making. The people really rejoice in God who is the King of Kings and the only ruler of princes.

The old doctrine that "the King can do no wrong" no longer holds sway. Monarchy is no longer hedged about with a superstitious reverence that protects it from all criticism. The position of a King is no sinecure. He can only serve his people as he ought by relying upon God's grace and guidance.

It may be that George VI has come to the kingdom for such a time as this. Not only England but the world needs a re-baptism of spiritual power, and a return to religion if we are to escape the calamities inseparable from careless living and forgetfulness of God. Evidences of this need are to be found in dwindling congregations, shrinkage in Sunday school attendance, secularization of Sunday and neglect of the Bible. Even professed believers in many places seem to lack that abounding faith and zeal for service once so conspicuous among the saints.

If a great Empire like that of Great Britain and a great and good King like George V exalt the Bible and give to the Holy Scriptures the central place in the nation's life, surely we of America ought to remember that the Bible itself declares: "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it. Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh in vain." Psalm 127:1.

DRUGS SOLD IN MARYLAND CONFORM TO STANDARDS

96-1 Per Cent Are As Represented, Inspection Of Stores Shows

As an indication of the care that is taken to see that drugs and medicines sold in Maryland are what they are claimed to be, and are prepared and handled in accordance with State and Federal requirements, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said that over 7,000 inspections of retail drug concerns were made by the field staff of the State Bureau of Food and Drugs in 1937.

The records of the year's findings prepared by Dr. Robert L. Swain, Deputy State Food and Drug Commissioner, shows that there are 664 retail drug stores in the State, 452 of which are in Baltimore City and 215 in the counties. Each of the stores was inspected on an average of once every five weeks during the year. Approximately 600 inspections were made each month, with a total of 7,185 for the year.

Samples of drugs and of drug products on sale in the State were collected from time to time from manufacturers and retailers for analysis in the laboratories of the State Department of Health, and of more than 1,000 specimens examined during the year, 96.1 per cent were found to conform to the official standards. Only 3.9 per cent, or one out of every twenty-five of the productstested failed to conform to the standard requirements. As a number of drug products are inherently unstable, and as a certain percentage of such products was included among those examined, it was felt that the record was very satisfactory and indicated active cooperation on the part of the manufacturers and dealers.

The significance of this showing is better understood, Dr. Swain pointed out, by comparison with the records over a period of years. In 1923 only 76 per cent of the products examined met the State requirements, and 24 per cent were found to be below the standard. In the fifteen-year period since then, there has been a steady increase in the percentage of the products that have met all requirements of the State Pharmacy law, and a corresponding decrease in those that were below the standard.

Brutal wars go on in mnny places, killing multitudes of innocent victims. Discouragement, resentment and bitter strife is felt in nearly all neighborhoods. It is so hard for us to get along well together. The deepening of soul life in all believers is the great need for these dreadful days. Lent helps to do this in reminding us of the suffering Saviour and of His sacrificial love for all our race. Christ alone enn give comfort, inspiration and encouragement.

Attest:—
W. G. MEYERS, Clerk.

TO THE TAXPAYERS OF GARRETT COUNTY

It will be noted in the levy for 1938 we have included an item of $20,000.00 for oiling and screening farm-to-market roads. In order to avoid any misunderstanding about this item we feel it proper to publish a statement explaining the reason for the inclusion of the same.

Due to certain Acts of the 1937 General Assembly, the amount this county will receive from the cent and a half lateral road gasoline tax is very materially curtailed. Last year the county was credited by the State Roads Commission with approximately $118,000.00 out of this fund to be used for lateral road maintenance and for new construction. This year it is estimated that the county's share of this fund will not be more than $88,000.00, or a reduction of some $30,000.00. There are many miles of road that have been rocked, but are getting in a bad state of repair because they have not been properly surfaced. We believe it to be poor economy to allow these roads to get into a further state of bad repair, and as it is apparent that there will not be sufficient funds to properly maintain the county roads and oil and surface the roads referred to, we think it advisable to levy this amount. This work will be done by the State Roads Commission, subject to the direction and control of the Board of County Commissioners.

One other unusual item in the levy is the amount set aside for capital outlay for schools. Delegations have frequently appeared before the Board citing the urgent need for repairs or additions or the construction of new buildings at Kitzmiller, Bloomington, Accident and Oakland. We have given very careful consideration to these requests and have investigated the need as represented to us by the delegations. The Board of Education in its budget submitted to us in accordance with provisions of the law asked for approximately $180,000.00 for capital outlay.

Obviously, we could not meet this request without practically doubling the tax rate. We did not feel that the taxpayers of the county could bear this additional burden. Consequently, we included in our levy such an amount as we felt that could be included without unduly burdening the taxpayer at this time. We were able to levy the sum of $40,000.00 for this purpose and it is hoped that during the year we may be able to get this fund matched by Federal funds, in which event we would have a very substantial amount to expend to relieve the present conditions existing in the various places mentioned.

Early Land History of Garrett County

By CHARLES E. HOYE

"The Royal Charlotte," 2000 acres, surveyed for Samuel Chase; patented to Thomas Hall, 1787. Adjoins "Piney Bottom." Part of it is now in West Virginia.

"Ashby's Cove," 250 acres; surveyed for Chase; patented to Hall, 1787. On the north side of Snowy Creek, now in West Virginia.

"Ashby's Discovery," 1000 acres; surveyed for Hugh Scott, April 6. Lies just southeast of the village of Gortner, on the east side of Cherry Creek. This was William Ashby's original settlement. We note that it was the only tract surveyed, contrary to instructions, on Lord Baltimore's Manors. Ashby's Cove and Discovery were doubtles located by the Ashby's before 1774. William Ashby probably lived on "Discovery" before it was surveyed. He here built Ashby's Fort.

"Chance," 980 acres; surveyed for Chase, April 14; patented to Hall, 1787. Lies southeast of Red House.

"Swansylvania," 600 acres; surveyed for John Swan and others, April 6. Located at Gortner.

"Covent Garden," 2240 acres; surveyed for Baker Johnson; lies on the west side of Backbone Mountain; now mostly in West Virginia.

"Mount Pleasant," 1000 acres; surveyed for Baker Johnson. This is the Gauer settlement, southeast of Gnegy church.

"Pott's Adventure," 750 acres, surveyed for Richard Potts, April 6; patented, 1785. Lies four miles northwest of Oakland.

"Price's Choice," 791 acres; surveyed for William Potts. "Adventure" and "Choice" are now included in the "Mt. Nebo" tract recently purchased by Charles McHenry Howard.

"Hunting Ground," 199 acres, surveyed for Lloyd and Paca, April 5; patented, 1793. Lies north of "Pott's Adventure."

"Deer Park," 2000 acres; surveyed for Anthony Stewart, April 14; patented to Charles Stewart and James McCullough, 1795. Site of the village of Deer Park, which takes its name from the tract. Doubtless the Stewart party in 1774 found herds of deer in the glades and woods at Deer Park.

"Peace and Plenty," 1500 acres; surveyed for Thomas Johnson, Jr., April 14; patented, 1786. "Peace and Plenty" later belonged to Captain George Calmes and still later to Henry G. Davis. The Deer Park Hotel and cottages are located on this tract, which adjoins Deer Park.

Surveys In The Deep Creek Glades

"Carmel," 341 acres; surveyed for Paul Hoye, May 17; patented to Archibald Chisholm, 1786. Now the Joseph Beckman farm west of Swanton.

"Hinche's Discovery," 1000 acres; surveyed for William Potts, April 4; patented, 1785. Now the S. L. Shank farm and part of Deep Creek Lake.

"Eden's Paradise Regained," surveyed for Robert Smith, May 4. Lies on the west fork of Green Glades Run, adjoining Baltimore's Green Glades Manor.

"Addition to Eden's Paradise," 2500 acres (included "Eden's Paradise Regained); surveyed for Richard Sprigg, May 17.

"Much Ado About Nothing," 612 acres; surveyed for Anthony Stewart, April 12; patented to Stewart and McCullough, 1795. The Fitzwater settlement adjoining Green Glades Manor.

"Rich Glade," 306 acres; surveyed for Richie and Paca, 1789. Much of "Rich Glade" is now covered by Deep Creek Lake.

Surveys East Of Great Backbone

"Flowery Vale," 400 acres; surveyed for George Dixon, April 11; patented September 4, 1776. Sold by Dixon to Norman Bruce, 1795. This was the Upton Bruce home in historic Ryan's Glade, which was sold to Israel Thompson, the cattle king, and part of which now belongs to Mrs. Duckworth. "Arno's Vale" is an enlarged resurvey of "Flowery Vale."

"Clifton," 320 acres; surveyed for Hugh Scott, April 8; patented to Thomas Johns, 1797. Included William Custer's camp of 1774. "Clifton" was the home of pioneer Michael Paugh, now the Mt. Zion church community.

"Dumfries," 280 acres; surveyed for Hanson, Jenifer and Scott, April 4; patented to General John Swan, 1790. Lies on the Potomac near Barnum.

"Walnut Bottom," surveyed for Hanson, Jenifer and Scott, April 4; patented to George Scott, 1790. Lies near John Hinche's bark camp of 1774, west of "Dumfries."

"Sportsmen's Field," surveyed for Hugh Scott. North of Kitzmiller.

"Castle Hill," 50 acres; "Both Ends of the Busk," 350 acres; "Cocklefield," 350 acres; "Williamson's Chance," 150 acres; "Sugar Tree Bottom," 150 acres, all surveyed for Gen. John Swan, April 7, 8, 9, 1774, and patented to him in 1790. "Castle Hill" was on the old Glades Path near the summit of Backbone Mountain, now the William Sharpless farm. The other tracts were between the mountain and the Potomac and were included later in Swan's large tract called "Potomac Manor."

SURVEY OF THE MILITARY LOTS

Col. Francis Deakins' Report

December the 10th, 1787.

In compliance with a Resolution of the General Assembly of the State of Maryland of the 20th day of May, 1787, and a Commission from the Governor and Council to me directed, Bearing date the 11th of June, 1787, for the purpose of surveying and laying out the Reserve Lands to the Westward of Fort Cumberland into convenient lots of 50 acres each, &c.

I Hereby Certify that I have carefully Surveyed for the State aforesaid 4163 lots of 50 acres each lying and being in Washington county and State aforesaid, and on the Manors, reserves and Confiscated lands to the Westward of Fort Cumberland, as will appear by a general plat thereof and certificates numbered in Rotation from 1 to 4163 in this Book and another titled Ledger B.

(Signed) FRANCIS DEAKINS.

This is Colonel Deakins' preface to his report to the Governor and Council of Maryland, followed by survey notes of each lot—courses and distances. The complete report fills two bound, hand-written volumes which are now on file in the Land Office at Annapolis. A plat of the lands "Westward of Fort Cumberland" accompanied the report, showing the older surveys as well as the lots surveyed.

The total area of the Military Lots was 208,150 acres. About 30,000 acres of this was already occupied by settlers—"squatters"—who had settled on the reserve lands without any legal right or title. In a supplementary report Deakins gives the names of 323 such settlers and the 636 lots they claimed. This is the first list we have of the inhabitants of western Allegany and Garrett counties. It is a fairly complete "census" of the heads of families in 1787, since it appears that the surveyors included the land of nearly every squatter in the lot survey; even those living on older surveys, such as Jesse Tomlinson and Richard Hall, laid claim to adjoining lots. The list also includes some who never resided here—Normand Bruce, Paul Hoye and others—but who owned land adjoining the lots. Of the 323 settlers reported less than half became permanent residents; doubtless some came that same spring and summer of 1787, when they heard of the survey, hoping to get free or very cheap lands; many were of a roving disposition and moved on to the great West.

Nevertheless the survey and opening up to settlement of this State land gave a great impetus to the settlement of the extreme western part of Maryland. The growth of Cumberland, which became an organized town that same year, and the rapid settlement of the reserved lands made it possible two years later to organize the new county of Allegany. The ten years following the survey of the Military Lots was a period or rapid growth "westward of Fort Cumberland."

History of the Survey of Military Lots

The Military Lots "westward of Fort Cumberland" are unique in the land history of Maryland. They constitute the most important survey made in that locality and are the basis of most of the land titles in western Allegany and Garrett counties.

In order to encourage enlistment and continued service in the Revolutionary Army, the General Assembly by an act approved October 31, 1777, provided a bounty of fifty acres of land for each Maryland soldier who should serve at least three years in the Continental Army, the State militiamen were not included in the promised bounty.

An act of the General Assembly of 1781 reserved all the unpatented lands "westward of Fort Cumberland" for Revolutionary soldiers, i. e., almost all of the extreme western part of Washington county, which included all of Lord Baltimore's extensive manors here—all the Proprietor's lands which the State had confiscated in 1776; but, beginning in 1785, the State issued patents to citizens to whom Baltimore had issued warrants and who had made surveys under these warrants in 1774.

Six years after the war, in 1787, the State finally took steps to fulfill its promise to the veterans; on the 11th of June the Governor and Council appointed Col. Francis Deakins, of Georgetown, to survey the reserved lands into suitable lots.

Col. Deakins selected as his assistants ten surveyors, viz.: Henry Kemp, Daniel Cresap, Lawrence Bringle, Benjamin Price, John Tomlinson Jonas Hogmire, Thomas Orm, John Hooker, John Lynn and William W. Hoye.

Deakins probably established his headquarters in Cumberland, from which point he sent out the survey parties and supervised the work. It is probable there were ten parties, consisting of a surveyor, with a cook, an axeman and chain carriers recruited from among the settlers. The survey began in June or July and was completed in about three months. The surveyors worked a total of 775 days and were paid ten shilling ($1.33) per day. Deakins himself was paid 200 pounds sterling for his services.

Each lot was given a number from 1 to 4165. Lot No. 1 began "at a Bounded white oak marked 1, standing on the Bank of Potowmack River and about one hundred and thirty perches above the Mouth of Savage River and running with the Meanders of said Potowmack River . . Containing fifty acres." The lot numbers usually run in groups or blocks but the numbers do not follow any particular arrangements or order. The few grants made in this area by Lord Baltimore were, of course, omitted from the survey, as were also the surveys of 1774. Of the vast area remaining the surveyors left out the rougher mountain land and laid off into lots the glades and valleys which they thought could be made into farms. However, much rocky and steep land was included in the lots surveyed. The shape of the lots varies somewhat to suit the terrain and to conform to previous surveys, but they are generally oblong.

The Deakins Line—State Boundaries

The Mason and Dixon line between Maryland and Pennsylvania had been surveyed and well marked before 1787 but the western boundary of Maryland had not been surveyed, nor did Deakins attempt to survey it. When the surveys of 1774 were made the location of the western State boundary was not yet surveyed and several of the Maryland surveys extended over into Virginia. In order not to repeat these errors in locating the Military lots, Col. Deakins surveyed a line north from Fairfax stone about one mile. Here he established the beginning corner of Lot 1101. Proceeding with the survey of the lots northward to the Pennsylvania line, he based the lots approximately on an extension of this line from the Fairfax Stone without making an actual survey of the State boundary.

This line—the western boundary of the lots—became known as the "Deakins Line," and it is of interest to note that, after years of dispute, in 1910 the boundary line between Maryland and West Virginia, surveyed by order of and npproved by the Supreme Court, follows with little variation the line of Deakins' survey of the Military Lots—the Deakins' line of 1787.

Disposition of The Military Lots

An Act of the General Assembly of 1788 appointed Captain David Lynn, Captain Daniel Cresap and Benjamin Brookes to allot the land to Revolutionary soldiers and to settlers and to fix the price of lots to settlers and to settle disputes. This commission awarded free to each officer of the Maryland Line four lots and to each soldier one lot. Also to each actual settler on the land surveyed one or more lots were awarded—a total of 246 settlers. The following notice was published July 3, 1789, in the Maryland Journal:

"Notice is hereby given to the officers and soldiers of the Maryland Line that a distribution of land will he made to them nt Upper Marlborough, in Prince George's county, on the 1st and 2nd of August next, agreeably to Act of Assembly, and at the same time and place will be offered for sale about one thousand lots of land, of fifty acres each, for ready money, or specie certificates of the State of Maryland. This land lies westward of Fort Cumberland. For particular description thereof apply to Captain Daniel Cresap or Mr. John Tomlinson, who lives near the same.

"DAVID LYNN,
"DANIEL CRESAP,
"BENJAMIN BROOKES,
"Commissioners."

Col. Deakins and his surveyors surveyed 4165 lots of fifty acres each, about one-third of which are now in the western part of Allegany county and about two-thirds in Garrett county. He reported 323 families settled as "squatters" on 636 of the lots surveyed. An Act of Assembly of 1788 provided that these settlers should be given an opportunity to purchase the lots on which they hnd settled for not less than five or more than twenty shilling (.66 2-3 to $2.67) per acre, to be paid in three instnllments. This was a rather high price for uncultivated land here nt that time. Many of the settlers did not make their payments, so, in 1791, the Assembly provided that "if any settler shall not on or before the 1st day of May next pny . . one-third at least of the vnluation of the land ocenpied by him, the same shall be sold by a fit and proper person at public or privnte sale for not less than five shillings per acre."

The Act also provided thnt other settlers might buy lots at not less than than three shillings nine pence per nere. In the following year, however, an Act of the Assembly again extended the time for payment. In 1792 an Act was also passed to compel the payment of taxes in Allegany county under penalty of sale of personal and real property.

So far as we have been able to learn not one of the Maryland soldiers settled on the land allotted to them. Most of the veterans soon sold their lots to land speculators or to actual settlers for any price they could get—usually from three to five Maryland pounds per lot—on the average of about $12 per lot, or 26 cents per acre.

Settlers On The Military Lots in 1787

Of the 323 settlers reported by Colonel Deakins, the Commission allotted land to 246, of whom the following were closely identified with the settlement of western Allegany and Garrett counties:

Towns And Villages On Military Lots

We have already noted the towns and villages located on the tracts surveyed in 1774. Those on Military Lots were:

Oakland—The original sixty-four lots of Oakland were laid off by Edward McCarty in 1849 from Lot No. 864, part of a tract which McCarty had patented in 1826, called "The Wilderness Shall Smile." Additions to the town have been made at various times, including the Josiah Pennington Addition of 1865, which was part of "Stewart's Delight"—the William Armstrong farm.

Selbysport is the oldest village in our county, laid off in lots prior to 1798, on Military Lot No. 3296, lying on both hanks of the Youghiogheny River.

Mountain Lake Park covers parts of four Military Lots, included in a tract called "Western Canal Convention," patented to William W. Hoye in 1827 and later known as "John Hoye's Pasture"; fenced in the 1830's.

Loch Lynn Heights covers parts of three Military Lots—878, 879 and 919. "David Lynn's Pasture" lies south of the town.

Bittinger is located on part of Military Lots 2134, 2281, 2283 and 2293, which were allotted for services in the Maryland Line to Lieutenant Isaac Duvall, who died of wounds received in battle. In 1814 Benjamin Duvall sold these lots to Henry Bedinger, of Somerset county, Pn., who then became the first settler at Bittinger.

Later Surveys and Grants

After the surveys of 1774 and of the Military Lots in 1787, small "vacancies," lying between surveys and many large tracts—generally the more mountainous land—remained unsurveyed and still property of the State, but during the fifty years following the lot survey and the opening up of the lands "westward of Fort Cumberland" for sale and settlement, most of the remaining State land was "taken up" by speculators and settlers, much of it in large tracts, such as the following:

"The Gleanings," 5144 neres, was surveyed for Paul Hoye in 1792 and patented to him in 1794. It included the old "Crab Tree Bottom" tract, four lots nnd a strip of vacant land down the Youghiogheny River valley.

"Potomac Manor," 10,794 3-4 acres, surveyed for Gen. John Swan, May 6, 1799, and patented to him in 1800. It included "Cocklefield," seven other tracts and thirty-one Military Lots, all lying east of Backbone Mountain in what is now Garrett county.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

The "Little Man" Speaks

Washington, Feb. 5.

Just who among the Roosevelt advisers conceived the idea of following his various conferences with the Big Business leaders by bringing to Washington some 800 and more of "little business men," to advise with the President on the state of the nation, is not known.

* * *

It may have been Secretary Roper or it may have been some member of the White House "inner circle," which, by the way, does not include Mr. Roper. Or it easily may have been the President's own idea. He has that kind. But whoever had it performed a public service, though certainly not quite the sort intended. One of the favorite Rooseveltian conceptions, enunciated by himself over the radio and at many a press conference; echoed and elaborated upon by his subordinates of the Ickes-Jackson type; proclaimed by New Deal Senators and harped upon by Administration publicity agents, is that there is in the country a handful of sinister big business men who, inherently vicious and greedy for gain, are against the Roosevelt policies. On the other hand, the "small business man" is sound and fine. He has greatly profited, it is held, thru Administration policies; is strongly for them and very grateful to the President.

* * *

That has been the claim. That has been the doctrine laid down in the White House and taken up by the spokesmen. To such an extent has it been reiterated that a great many people who ought to have known better were impressed. There seemed no way to refute the idea or disprove the claim. At least, there was none until they brought the "little business man" down here and gave him a chance to express himself. It then was revealed that the "little business man," in neither his ideas nor his emotions, differed in any way from the Big Business men. He was, it is true, a good deal hotter in the collar and a lot more violent in expressing his views, but he was distinctly for the same things and against the same things.

* * *

There is no doubt that this was something of a surprise to the White House advisers and the White House incumbent, which none of the face-saving gestures so hurriedly made was quite sufficient to disguise. They had repeated so often and so emphatically that Mr. Roosevelt was the friend of the "little fellow" and that the "little fellows" were all with him that they had gotten to believe it themselves. In consequence, when the "little fellows" made it clear that they are not only intensely disturbed but extremely indignant over the Administration's treatment of business in the past; its present threatening attitude and its suggestions for further legislation, it left the sponsors of the "little business men's" visit slightly off balence.

* * *

It is true the "resolutions" were greatly toned down before they were taken to the President and that there was no belligerency about their presentation by the selected committee of ten. It is true, too, a good deal of journalistic fun was poked at the gathering and, as was natural, the few who created the most disorder were featured, rather than the quiet and solid majority. That always happens. None of this, however, altered the fact that the "little business man" wanted Mr. Roosevelt to stop doing a number of things he has been doing and to do a number of things he has not been doing. And, on both counts these things were identical with those urged by Big Business and by the more consistent critics of the whole New Deal philosophy. Not the least sound of their recommendations was that the administration of relief be returned to the local communities as quickly as possible—but they will get no action on that.

* * *

When they are fairly considered, these resolutions constitute the most striking plea for a return to sanity that has yet been made and it ought to have an effect. It came from a group of men the majority of whom unquestionably voted for Mr. Roosevelt in 1936 and are not very hostile now, though they are greatly dismayed at the result of his policies and the character of his program. They do not want to "go forward." They do not want reform or expriment; they do not want Government loans or aid; they do not want wages, prices or production governmentally controlled and they certainly do not want another spending spree. What they want is to be let alone for a while and given a chance to pull out of this slump, which they fully believe they can do, if only the President will do the things which "little business" urges even more strongly than Big Business. In effect, that was what they said.

* * *

It really was impressive and significent—this expression from the "little fellow," despite the turbulance and incoherence of the gathering. It was an indictment that could not be laughed off or discounted by the usual references to economic royalists or princes of privilege. It ought to mean something to Mr. Roosevelt and his left-wing advisers, but if it leaves them cold—and it may—it is incredible that it should not have its effect upon Congress. Because they vibrated—these "little men"—with the American spirit and spoke with a national voice.

MT. LAKE PARK

The appeal for "Do You Remember" brought much materials to us. However, the trouble seems to be the inaccuracy of dates. For instance, the question of when did the breaking of the old dam at the lake occur? At that time we were reminded of the old wooden steps which were built at the top of the hill above the bowling alley and ran to the foot of the hill. The month of the cloudburst was June, that we are certain is correct. It was early in the afternoon when the storm began Then the dam at the lake gave way and water came pouring through the glade washing the four-foot walk entirely away. Wiley Welling thinks the date was 1896, others say 1897 or '98. If any reader has the right date we should like to know. After the flood an ice house was built and the railroad switch laid near the ice house.

L. C. Prevost wants to know how many remember the old watering trough which stood just across the street from the Association cottage which was at that time occupied by the late J. A. Enlow and family. There were several tinenps hanging to the side where the water ran in before it reached the trough.

Another comes from Wheeling, W. Va.: Remember when L. A. Rudisill was postmaster and the postoffice was open for the Sunday afternoon mail distribution and delivery.

From St. Petersburg, Florida: I remember when Tom Gonder had a drug store in the summer time. Before that Dr. Laughlin was the owner and it was open the year 'round. Dr. Laughlin and family had come from Deer Park where he was a practicing physician and in the Park he continued his profession.

A late item has just come in telling us that the date of that flood was 1909 or 1910. Several others say the same.

BETTER FAMILY LIVING

By Mrs. Kermit Glotfelty

We are entering upon a new year in Extension work and we as homemakers in our county are looking forward to a year of worthwhile progress.

Miss Kellar says "the past year has seen the greatest expansion, the greatest interest and the greatest development in leadership in the history of our home demonstration work in Maryland. County council meetings and achievement days have had a record attendance as well as interest in every county. The cultural project has made it's contribution to every club member. Historical interest in old churches were created. Interest from Rural Women's Short Coures has carried over in the counties, and effects of this year's program are being felt by all club members in the State."

Miss Kellar also thinks the picture for extension work for 1938 is a bright one. The programs submitted by the home demonstration agents for their respective counties are full of definite, interesting, worthwhile, and timely information. There is no organization in the county that offers the high type of adult education to our women as the Extension Service.

We, as Garrett county women, are looking forward with new goals in the coming year. One goal is to increase the membership in all clubs, especially among young homemakers.

We hope to have a renewed interest in our music work, with definite progress in that field. Mrs. Delma Arnold of Kitzmiller is our county music chairman for the coming year and her program plans to have each club do definite work in music. She hopes to see a renewed interest in better music, an appreciation of the really fine music of the masters. She hopes to have more music and group singing in the individual homes, and that we teach our children to enjoy fine music. Her plans for the club music is to have part singing, three parts for women's voices. The clubs are supplied with Music Appreciation books of favorite American songs. She also suggests special numbers to be used, solos, duets, etc., for club use. The study of composer's lives is suggested to add interest to their compositions.

Our reading program for the year is a fine one. Each club plans to have books available for all of their members to read, books of the highest type. Mrs. C. C. Gnegy of Mt. Lake Park is county reading chairman. Last year Mrs. Gnegy made a study of the reading of homemakers in the county. She found that as a county we were reading more fiction than other types of books. Her goal for this year is to have us read other types of books, also emphasizing history, biography and travel. Through the reading of good books we learn of other people's lives, see other lands and broaden our thinking. "The first time I read a good book I felt I had made a friend," says a famous man.

Last year our organization carried out a Peace program during the year, having a Peace speaker come to our county to speak to all clubs. We are continuing our program this year with Mrs. O. P. Jones, of Kitzmiller, in charge. We are planning to have one County Peace Organization with each club having a representative, as a member of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. The organization will receive a magazine and peace literature which will be distributed to all clubs for discussion and study. Also books on peace will be studied throughout the county approaching the problem from the standpoint of a Christian. We hope we may accomplish something worthwhile with this organization.

We hope to have a number of women attending Rural Women's Short course next June, taking advantage of its splendid program of education and recreation.

Our cultural study for the year is the study of old homes in various communities, then the five oldest homes in the county. We hope every one will enjoy this study.

A number of our women are keeping Farm Home accounts and we hope more women will keep these books in the coming year.

The program for the year continues with Home Furnishings for Better Family Living," including better consumer buying knowledge. As a minor there will be three demonstrations on "money management" and on points of laws affecting women.

We hope to have regular and increased attendance at all meetings, county meetings as well as at all club meetings.

We hope to keep the social tone and conversations of our meetings at a high level of thought, as we have in the past. Gossip and tale-bearing have no place in our homemakers clubs, and we wish cooperation in keeping our organization on the highest level of thinking.

As an organization, the homemakers clubs of Garrett county stand for ideals that make for better family living, and for all those things that make our communities better places in which to live.

BITTINGER

Keep not to the path that millions have trod,
Choose rather a course all your own—
For all great works of man, with God,
Were fashioned in silence, alone.

Rev. C. A. Shilke, of Oakland, preached a very excellent sermon from the pulpit in the Lutheran church here last Sunday. Rev. Shilke was accompanied on his trip to this village by Mrs. Shilke.

Rev. C. A. Curran, pastor of the local Lutheran congregation, preached in the Lutheran church in Oakland last Sunday morning.

Services in the Lutheran church next Sunday will be at the usual hours in the forenoon.

Miss Dorothy Curran, Pittsburgh, spent the week-end with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Curran in the parsonage here.

News reached this village early last Saturday morning, telling of the death of Lewis Brenneman, in Cumberland. The deceased was a native of this village and had many relatives here to whom the news of his tragic end was a great shock.

Mrs. Curran, wife of Rev. C. A. Curran, while walking near her home on Wednesday evening of last week, slipped on the ice and fell, sustaining a badly sprained ankle, which has kept her off her feet since the accident.

C. E. Ellithorp, who was injured in an automobile accident some weeks ago and who was taken care of in the Memorial hospital, in Cumberland, returned to his home here on Thursday of last week.

St. Mark's Lutheran

Rev. A. K. Jones, of Red House, will be in charge of services in St. Mark's church on Sunday morning when Holy Communion will be administered.

Dr. A. B. Leamer, who has accepted the call to become pastor of the church, has notified Julius C. Renninger, Jr., secretary of the church council, that he will be in Oakland to take charge of the services on Sunday, February 20. He will then be absent on Sunday, February 27, and will then assume his duties on Sunday, March 6.

The parsonage is now undergoing numerous repairs, prior to the arrival of Dr. A. B. Leamer, the new pastor.

The Brotherhood of St. Mark's will meet next Wednesday evening, February 16. Further plans will be made for the turkey supper, to be served in the social room on Wednesday, February 23. Serving will begin at 5:30.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our husband and father, Reginald F. Livengood, who passed away two years ago February 10, 1936.

Two years it's been since you left us,
Tho it seems like many more;
We were happy when you were with us
But now our hearts are sore.

God knows how much we miss you—
Never shall your memory fade;
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where you are laid.

We don't know why you had to be called
So soon to that "far-off land"—
Since God does things for the very best,
Some day we'll understand.

Sadly missed by—
WIFE AND LITTLE SON.

GOV. NICE DEFENDS HIS REGIME AT LINCOLN FETE

Says "Partisan Press" Ordered To Carry "Untrue Propaganda To Bolster Democrats"

HAS WIPED OUT DEFICIT

Governor Harry W. Neie told 1200 Lincoln Day diners last Saturday evening the order had gone forth to "a partisan press" to carry "untrue propaganda to bolster up a crumbling and disrupted Democratic party in this State."

"Compare my magistrates with those of former administrations, some of whom, I am told, are still in the penitentiary," he said. "Why the outcry of today and the gilden silence of political expediency of yesterday?"

Says Deficit Wiped Out

The Governor departed from his prepared speech to discuss the newspapers. In another interpolated section he said he had taken office facing "a deficit of nearly $4,000,000," which he said had been converted into "a surplus of nearly $6,000,000."

Senator Charles N. McNary, Republican floor leader in the U. S. Senate, was scheduled to make the principal speech at the Hamilton Club dinner in Baltimore, but was not able to come. In his stead, other Republicans spoke briefly.

Nice Proposed For Renomination

August F. Mueller, magistrate-at-large, assailed newspaper criticism of police courts and wound up by proposing that Governor Nice be nominated by the party again next fall.

The Governor said the Republican party now was in "very much the same position" it was in when President Lincoln came into power.

"It was, then as now, the party of opposition rather than of power," the Governor said in his address before the Lincoln Day dinner of the Alexander Hamilton Club. "It had the unpleasant but solemn task of rousing the people to a realization of how those in power were emptying the national treasury. It had the unpleasant duty to open the eyes of the citizens to the unsound financial condition in which the party in power was allowing the country to remain.

"Most tragically of all, it was the party which found a war practically thrown on its doorstep . . as it approaches the time when the American people will again make it the majority party, it finds itself face to face with the fighting of a war. But thank God, in this war today is not a war of a nation divided. It is a war on poverty, on unemployment and oppression. It is a war which can be fought, not on the field of battle, but in the more constructive environment and less bloody circumstances of factory and shop and home."

The Governor was the principal speaker at the dinner, the chief Maryland celebration of the Republican rallying day. Other Lincoln Day dinners were held Saturday night in other parts of the State so they would not interfere with the Hamilton Club affair.

The Mild, Dry Winter Over State May Prove Costly

Maryland's comparatively mild and dry winter may prove costly to the State forests, according to C. F. Winslow, forestry specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service, who recently said the dry condition of ground litter under trees means danger of forest fires. Spring fires are especially destructive, he said, because the sap is flowing and trees are less able to withstand effects of fire.

Burned trees not killed outright are badly damaged. Mr. Winslow urged property and land owners not to light field fires during early spring months. Forest fires are most prevalent in Maryland during March, April and May.

Social Security Account Numbers Total 527,786 in Maryland

Applications for Social Security account numbers received by the Social Security Board at the end of January totalled 527,786 for the State of Maryland and 502,070 for the State of West Virginia, Macon G. Williams, manager of the Cumberland field office of the Social Security Board, announced.

Mr. Williams stated that Social Security account numbers issued up to the end of January in the United States totalled 37,349,905.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR EARLY SPRING IN STATE

Forecaster Says, However, "Conditions Can Change Suddenly"

Maryland's prospects for an early spring are bright, Forecaster John W. Weeks, Baltimore, of the State Weather Bureau, ventured to state this week, but left a way open for beating a hasty retreat by adding, "But conditions can change suddenly."

"During a normal winter the coldest weather usually occurs during the first week of February, but during an ahnormal winter we might have our coldest weather during the last part of the month," he said.

"I should say the probabilities are that we will have no more severe weather this month and ordinarily we don't have much cold weather in the month of March."

Whether or not Forecaster Weeks knows all there is to know about the weather, is a question, as his prognostications usually concern Baltimore and vicinity and do not follow through in this county. Mr. Weeks also, perdicted a snow "which looks like an old-timer," either beginning Tuesday evening, February 15, or on February 16. This did not materialize here in Garrett county.

Isabella, the Garrett county caterpillar, was claiming victory in her prediction of snow for last week, but was a little over-enthusiastic, perhaps, on the quantitative side, as she predicted a heavy snow. In Garrett county it was mostly ice, but there were snow flurries in other parts of the State.

A note to the Forestry Department in Balimore was received last week, "Snow today in Garrett county. Very truly yours, Isabelle."

Preceding the signature of Isabella was that of Charles N. Butler, project supervisor at a CCC camp near Deer Park, who got out his calipers and slide rule and made weather predictions on the basis of color markings on Pyrrarctia Isabella, the tiger-moth caterpiller.

Soil Conservation Meeting At Swanton

On Tuesday, February 15, n soil conservation meeting, arranged by John H. Carter, County Agent, took place at the school house in Swanton. Approximately one hundred persons were present. Mr. Carter, as chairman, opened the meeting with a review on the new agricultural legislation just passed in Congress. He then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. R. F. Boening, who gave an illuminating talk on the planting of trees in connection with soil-erosion control and the rehabilitation of waste land. After the talk a discussion in the form of questions and answers took place.

The interest shown by all present was most heartening and evidenced itself by more than twenty signatures of those who want to delve deeper into the matter and want, if possible, to replant those parts of their land not fit for anything other than the growing of timber. Anyone interested in this plan may get in touch with Mr. Carter or Mr. Boening. A copy of the talk made will be furnished free of charge and any other information gladly given.

Suffers Broken Leg When Motorized Car Strikes Rock On Track

J. Robert Thrasher, of Deer Park, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad employe, sustained a broken right leg and numerous cuts and bruises on Tuesday morning, when a motorized car upon which he was riding near Moorefield, West Va., struck a large rock that had fallen down the mountainside onto the track.

The stone, which weighed about two hundred pounds, was lying on the track just beyond a sharp curve and the motor was upon the object almost before it was seen by Mr. Thrasher and the other men riding with him. The impact was so great that all the men were tossed about, Mr. Thrasher striking upon his leg and shoulder, breaking his leg in two places. He was taken to Memorial Hospital, in Cumberland, for surgical treatment. None of the other men were seriously injured.

Tests passed this week by members of Troop 2, Oakland Girl Scouts, included Marylyn Compton, Louise Ott, Marion Honick, first aid; Willa Browning, Ann Lawrence, signaling; Marylyn Compton, tenderfoot; training a tenderfoot scout, Evelyn Fraley and Ann Lawrence.

SCOUT JAMBOREE HELD AS ANNIVERSARY WEEK ENDS

Troop 3 Wins First Prize With Miniature Bivouac Camp

A Scout Jamboree was held Thursday evening in the school auditorium. This meeting celebrated the inauguration of the newly established Potomac Council with headquarters still in Cumberland, but district headquarters in Oakland. Arrangements are being made making it possible to purchase official equipment from one of the local merchants.

The following troops were represented: Troop No. 1 and Troop No. 3, of Oakland, and a lone Scout Neighbor Patrol from Altamont. Other troops had been invited.

The program was opened by Henry McComas, Jr., scoutmaster of Troop No. 3, who made a short address on scouting, followed by Rev. George F. Packard, chairman of the Jamboree, who announced the presentation of four skits by the patrols of Troop No. 1 under the supervision of their respective patrol leaders.

Following this, competition was arranged between the scouts in fire building, first aid, knot tying and signaling. The judges were L. M. Fraley, Dr. N. I. Broadwater, Harley Dawson, and Grover C. Stemple. Awards were presented to the winners by H. A. Loraditch as follows: James Helbig, troop 3, 1st in first aid; William Close, troop 3, 1st in fire building; Ray Lambert, troop 3, 1st in signaling; Lewis Naylor, troop 1, 1st in knot tying.

Each of the two Boy Scout troops and the Lone Scout neighborhood patrol had exhibits. The lone Scouts of Altamont presented a fine showing in horticulture and botany. Troop No. 1 presented charts on patrol competition, test progress, conventional signs and knot boards. Troop No. 3 displayed a bivouac camp in miniature, first aid tents and signal towers.

The latter troop won first place for its exhibit, which was displayed in Gortner's store window on Saturday.

Assistant Scoutmaster Ralph M. Luman of Troop No. 1, invested Glenn Wood and James Lake, two Lone Scout boys from Altamont. Following this, Rev. George F. Packard officially closed the first Jamboree of the new district council.

APPRAISAL OF FEDERAL PROGRAMS WILL BE MADE

State, County And Municipal Agencies Have Been Asked To Fill Out Questionaires

TO INCLUDE RELIEF WORK

Letters of invitation, with questionaire, have been sent out to officials of State, county and municipal agencies, requesting them to take part in the United States Community Appraisal, being conducted under the auspices of a number of national cooperating agencies and sponsored locally by the Maryland State Planning Commission, for the purpose of evaluating the Federal Works Program in Maryland.

These Federal programs are Works Progress Administration, Public Works Administration, Civil Works Administration and Maryland Emergency Relief Administration.

Such letters have been received by the Board of County Commissioners and the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland and other towns in Garrett county where projects have been carried on.

This appraisal, according to Abel Wolman, of the Planning Commission, is being undertaken for the purpose of gathering information on all experiences of city, county and State governments, to determine the programs and projects which have produced the most beneficial improvements and services to the communities, and to determine the wisest and most economical methods of cooperation with the Federal Works Program in the employment of needy unemployed men and women from the relief rolls.

Of most specific interest are the relative social and economic advantages to the community in the light of both present and future needs, and the social effects of the programs on the needy unemployed people who were given work relief by them.

March 8 is the date set for completion of the State appraisal, which will be submitted to a national appraisal committee.

Deep Creek Lake Advertised At Outdoor Life Show

Deep Creek Lake is being advertised rather extensively at the Outdoor Life Show in Baltimore this week, according to a letter from Caleb Winslow, who is director of the Winslow-Garey camp, "Thousand Acres," on Deep Creek Lake.

Mr. Winslow writes:

"Our camp is helping to acquaint the thousands here in Baltimore for the North American Outdoor Life Show with Deep Creek Lake and the Oakland region. At our booth, No. 16, we are showing moving pictures of boating on Deep Creek Lake and many persons are expressing interest in the Lake as a suitable place for their vacation.

"Dr. McComas and the State Conservation Department have also done a fine work of publicity."

Mr. and Mrs. Winslow have taken over all of Major E. B. Garey's holdings in the Garey camp, which will in future be known as the Winslow-Garey Camp. This summer will make the fifth season for the camp for boys on the lakeshore.

MARYLAND RELIEF COSTS INCREASED FOR JANUARY

State Spent $702,577 Last Month on Direct Aid, A 6% Jump

Maryland's January relief costs jumped six per cent, or about $443,000 over December, largely as a result of an increase of more than 1,000 cases on direct relief rolls, the Board of State Aid and Charities reported on Tuesday.

The State spent $702,577 last month compared with $659,089 in December, the board's January statement showed, with direct relief costs up $32,635, or 20.9 per cent.

Increases of from one to three and a half per cent was noted in cost of old age assistance and aid to dependent children.

27,721 Get Relief

January 31, 8,330 cases, representing 27,721 persons, were receiving direct relief, and 4,072 applications were pending. Allegany county, hard hit by industrial lay-offs, received 926 applications for direct aid during the month and had 936 applications pending at the end of the month.

Baltimore City received 3,944 applications and had 1,222 pending.

Indications that applications for old age assistance were piling up in the counties last month were apparent in figures showing 2,050 applications for aid pending as of January 31. The board estimated 15.2 per cent of the State's population over sixty-five was receiving assistance on that date.

Mrs. P. H. Rodeheaver Burned By Explosion Of Gasoline

Mrs. Patrick H. Rodeheaver, of Sand Flat, six miles north of town, suffered painful burns to her left arm and leg last Friday when fire was discovered in the kitchen of her home.

Mrs. Rodeheaver was attempting to carry out a small can of gasoline from the kitchen when it caught on fire and spread to her body.

The flames were extinguished by the use of a number of blankets. The origin of the fire was not definitely determined but it was supposed to have been from an overheated stove.

37,416 Checks Mailed For Unemployment Insurance

When the employes of the Maryland Unemployment Compensation Board closed work on February 13, a total of 37,416 checks had been mailed to beneficiaries of the unemployment section of the Social Security Ast.

This aggregate of 37,416 checks represented $326,000 in cash, and most of the 82,000 claims which have now been filed. Not all of these 82,000 claims will be paid, as not less than one-third fail to comply with the law. The average of the checks is now between $8 and $9.

ONE MAN KILLED; YOUTH FATALLY HURT IN CRASH

Car Hits Culvert On Deer Park-Sand Flat Road During Sleet Storm Last Friday Evening

DOUBLE FUNERAL IS HELD

Alexander Charles George, 76, retired mail carrier, was instantly killed, his grandson, Charles Crispen, aged 6, died later in a Keyser hospital, and five others were injured last Friday night about 6:30 when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a culvert on the Sand Flat-Deer Park highway during a sleet storm. The impact forced open the car doors, throwing Mr. George several feet into a creek bed. Several others were thrown out on the roadway.

Corporal Thomas Currie, of the State police, said the automobile was driven by Mrs. Nellie Holtschneider, wife of William Holtschneider, of near Deer Park.

Mrs. George suffered a broken arm and broken leg and is in a serious condition in Potomac Valley hospital, at Keyser. Charles Crispen, grandson, died in the hospital on Saturday afternoon of a fractured skull, and another grandson, Harry Crispen, is in the Keyser hospital. The children are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Crispen, of Bobtown, Pa. Mrs. Holtschneider is in Allegany hospital, Cumberland, suffering from numerous cuts and bruises.

Two other occupants of the car, Dr. E. E. Sollars and his daughter, Miss Mary Sollars, of Deer Park, also were injured about the face and legs and were taken to their home that night where they are recovering. They were all returning to Deer Park from Bobtown, Pa., when the accident occurred.

No Inquest Necessary

State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, following an investigation, assisted by Corporal Currie, stated that no inquest would be necessary. Fraley decided it was unavoidable.

Double Funeral Held

A double funeral service for Mr. George and his grandson, Charles Crispen, was conducted Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Deer Park Methodist church, Rev. Paul Maness, Corinth W. Va., and Rev. Ward officiating. Interment was in the Deer Park cemetery. Members of the Odd Fellows fraternity, Mt. Lake Park, were pallbearers and flower bearers. Mr. George was born at Barton.

Surviving Mr. George are his wife and seven children, W. Earl George, Mrs. E. E. Sollars, Kenneth George, and Mrs. Alice Holtschneider, of Deer Park; Mrs. Wilbur Crispen, Mrs. Nellie Bittinger and Paul George, of Bobtown, Pa.

Surviving Charles Miller Crispen are his parents and two brothers.

Auto License Tag Demand Very Slow At Present

Business was "very slow" at the office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles this week as issuance of 1938 license tags began. The new green and white plates cannot be used until March 15.

During the last fiscal year 400,332 automobiles were licensed in the state. However, under the 1937 re-registration law, approximntely 420,000 new permits were issued, indicating a probable increase in business this year.

Applications for 1938 tags are being received by citizens of this county.

CHOOSING COMPANIONS IN SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 3:7-19, 31-35.

GOLDEN TEXT—For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother—Mark 3:35.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Twelve Men Who Went With Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Twelve Men Who Went With Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working With Others for Christ.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Comradeship in Christian Service.

"God can save a man who is all alone on the top of the Alps." So spoke one who sought to discourage another who wanted to give his life for Christian service. No one questions that God could thus carry on His work in sovereign power, and that there are times when He does that very thing. But ordinarily God works through men. It was "the sword of the Lord, and of Gideon" (Judges 7:18).

What a glorious, inspiring truth it is that God calls men into companionship with Him for service. Sinful and weak though they be they may become strong and holy, and do valiant service for Him.

I. The Need of Christian Workers (vv. 7-11).

Although the hostility to Christ was growing apace among the religious leaders, the people thronged about Him in the hope they might have deliverance from the devil and from disease. The need was so great that the Lord Jesus now prepared to call those who were to be His fellow-servants.

The multitudes are in just as desperate need of Christ and of the ministry of His church today. Why, then, do they not crowd the churches and press in around His servants? That is the question over which leaders of the church are puzzled. There may be many reasons, but we suggest two as being at least worthy of careful thought. The first is that we live in a time of apostasy. In the time of Christ men had only begun to hear His message of deliverance. In our day men have heard and heard again and have hardened their hearts.

Another reason is that in many, perhaps most, instances, the church has so far separated itself from the Lord that it has no power. Needy men are not interested in the dead observance of religious forms. They want to see the workings of the power of the Most High God!

Whether men know their need or not, whether they throng our churches or not, their very need of Christ should impel us to serve the Master in reaching them. The love of Christ should constrain us.

II. The Call to Christian Work (vv. 12-19).

Much might be said at this point but we must limit ourselves to two thoughts. Note that the Lord chooses his own workers; we do not choose to work for Him. Then be encouraged by the fact that He chose men of widely differing gifts, temperaments, and personal characteristics.

Then we note that He called some of unusual ability, others with little ability; some learned, and some unlearned—fishermen, a tax-gatherer, and others of various occupations. Note that none were by profession preachers. What a comfort it is to those who are in Christian work to remember that it is not what we are or may have been that counts; it is what Christ is and what he can do through us!

III. Preparation for Christian Work (vv. 31-35).

God has many ways to prepare His servants—but it seems that they all experience the heart-breaking disappointment of misunderstanding and the heart-warming joy of intimate fellowship with the Lord.

Look at verse 21 and you will realize that the family and friends of Jesus thought He was crazy because He devoted Himself so wholeheartedly to the service of His Father. Is it not strange that if a man becomes a scientist he is honored if he ruins his health in zealous research? If he is a business man he may burn the lights late in the pursuit of wealth, but if he chooses to give his life to the greatest of all occupations open to man—service for Christ—his friends and relatives try to deter him by calling him a fanatic.

Beautiful beyond words is the other side of our picture. Those who serve Him are "to be with Him" (v. 14). He sends them forth to preach, and gives them power. Yes, they even become the members of the most intimate family circle. "Behold . . . my brethren" (v. 34).

Vain Regrets and Grief

Forgive!—the years are slipping by, and Life is all too brief—A time will come when it's too late for vain regrets and grief.

Come Apart and Rest!

Even the busiest lives must have their breathing times, when the ordinary strain of effort is relaxed.

Unconscious Benefaction

It may well be that the good we unconsciously do exceeds the sum of all our purposed benefactions.

SCOOP'S COLUMN

BY Scoop Himself

The First Election

The record of the first election for municipal officers in the town of Oakland, has been found among the records at the Court House in Allegany county.

The first election was held on the first Monday in May, 1862. Polls were open from 2 until 6. L. W. Wardwell and George W. Legge were clerks; M. Fallows and James Faith were the election judges. The polls were held in the home of Rowan White, and a burgess and four commissioners were to be elected. The result of the election was as follows: For burgess, Dr. St. Felix Collardeau, 15; E. D. Kepner, 15. For commissioners, C. W. White, 55; Rowan White, 45; John Adair, 45; Thomas Bosley, 44; E. M. Ream, 18; Peter Baker, 15; John Michaels, 15. Lafayette Townshend, 0.

The name of White has been connected with elections in Garrett county in one connection or another, ever since, or so it seems.

John O'Ren, in his column in The Sun, "Down the Spillway," had the following about the late Harvey Firestone:

"Harvey Firestone was known as a rubber king and his life story, I suppose, has become a fixed and integral part of the great history of American industry. But what I thought of when I read of his death was the unusual circle of friends of which he was one—the others being Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford and John Burroughs. It was a remarkable group—two great industrialists, an inventor and a naturalist, and each of them in his own realm a pioneer.

"Burroughs was the first to die—in 1921, when he was 84 years of age. Then Edison, ten years later—and he, too, was 84. And now Harvey Firestone. He was 69. Ford alone remains of the circle of four companions whose friendship was almost as notable as their individual accomplishments."

* *

Many people of this immediate community were very much aware of this friendship circle, as Firestone, Edison, Burroughs and Ford camped each summer for several years at Swallow Falls. They did their camping at the Falls when it was difficult to reach there, and the scenes were not nearly so well known. How they happened to find this beauty spot is not known, but once it had been found they enjoyed coming back to it.

Easier of access now, it still maintains much of its wild and natural beauty, and it is not difficult to realize what drew them to this spot.

Month of Birthdays

February has been known as the months of birthdays of famous people. Lincoln and Washington are just two examples.

On Saturday, February 12, it was Lincoln and Dr. Henry W. McComas.

On Monday, February 14, it was St. Valentine and I.

Dr. Henry celebrated his 72nd birthday anniversary on that day by tackling a difficult call to a sick person. He went as far as he could in his automobile, and was then met and conducted on to the house, walking for quite a distance, over in the Ryan's Glade community.

What Would He Say to the President?

It happened in the corridor of a hotel in Washington on Sunday.

The boys had become too noisy in a room in which two people who hadn't seen each other for five years were trying to carry on a conversation, so it was up to "pappy" to take them out for a stroll.

We had no sooner stepped out into the hall than along came a person whom I recognized instantly—Vice-President John N. Garner, accompanied by, I presume and hope, Mrs. Garner. He said "good morning," and then buried his head in a paper to wait for the elevator. By the time I had returned the greeting we were all forgotten, but Johnny, not yet three, wasn't going to let this opportunity pass. He stepped over and looked up, under the Vice-President's newspaper, and hollered, "Hi!"

It's just hard to tell what he might have said had it been the President.

A farmer calling at The Republican office the other day said he didn't know which interfered with farmin' the most—the weather or the politicians.

Roy Wildman, of the Park, has formed a no-profit club, which will give young people of that section a place to spend their time and keep out of outside michief. He has a room over the postoffice where he now has a ping pong table, a pool table and several other small equipment games fixed up. Each members pays a certain amount each month which pays rent for the room.

Coconut Banana Snow

Three bananas, cut in small pieces, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, ½ cup cream, whipped; ½ cup powdered sugar, 1 egg white, stiffly beaten, 2-3 cup coconut.

Combine bananas, sugar and lemon juice; chill; force through sieve; fold fruit into egg white, then fold in cream and coconut; top with additional cream and coconut, if desired.

Coconut Date Bars

One and one-fourth cups sifted cake flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs well beaten, 1 cup finely cut dates, 1 tablespoon hot water, 1¼ teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 cup coconut.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again; add sugar gradually to eggs, beating thoroughly; add butter; then dates and coconut, mixing thoroughly; add flour, alternately with water, beating well; turn mixture into two greased pans 8x8x2 inches, spreading batter thin; bake in slow oven 325 degrees F., 30 to 35 minutes; cool; cut in bars; remove from pan. Makes 18.

Line a large shallow pan or baking sheet, 12x9 inches, with pastry rolled ⅛ inch thick; arrange apricots in rows on dough; sprinkle with ½ cup sugar and dot with butter; bake in hot oven 425 degrees F. 20 minutes; sover with coconut topping made by combining coconut, remaining ½ cup sugar, salt, egg and milk; reduce heat to moderate (375 degrees) and bake 15 minutes longer, or until delicately browned; cool and cut into 2x1½ in. strips. THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by special permission.

"Feebly Forceful"

Theodore Roosevelt had an expression which in these days might well be employed to describe the present White House incumbent. He used to say of men whose deeds failed to fulfill the expectations aroused by their words that they were "feebly forceful."

* * *

Certainly an increasing number of people seem to be acquiring this idea of the President—and from sources which are significant. Of course, it would mean much if this view were expressed by consistent critics or political opponents, but when it comes from individuals and groups which in the past not only have been favorable but have applauded his boldness and courage, it seems indicative of a change in attitude.

* * *

For example, it is not the biased writers who now lay the most stress upon the struggle for molding the President's policy going on between Mr. Richberg on the one side and what is called the Corcoran-Jackson group on the other. On the contrary, the most vivid reports on this conflict among his advisers have come from his friends. It is also true that his vacillation between Dr. Morgan and his moderate TVA policies and the vehement Mr. Lilienthal, whose radical ideas would expensively expand Government competition in ways not hinted at in the original conception—the Presidential indecision in that controversy is impatiently commented upon by men, in Congress and out, who have been his admiring supporters.

* * *

In brief, since the present depression began, Mr. Roosevelt has wabbled between two courses of action, to the intense exasperation of the advocates of both among his intimates. The result is that there is today in Congress more general criticism of the President than at any time since he entered the White House. Unable yet to bring himself to the point of following his left-wing friends into another inflationary spending spree, he is equally incapable of acting upon the advice of both big and little business men to repeal designated and devastating tax laws and abandon the effort to further regulate and restrict industry.

* * *

To do the first is to repudiate the things he has said over and over to his more conservative advisers, and, in fact, to retreat from the assurances he has given more than once. But to do the second means that the radicals, who, from the start, have been responsible for his attacks upon business and his general disposition to incite resentment against success, may turn upon him with the cry that he has "let the people down." From that he shrinks. The popular picture of himself as the friend of the masses in their battle against intrenched wealth is so dear to him that he cannot bear to have it charged that he has weakened—even by irresponsible people who have their own political purposes to serve—even when he knows that the revival of business by the common-sense methods urged upon him is the one true way of promoting the interests of the masses.

* * *

All this adds up to the fact, agreed upon by his franker friends, that all the President has in the way of present policy can be summed up as follows: First, he refuses to believe that business is as badly off as he is told or as the evidence shows; second, he thinks that in the next three months natural causes will bring about a recovery; third, if they do not, then he is inclined to think there is nothing to do but spend more money. If he has anything more concrete in his mind at the moment, those who have closest contact with him do not know it.

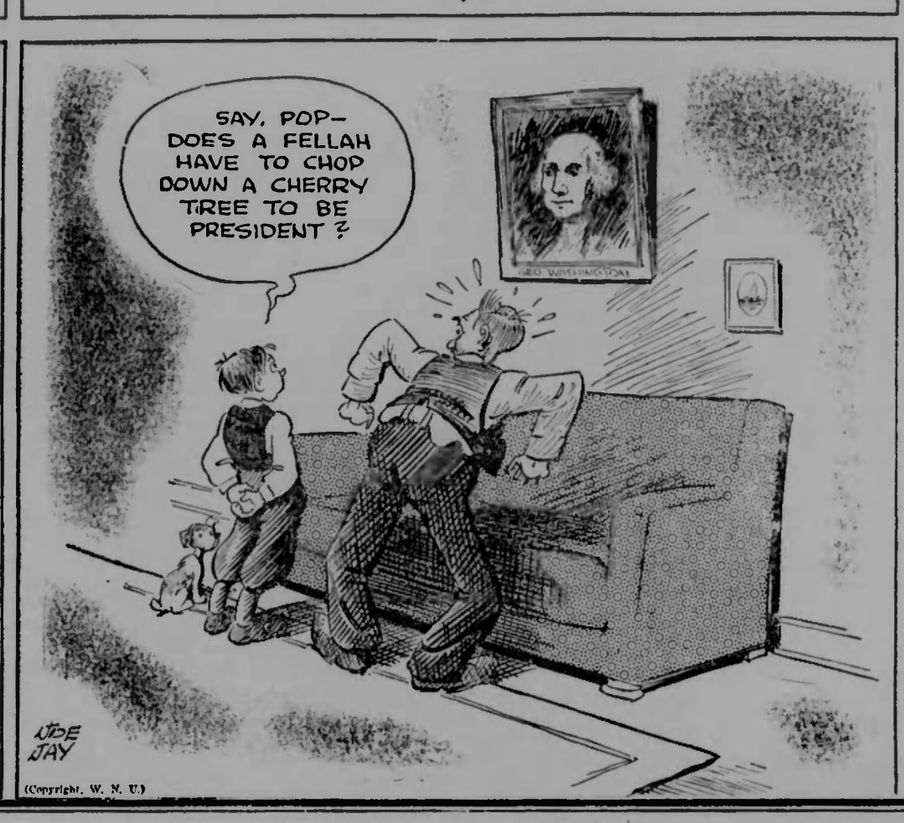
* * *

It is true that at his press conferences he continues to convey the idea that everything is under control; that he has a definite idea of where he is going. But there he is "giving a show," which he greatly enjoys. Those who talk with him privately get a different impression and are given a different show. Even at the press conferences there is an increase of confusion due to the contradictory nature of his statements and the vagueness of his views; also, to the fact that the policies outlined there are sometimes dropped in a day and Congress rarely gets them officially. Recently the President has been getting resentful at the comments—coming from certainly not unfriendly journalistic sources—over his lack of direction, and fear is expressed that these may irritate him into unsound action.

* * *

It is rather an appalling idea, but it seems well founded, that with the departure of Mr. Kennedy the most conservative influence near the President is his son James, whose insurance income, if sustained a year or so more, undoubtedly will put him in the "intrenched-wealth" class, a group which he is not in the least averse to joining. Considering the circumstances, this was rather an unfortunate moment for publication of the fact that the serial rights of the President's forthcoming volume containing his public messages and speeches had been sold to a syndicate for $100,000; that Judge Rosenam, who edited the work, is to get 35 per cent., the literary agents who peddled it 10 per cent., and the President the remaining 55 per cent., which, his secretary curtly says, will not go to charity. A year ago this unprecedented proposition would not have created the caustic comment now heard "up on the hill."

We Hope Not!



IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The battleship Maine was blown up in Havana harbor, resulting in the deaths of 253 men and brought about the Spanish-American war.

Scott T. Jones was installed worshipful master of the Masonic lodge. Other officers were Dr. E. H. Bartlett, Robert I. Anderson, Capt. J. M. Jarhoe, Albert G. Ross, Charles J. Newman, Singleton L. Townshend and E. J. Fringer.

An item from Swanton read: "We are enjoying a genuine blizzard tonight."

A play, "Down the Black Canyon," was presented by local talent in the opera house under the management of Charles Tower, who "admirably acted the part of the villain."

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Prof. H. A. Ziel, principal of the grammar school, resigned to enter the army. Dr. Appleton was transferred from the High school to the grammar school and made its principal. Mrs. Milton Sincell took the place of Dr. Appleton at the high school.

Butter was 50 cents a pound, eggs 50 cents a dozen.

Intense cold and prolonged frigid weather of that winter caused some people to wonder whether the world was not about due for a recurrence of the glacial epoch.

A torrential rain brought the Little Yough and Wilson Creek out of their banks. Cellars of nearly every building in town were flooded and fires in heating plants quenched. The Hendrickson mill was almost entirely surrounded. A bridge to the Oakland Hotel grounds was carried away. The city pumping station in the hotel reservation was put out of business. Much of the town of Crellin was also flooded.

Traffic conditions between Oakland and Accident were restored to normal by volunteer workmen, huge drifts of snow which had blocked the highway being removed. A large force worked from Oakland to Deep Creek; another force from Accident southward.

MT. LAKE PARK

It would seem that the Weber Company, florists, really know the date of that flood. They keep a record of that sort of thing, which makes the date June, 1910.

Professor F. E. Rathbun, of Oakland, says he remembers the old watering trough and the tincups that hung at the side. He asks, "Can you remember the old ball diamond and team consisting of the late Dr. H. M. Carr, Bill Armstrong, Harry Sanks and some others?" We think that A. T. White may have some information next week for us on this article.

From Norfolk, Va., comes the memory of when the late Jacob Echard was in great demand for trips to Swallow Falls and other points. The lady recalls that there were four horses to an eight-seated spring wagon. Jack McGuffin was one of the drivers. Trips were made to Swallow Falls, Conneway's Tower, Boiling Spring and Eagle Rock.

How many can remember just when "Andy" Dolbow first came to the Park? It was in 1889. He stayed at Miss Jennie Smith's Hotel. Among others there at that time were Rev. Mr. Lakin, Mrs. Rhieldaffer, Mrs. Rebecca Pickering, of Cleveland; Rev. Daniels, Rev. Updegraff, who was the leader of the camp meeting; Dr. Dougan Clark and Rev. Joseph Smith. Andy Dolbow was governed by no special rules in his preaching or in his actions while on the platform. Certainly those were the days of real camp meeting.

And speaking of camp meeting days we saw a picture of the old Assembly House, operated by Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer and their daughter Alice. In the group before the cottage were the Lexington State College Band, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bardell and their daughters, Mrs. Daisy B. Hicks and Mrs. Effie Rogerson, of Moundsville; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Conners, of Wheeling, and Miss Annie Close, of Mountain Lake Park, besides many others. Since writing this we have been informed that Mrs. Alice Sawyer Wayman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sawyer, died at her home in Cameron, W. Va., last Sunday.

We hope the readers of this column are not bored. Certainly there seems to be a great deal of interest in these articles—that is, if people calling us and sending in material, means anything. A suggestion has been made that some of the old pictures be reproduced. Whether or not that would be possible, we are unable to say at this time.

Death of Mrs. Florence Bashore

Many persons in the Park will learn with deep regret of the death of Mrs. Florence H. Bashore, a summer resident here. Mrs. Bashore died in a Baltimore hospital on Thursday and was buried in Clarksburg on Sunday. Death was due to a brain operation. She is survived by two daughters, Miss Ruth Bashore and Miss Margery Bashore. Her husband died in 1932.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Rudisill, of Clarksburg were visitors in the Park this week. They will deopen their home here early in the spring.

Wiley Welling, Jr., of Cumberland, spent the week-end here with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Harvey are at Altoona, Pa., for a few days with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Humberson.

Walter Killius has been elected town clerk vice Darwin B. Martin, who is in Baltimore. The new officer is a son of Mrs. Louis Killius and has had experience in this line of work..

This evening (Thursday) Dr. Oscar Hall will he host to the Laymen's League of St. Matthew's church, Oakland. He will present a showing of the picture of the bombing of the Panay.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Frame, of Kingwood, were guests of Mr. Frame's grandmother, Mrs. Allie Haymond, on Sunday.

The many friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Talson, of Wheeling, will be glad to learn that she is improving slowly, however her condition is still regarded as serious.

Mickey's Concert Band will go to Fairmont on the 26th inst. for a broadcast over WMMN. This is certainly a compliment to Prof. Mickey and the boys. They deserve all the support given them.

The Methodist church is undergoing a complete renovation—new plastering and redecorating. When finished it will present a most attractive interior.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Bleakly, Jr., who have been visiting Mr. Bleakly's father and mother, Rev. and Mrs. Bleakly, have gone to Charleston and Clarksburg for a short stay. Billy Bleakly, their son, is ill at the home of his grandparents here.

The Cardiff Family Musical Evangelists, recent arrivals in the Park, have rented the E. E. Friend residence and are now occupying it They came here from Minneapolis, but have traveled all over the United States and Canada in the interest of their evangelistic work. They have expressed themselves as delighted with this part of Maryland.

Mrs. E. L. Winchell has received word of the serious illness of her brother, Colonel J. H. Devore, U. S. A., at his home in Santa Cruz, California. Col. Devore suffered a severe heart attack and his condition is regarded as critical.

Miss Frances Grimes, who is with the Tristate Aviation corporation in Parkersburg, W. Va., will shortly be transferred to Bluefield, W. Va. From Bluefield, where she will remain until April, she will go to White Sulphur Springs to remain until fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smouse, of Pleasant Valley, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Callis.

Harley Dawson was a business visitor to Cumberland on Saturday.

The Oakland and Loch Lynn Homemakers clubs held a joint all-day meeting last Thursday. Miss Barton, home demonstration agent, discussed and directed work on the many pieces of furniture which were being refinished. At noon a covered dish luncheon was served.

MARRIED

Rathbun-Taylor—Mrs. Cleo Trice of Gainesville, Fla., has announced the marriage of her daughter, Dorothy Elizabeth Taylor, to Franklin F. Rathbun, which was solemnized at 9 o'clock Thursday evening, February 10, in the Presbyterian manse at Palatka, Fla., Rev. Harry B. Fraser reading the marriage vows. The only witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Cody Mickel, of Gainesville, uncle and aunt of the bride, Mrs. Fraser and Ray Billings.

The bride wore a spring model of grey silk crepe fashioned semi-sport, a dubonnet hat and grey gloves and shoes. She was born in St. Petersburg, Fla., and attended school in Ocala, Miama and Gainesville. Mr. Rathbun, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rathbun, of Gainesville, was born in Mt. Lake Park but for the past twelve years has been making his home in Gainesville. He is a graduate of the Gainesville high school and in 1936 received his degree from the School of Journalism of the University of Florida. Since last fall he has been employed as reporter with the Palatka Daily News.

One evening last week the Lutheran Brotherhood members had their first spelling bee of the season. Professor Smith, director, started out easy, and everyone present just gloried in his or her spelling ability. Soon, however, Mr. Smith let fly with some of the more ticklish kind of words and the contestants fell like trees before a storm. Bert Welch was awarded the laurel wreath; T. C. Bittinger ran second and R. F. Boening, third. It was a most enjoyable evening and great fun for all present. The Brotherhood hopes to continue the spelling bees and invites all to participate.

Road In Bad Condition

At a specitl meeting of the Mayor and City Commissioners of Frostburg on Monday night it was announced that the condition of the lower Salisbury road, the route to the Piney Run dam, was so bad as to make it almost impassable for motor traffic.

This road intersects the National Highway at the Johnson farm, east of Grantsville, and is in Garrett county. It is used by a large number of Garrett county residents living in the eastern section of the county. Heavily loaded trucks hauling lumber, it was reported, was the cause of the present condition of the road.

IN MEMORIAM

of our dear son and brother, Raymond W. Harris, who was killed 28 years ago, February 19:

You shall always be remembered
In this world of weary strife;
And you shall never be forgotten
As long as God gives us life.

Heaven now retains our little treasure,
Earth his little casket keeps;
While the sunbeams love to linger
Where our darling Raymond sleeps.

Some day, some day, our eyes will see
The face we loved so well;
Some day his hand will clasp in ours,
And never say farewell.

By Mrs. Florence Harris and Family.

TO THE TAXPAYERS OF GARRETT COUNTY

It will be noted in the levy for 1938 we have included an item of $20,000.00 for oiling and screening farm-to-market roads. In order to avoid any misunderstanding about this item we feel it proper to publish a statement explaining the reason for the inclusion of the same.

Due to certain Acts of the 1937 General Assembly, the amount this county will receive from the cent and a half lateral road gasoline tax is very materially curtailed. Last year the county was credited by the State Roads Commission with approximately $118,000.00 out of this fund to be used for lateral road maintenance and for new construction. This year it is estimated that the county's share of this fund will not be more than $88,000.00, or a reduction of some $30,000.00. There are many miles of road that have been rocked, but are getting in a bad state of repair because they have not been properly surfaced. We believe it to be poor economy to allow these roads to get into a further state of bad repair, and as it is apparent that there will not be sufficient funds to properly maintain the county roads and oil and surface the roads referred to, we think it advisable to levy this amount. This work will be done by the State Roads Commission, subject to the direction and control of the Board of County Commissioners.

One other unusual item in the levy is the amount set aside for capital outlay for schools. Delegations have frequently appeared before the Board citing the urgent need for repairs or additions or the construction of new buildings at Kitzmiller, Bloomington, Accident and Oakland. We have given very careful consideration to these requests and have investigated the need as represented to us by the delegations. The Board of Education in its budget submitted to us in accordance with provisions of the law asked for approximately $180,000.00 for capital outlay.

Obviously, we could not meet this request without practically doubling the tax rate. We did not feel that the taxpayers of the county could bear this additional burden. Consequently, we included in our levy such an amount as we felt that could be included without unduly burdening the taxpayer at this time. We were able to levy the sum of $10,000.00 for this purpose and it is hoped that during the year we may be able to get this fund matched by Federal funds, in which event we would have a very substantial amount to expend to relieve the present conditions existing in the various places mentioned.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF GARRETT COUNTY, MD.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE To the Taxpayers of Garrett County, Maryland, that the annual levy for 1938 has been made and published and to call their attention to the following abstract of Section 102, Chapter 199, Acts of 1937 of the Laws of Maryland relating to the discounts to be allowed and the interest charged on all taxes:

"All County taxes shall be due and payable on the first day of April of such calendar year, and shall be overdue and in arrears on the first day of the succeeding October; on all County taxes paid on or before the first day of June a discount of two per cent shall be allowed; and on all county taxes paid during the months of June and July a discount of one per cent will be allowed, and on all taxes paid during the months of August and September the amount thereof without discount or interest shall be required; but upon all State and County taxes remaining unpaid after the 30th day of September, interest at the rate of one-half of one per cent per month shall be charged and collected; but the discount shall not be allowed unless the whole amount of State and County taxes due be paid when the same is made."

All State taxes are due on the first day of July. Interest will be charged at the rate of one-half per cent per month, or fractional part thereof, after the 30th day of September. No discount allowed on State taxes.

SOME OF THE EARLY LAND SPECULATORS IN GARRETT

General John Swan
Family Motto: Paratus sum (I am ready)

In his time, General John Swan was the largest speculator in the lands of what is now Garrett county, Maryland.

In the assessment of this part of Allegany county, in 1798, Swan was assessed with over 35,000 acres, and later he owned as much as 50,000 acres.

The name Swan is of ancient Danish extraction. Swan—of noble ancestry—settled in southeast Britain. The Swans possessed landed property in Kent and Derby from the period of the Norman Conquest. Branches of the family scattered through England, Scotland and Ireland, and it is from the Scotch line that the Swans of Maryland are descended.

John Swan was baptized in Torthorwald Parish, November 27, 1750, and was only a lad of sixteen years when he landed in the New World. In the Bible carried by him through the Revolutionary War he wrote:

"John Swan's book. Arrived at Annapolis, in Maryland, from Scotland, on 30th August, 1766."

He was the eldest son of John Swan of Cocklefield, hence the name of "Cocklefield," which John Jr., gave to one of his first land tracts; another he called "Dumfries," for his Scottish town.

Young John Swan came to America as the heir of his uncle, Robert Swan, who died, unmarried, in Annapolis, May 4, 1764. John soon removed to Frederick county and later to Baltimore, where he resided until his death August 21, 1824. The remains of John Swan, his wife and son James are interred in a vault in Westminster Presbyterian church, Baltimore.

Revolutionary War Services

Like most Scottish-Americans of 1776, John Swan was a revolutionist. In 1777 he became captain of the Third Continental Dragoons, recruited in Fredericksburg Va., and in 1780 he was promoted to major in the First Dragoons. He served with gallantry until the close of the war, when he was made General of the Maryland militia.

Washington and Lafayette were his personal friends.

The Swan Lands

General Swan owned enormous tracts of land in Maryland and in Virginia, including 6,166 acres awarded him by Virginia for his Revolutionary services. In 1774, when Lord Baltimore opened his lands "westward of Fort Cumberland" for settlement, John Swan was one of the speculators who surveyed and patented extensive tracts in what is now Garrett county. Later the State of Maryland patented to him large tracts, among them being "Swan's Meadows" at Gortner (1798); "Potomac Manor," 10,749 acres (1800); "Yough Manor," 8,613 acres (1799); "Walnut Hills," at Avilton, 4,089 acres (1800); "Strawberry Plains," near Swallow Falls, 7,380 acres (1806).

When the Military Lots were allotted to soldiers of the Maryland Line in 1788 none of them went to live on their lots. General Swan bought many of these lots from veterans, such as Patrick Doreen, of Baltimore county, "late sergeant," who, in 1798, deeded his lot, 1481, 50 acres, to John Swan for three pounds sterling or $8.00. The General also bought tracts and lots from lesser speculators, such as the purchase in 180? from David Lynn, of twenty-one Military Lots for $660. These lots included Muddy Creek Falls and valuable farm land near Gortner.

As this county became settled, the Swans leased or sold small tracts to settlers. William Chisholm, Jr., a fellow Scot, was their agent in the Yough Glades, and William Sharpless looked after the lands across the Great Backbone Mountain.

General Swan's Family

John Swan married July 12, 1787, Elizabeth, daughter of George Maxwell. They were the parents of four sons: Robert (born 1788); John (1790); George M. (1791), and James (1792).

John and Robert Swan resided for a time on the family lands in Garrett county.

John Swan, Jr., lived with his family and a few slaves in a good log house on "John's Prospect," 992 acres, which includes the site of the village of Gortner. Swan's house was on the high ground west of the present Gortner Mill. The house was destroyed by fire years ago. It is said that Mr. Swan's father-in-law was buried near the house in a grave now unmarked.

In his later years John Swan and his family, in summer, resided in Oakland at Oak and Fifth streets; after his wife's death he resided at "The Rest," on Seventh street.

When past seventy years of age Mr. Swan once remarked to his neighbor, Mr. Thayer, "Sir, I have spent three fortunes but never earned a dollar."

Robert Swan resided on the "Swan's Meadows" tract southeast of Gortner. This homestead later became the residence of General Benjamin F. Kelley, where he died about the year 1891. It now belongs to Daniel Lichty.

George M. Swan resided in the George's Creek Valley in Allegany county.

James Swan, the youngest son, remained in Baltimore. He was president of the Merchants' Bank there and one of the first directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

His wife was Elizabeth Donnell.

Swanton

In Garrett county we have the village of Swanton, which is said to take its name from Swan's Mill, located on the same site where the old State road crossed Crab Tree Run. On a map of this part of Western Maryland drawn in 1823 and published in the report of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Commission, which was planning a canal across the mountains passing through this point, "Swan's Mill," a grist mill, is shown on the present site of Swanton. The Swan family owned land in this neighborhood. Did they own the mill prior to 1823, and did the name "Swanton" (Swan Town) come from General John Swan?

A very lucky boy-

LUCKY? Yes, because his dad is a good business man.

Several years ago he got a land bank loan to pay up all old debts, and enough extra money to make needed general improvements to the farm. He's now paying out on a long-term amortized basis, in convenient semi-annual paymenis that gradually retire the loan.

When his son takes over the farm he'll find it all paid for, in excellent productivity, and ready to keep right on producing profitable crops. He is, indeed, a lucky boy.

DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS THE "HAUNTED CHAIR"

New Talent Is Discovered In Youthful Actors And Actresses

FIKE SELLS MOST TICKETS

Entertainment of the highest order was enjoyed by all when the Oakland High School Dramatic Club presented the play, "The Haunted Chair," on Friday, February 11. For sheer thrills it couldn't be topped. The curtain rose to find the body of eccentric old John Baxter sitting upright in his dingy, sheltered library on his lonely Long Island estate. When his relatives learned of his demise, they came scurrying to the mansion to hear the reading of his strange will, which he had expressly stipulated must take place immediately after his death. But when the greedy relatives discoved that John Baxter was obviously a victim of murder, they were dismayed, as suspicion pointed directly to them. Nellie Kennedy, a lady private investigator, finally solved the mystery, proving Jeffrey Fallen to be the guilty person. When the mystery was at its deepest, in popped Liza and Lazy Lee, two of the funniest darkeys ever conceived to relieve a tense, dramatic moment.

Each of the numerons roles were ideally cast and all were of equal importance to the story's plot.

Nellie Kennedy and her calm, humorous way, was excellently portrayed by Lillian Taylor, while no two funnier parts than those of Liza and Lazy Lee could be assigned to Violet McIntosh and Ralph Lewis.

Who knows but that we have a famous actor in Fred Tichnell, who brought shrieks of laughter from the audience in characterizing the bungling detective, Inspector Dennis Gilhooly. Doctor Stanley and Lucille Page were excellently portrayed by Dwight Schenk and Mary Mitchell, while Bob Stanley and Peggy Moore, the innocent and talkative fiancee of Bob, were dramatized very well by Thomas Stevenson and Mary Hipsley. The part of Mrs. Moore, Peggy's mother, was well played by Marguerite Carskadon, while Stanley Stahl was a perfect criminal, in the lawyer, Jeffrey Fallen.

The exact amount of money taken in is not yet known, but the honor of selling the most tickets goes to Evelyn Fike; Raymond Chaney, close second. —The Acorn, Oakland High School.

Rev. A. K. Jones, Pastor.

St. John's Sunday school and church service next Sunday at the usual time in charge of the pastor and superintendent. St. Luke's services in the afternoon. The pastor will speak on the theme: "Christian Weakness and power." All human beings, regardless of physical vigor and intellectual keenness, shows many indications of weakness. The believer's weaknesses stand out glaringly at times, because the world expects him to show signs of strength. We speak of our Lord as the Strong Son of God, and such He must be. St. Paul says Christ's power rests upon us and floods our lives with moral and spiritual power, if we keep in close fellowship with Him.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 61. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, FEBRUARY 24, 1938. NUMBER 52C

COUNTY CONSOLIDATION IS NOW BEING PROPOSED

University of Maryland Bulletin Would Group 23 Divisions Into Seven Districts

MAY NOT REDUCE TAXES

Consolidation of Maryland's counties into seven districts is proposed in a bulletin on "Economy in County Government," just published by the University of Maryland's Agricultural Experiment Station.

While similar proposals have been advanced before, this is the first thorough study ever made of the probable economic and social effects of consolidation.

The study was conducted by Everett C. Weitzell, a graduate assistant in the Department of Agricultural Economics, under the direction of Dr. S. H. DeVault, professor of agricultural economics, and Paul Walker, associate in agricultural economics.

Points Out Benefits

The redistricting would be of benefit mainly to the small counties, where high administrative costs now make it impossible to maintain adequate services, but the entire State would benefit indirectly, the report indicates. Some of the larger counties, however, would find their costs of government higher in a few departments under the consolidation.

"Consolidation offers relatively more savings in the administrative aspects than in the purely functional activities of local government," Mr. Weitzell said. His estimates of economies, therefore, were based on studies of the commissioners', treasurers' and assessors' offices, clerk of court and register of wills and law and order.

Costs to the taxpayers of maintaining these offices would be reduced an average of twenty-eight per cent, he estimated. The reductions would vary from forty-three per cent in the commissioners' office, to eighteen per cent in the law-and-order services.

BOARD OF EDUCATION IN SESSION LAST THURSDAY

Appointment of Several Elementary Teachers Announced

A number of matters of business were disposed of at a regular meeting of the Board of Education held last Thursday in the board room at the Court House. Walter W. Dawson, president, and Walter W. Savage, associate member, were present, in addition to F. E. Rathbun, County Superintendent.

Reports of auditors of the financial records of school funds were submitted for November and December, 1937, and filed.

Miss Martha Houtari was appointed assistant teacher in the Kempton elementary school, and Miss Anna Louise Connelly was officially appointed assistant teacher in the Oakland elementary school to supply vacancies. Miss Christine Harper was placed as principal of the Black Hawk school; Mrs. Elizabeth K. Rank, as principal of the McKenzie school, and Mrs. Mary Jankey-Otto was named principal of the Fairview school.

In accordance with a petition from fourteen citizens of the former Mineral Spring school community, the Board advanced for sale the abandoned school building and ground to George Oester.

Due to small attendance, according to Superintendent Rathbun, the Board ordered the Broadford school to be closed, provided that transportation costs of pupils is provided from available State funds.

An order was passed instructing principals of schools of the county having an assembly room, auditorium or other types of rooms that may be rented, to remit all funds received from rental to the treasurer of the Board of Education.

Consideration was given to advertising twenty-five school bus routes of the total number that will expire in June, 1938, in order to spread the expiration of all such contracts in about three equal parts for the same number of years.

Information was submitted to the Board of the unsuccessful efforts to purchase two railroad company lots in Bloomington, which were recommended for school building purposes along with four other lots immediately adjacent thereto.

Seating Capacity Of Theatre To Be Enlarged

The seating capacity of the Maryland Theatre, Oakland, is to be increased by approximately one hundred, it was announced this week by Bernard I. Gonder, manager.

Work is to begin next week upon the remodeling of the stage, which is to be moved back and to include two rooms formerly used as dressing rooms, and also decreased in depth. The additional space thus made available will be added to the seating in the auditorium.

The interior side walls and the ceiling will be covered with celotex and redecorated, new lighting fixtures will be installed and new carpets laid. New spring seats will be added and the seats will be spaced farther apart.

A heavy "I" beam will be placed in position to insure the proper support of the upper portion of the building.

Permission to make these alterations and repairs has been received by Mr. Gonder from the trustees of the building, members of the Knights of Pythias lodge, and he plans to have the work completed within a month after work is started. There will be no interruption in the regular program of moving pictures and entertainment.

TWO ARE DEAD AS RESULT OF COLLISION ON TUESDAY

Wade Friend, 18, Friendsville, And Mrs. Grace Benson, Elliottsville, Pa., Are Victims

FOUR OTHERS ARE HURT

A head-on collision of two automobiles on Summit Mountain, National Highway, near Uniontown, Pa., on Tuesday, February 15, resulted in the death of two persons and serious injury to four others.

Wade Friend, 18, of Friendsville, son of Herman Friend, suffered a fracture of the skull and died the following day in a Uniontown hospital. He was married on January 29, at Oakland, to Miss Gertrude Mae Friend, daughter of Archibald Friend, and resided near Keeler Glade in Garrett county.

The other person to die as a result of the accident was Mrs. Grace Benson, of Elliottsville, Pa., who received fractures of the skull, jaw and left leg. Mrs. Benson succumbed last Friday morning.

Mrs. Benson was in the Benson car in company with her husband, C. M. Benson, who was also injured but is said to be recovering in a hospital at Uniontown.

Others who received injuries were Everett Friend, 20, son of Beeson Friend; Eugene Friend, 18, son of George Friend, both of Friendsville, and Ward Livengood, 20, Hazelton, W. Va., driver of one of the cars involved in the collision.

The condition of Everett Friend is regarded as critical by hospital attaches. Eugene Friend was released from the hospital on Saturday. George Friend and Livengood are said to be improving slowly and are still at the hospital.

The accident was investigated by members of the State constabulary of Pennsylvania.

Funeral services for Wade Friend were conducted Saturday morning, February 19, from the Blooming Rose church, west of Friendsville, with interment in the church cemetery. The service was largely attended by relatives and friends of the deceased.

Four Youths Held On Larceny Charge

Paul Deal, Elmer Deal, Harold DeWitt and Robert Enlow, all of McHenry and vicinity, were arrested on Monday night on charges of larceny of automobile parts and accessories from the property of the Reckard and Glotfelty garage, corner Third and Oak streets.

Robert Cogley, living nearby, heard prowlers about the building and had C. C. Reckard, one of the owners, notified. The four youths were overtaken about a mile north of Oakland and brought back to town by Mr. Reckard, who had followed them upon being made acquainted with the facts.

Among the things pilfered from the lot where used cars are stored by the firm were wheels taken from three cars, and these were thrown from the automobile in which the youths were riding. All were recovered, however, and identified.

Following an investigation made by State's Attorney Fraley, the four are being held in jail. They will be given a hearing in the near future.

One of the youths involved in the matter had purchased a second hand car from the Gortner garage, Grantsville.

Barn and Contents Destroyed By Fire Near Swanton

A large barn on the farm of William O'Brien, on Meadow Mountain, near Swanton, and much of its contents, were destroyed by fire of undetermined origin about three o'clock last Saturday morning. Twenty-five head of sheep and one calf were included in the loss in addition to all feed and grain that were stored in the building.

Mr. O'Brien was able to lead four horses safely from the barn and due to the warm night his cows were fortunately left in the field.

The blaze occurred about three hours after Mr. O'Brien had heard a commotion among his horses and had gone to investigate, but finding no reason for the disturbance, had returned to the house and retired. It is thought the fire may have been started by some transient who was seeking a place to spend the night.

The barn was one of the largest in that neighborhood and had been built about eight years ago. The building was only partially covered by insurance, and Mr. O'Brien's loss is a heavy one.

STATE FORESTS INCREASE 1,900 ACRES SINCE 1936

Maryland For Years Has Cut Timber In Excess of Growth

Maryland has added approximately 1,900 acres to her forest reserves since the fall of 1936, according to Karl E. Pfeiffer, assistant State forester.

The State now has 61,755 acres in forests and parks, but it was stated the reserves are far short of the goal of 200,000 acres set ten years ago by F. W. Besley, State forester, and still further short of the 400,000 acres which the Baltimore Association of Commerce in a recent study found desirable property to protect the industries of Maryland dependent upon lumber and other forest products.

Lack of funds, Mr. Pfeiffer said, has made it impossible for the State Department of Forestry to acquire reserves any faster. It has been spending recently a $15,000 appropriation from the last Legislature, adding a few tracts here and there to the State's nine forest and five park areas. Much of the State's forest area is located in Garrett county.

The theory behind State acquisition of public land, it was explained, is that forest reserves under State ownership can be used as demonstration areas to presuade private owners of timber land to engage in sound conservation measures.

Maryland has 2,230,000 acres of forest land, but for decades has been cutting wood and saw timber at a rate in excess of the annual growth, the forester explained. The annual production has now fallen to a low level.

PLANS FOR SAVAGE RIVER DAM SENT TO WPA OFFICE

Upper Potomac River Commission Informed Of Action

George W. Legge, chairman of the Upper Potomac River Commission, was notified one day this week by Maj. W. D. Lupiow, district U. S. Army engineer, that complete plans, specifications and the analysis of design for the Savage River dam have been forwarded to Works Progress Administration officials, Baltimore, through the office of the chief of U. S. Army engineers.

Rock cores and soil samples used in Washington in preparation of the plans will be placed in the storage shed at the dam.

This action on the part of the engineers brings the dam a step nearer realization. It is now up to WPA officials to act one way or the other on the plans. The structure would cost several million dollars.

Brings News Of Former Garrett Countians

Solomon Slabach, former Garrett county resident of the Gortner community, who is visiting his old home in company with Mrs. Slabach, called at The Republican office yesterday afternoon to renew his subscription so that he can keep up with county happenings at his present home in Arthur, Illinois, brought news of other Garrett county people who are residing in his immediate community in Illinois.

Among those mentioned by Mr. Slabach was David Beachy, formerly of Grantsville, who is going strong at an advanced age. He also brought news concerning Solomon, Daniel and Noah Yutzy and their sister, Mrs. Carolina Yoder, whose old home is now the John Schlossnagle farm at Gortner. These were the sons and the daughter of the late Christian Yutzy. Mrs. Yoder's husband is dead. Another former Garrett countian mentioned by Mr. Slabach was his brother, Daniel Slabach, a resident of the Arthur section. All of these persons, meeting with both joys and sorrows in their life span are happy and contented, however.

Mr. Slabach, upon the occasion of his call at The Republican office said that he had not been home for three years and confessed that he was "as homesick as a child."

A card from Dr. Ralph L. Kercheval who is critically ill in Jefferson hospital, Philadlephia, Pa., brings the information that his condition since arriving there is improved. Doctors have informed him, however, that he will have to remain there for several weeks.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1938

ON AGAIN, OFF AGAIN

The President is very much concerned about finding revenues to balance any payments entailed by the new farm bill which may be in excess of what the old agricultural program has been costing. In his statement on Wednesday, when he signed the bill, he declared that "parity payments would increase the present authorized cost, and in order to make such payments it would be necessary to provide additional revenue to finance them." By this the President meant that any extensions or additions to the farm program must be financed by new taxes in order not to disturb still further the already precarious equilibrium of the Federal finances.

This is sound doctrine. The farm program is far too costly even under the most favorable conditions. Congress ought not to make conditions more unfavorable than they are by requiring any additional expenditures for which funds are not provided by taxation. But while insisting on this sound principle in connection with the farm bill, the President has chosen to ignore it in connection with relief appropriations. On Thursday of last week he sent to Congress a special message requesting the appropriation of a quarter of a billion dollars for work relief in addition to the sums contemplated in the budget. This extra relief appropriation will, on the basis of the President's own budget estimates of last January, lift the deficit for the current fiscal year to $1,388,000,000. But Mr. Roosevelt, who seems to be aware of the danger of extra spending in one quarter, seemed to forget all about it when he sent up his proposals for additional relief funds.

He did not even hint that this particular quarter of a billion dollars would throw his budget more out of kelter than it already was. In fact, he did not by even the remotest sort of hint recognize the existence of the budget at all. He simply asked for the money, and the House of Representatives, conformable to the same ostrich-like policy, passed the appropriation without taking any detailed account of the damage it would do to the budget. It may be argued that the needs of the unemployed create an emergency and that the nation cannot stop to consider the budget when human beings are in want. It may also be argued that the country cannot stand extra taxes at this time to defrey the cost of work relief. Without any way disparaging these arguments—and something is to be said for them—it still seems in order to inquire by what sort of logic it is possible to justify a fiscal policy which harps on the danger of disturbing the budget at one point while conveniently ignoring that danger at another point.

We can never hope to reestablish our national finances on a sound and systematic basis by reference to such flexible principles. A rubber fiscal policy is as futile as a rubber dollar is dangerous, and the sooner the Administration and Congress finds this out, the better.—Baltimore Sun.

This Correspondent Suggests That Oakland's Needs For An Elementary School Building Are As Pressing As In Other Towns of The County And That Mr. Friend Is Playing Politics.

To The Editor of The Republican:

Mr. Friend (I won't dignify him by calling him Senator) says in his letter to the Editor of the Mountain Democrat last week that he hoped that the money levied by the County Commissioners for new school buildings would be used to provide new buildings for Kitzmiller and Bloomington. I suppose Mr. Friend thinks a new Elementary building in Oakland is unnecessary and it is better politics for him to suggest that this money be spent at Kitzmiller and Bloomington. I hope that perents of the children in the Oakland Elementary school will remember this statement when this gentleman places his candidacy before the people this summer asking for re-election to the Senate.

One who has children who attend the Oakland Elementary School.

When Mr. Friend Had An Opportunity To Provide For Funds To Build A School House At Kitzmiller He Turned His Back On The Proposition, But Now He Wants A Building Erected There; More Cheap Politics On His Part.

To The Editor of The Republican:

I read Senator Friend's letter in last week's issue of the Mountain Democrat in which he stated that he trusted that the $40,000.00 levied by the County Commissioners for capital outlay would be used to provide new school buildings for Kitzmiller and Bloomington.

I am glad to see that Senator Friend has at last concluded that we need an addition to our school at Kitzmiller. It is too bad that he didn't realize this last winter when he was in Annapolis and when he was in a position to do something to help us. A petition was sent down from our people containing the name of almost every voter on it begging him to do something to help us but he flatly refused to do anything about it and now that the legislature is over he seems to think we need something done for our school here. An election will be held this year and I for one expect to do everything I can to see that he is kept at home.

A KITZMILLER MOTHER.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By FRANK P. LITSCHERT

Recently exercises were held all over the nation commemorating the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Some of the meetings were political, but this fact is without special significance so far as paying tribute to the memory of the great Emancipator is concerned. For Lincoln is now revered by men and women of all political parties. It may therefore be interesting to note that Lincoln said:

"Teach economy. It is one of the first and highest virtues. It begins with saving money."

* * *

The advice comes to us from the great homely philosopher, yet in the light of recent events it appears to us today as the peak of philosophy in the Horse and Buggy Age, and far too many of us seem to regard it as outmoded.

The time was when economy was taught in every home and at every fireside. Youngsters were made to believe that saving was one of the first principles leading to a successful career. They were led to believe the way to get a "start in life" was to save money, invest it carefully and prudently. Security, they were told, depended on laying away something for the inevitably rainy day and for comfort in old age. It was instilled in the mind of every boy that he must first of all depend on himself for the working out of his own destiny. The man who had his cellar stocked with fuel and food at the beginning of the winter, and had lifted the mortgage from his roof, was regarded as really successful in life.

* * *

But now all this seems to have changed. We have entered a new era. The way to "prosperity" is now thru the spending of money. The pump must be primed. Waiting for the workout out of the natural laws of economy is too slow. It might easily lose an election. In fact, it has lost elections. A new automobile with a shining color and a half score of unsatisfied payments is more to be desired than security for the winter. If we spend lavishly and help "prime the pump" while we are young the government will take care of us when we get old. Society owes security to the reckless and profligate even more than to the careful and the saving. In fact, the latter can be made to pay the bills for brothers who walk the primrose path.

* * *

Unfortunately, those who rely on the government's doing it, sometimes fail to see that after all the government is nothing more nor less than the people of the nation. What the government promises to do the people must do, and they cannot perform miracles without real money which comes, not from the printing presses, but from the products of the farm, the mill and the factory.

Sooner or later if the government relief is called on to take the place of old fashioned principles of economy, then the government is going to break down, because it can stand no more than its people can endure.

* *

So it would seem time now to turn back to the homely teachings about economy and thrift. While we extoll Lincoln for his great liberal principles and his determination to save the Union at all costs, let us remember it is just as possible to destroy our country by the application of false economic doctrine as it is through armed rebellin.

Red House Lutheran Parish

Gnegy and Red House churches have services next Sunday at the usual time. "The Law of Happiness demands a willingness to Suffer," is the theme of the sermon by the pastor.

Lent, beginning next Wednesday, reminds us of the sufferings and sacrifices of the world's mighty Saviour. During His earthly life He was tempted many times, just as we are tempted, to turn away from the path of loving service, from the way of pain and sorrow. We imagine that real pleasure ought to be found with less difficulty, because we do not know the law of happiness. We demand an easier way.

Soon after organizing his little group of disciples, He informed them how He should suffer at the hands of the enemies of truth and goodness. They made light of these statements, because they did not know the meaning of life. They tried to turn Him away from the thoughts of self-denial and sacrifice, but he stood firmly: He was convinced that He must face the tragedy of the Cross. The greater joys and satisfactions of life are not found apart from pain and sorrow. So He placed Himself alongside the toiling, struggling multitudes, faced their bitter experiences and used no advantage or power that is not available to us. It will surely help us to use the Lenten season to meditate on Jesus' life of loving service, of His willingness to do God's will, no matter how much pain and grief must be endured.

OAKLAND, MARYLAND

Consolidation would reduce the annual cost of county government by $577,000, Mr. Weitzell asserted, basing his figures on the 1935-1936 county budgets and taking into consideration certain proposed changes in the internal fiscal organization of Montgomery county. Total tax levies would be reduced five per cent of 75 cents per capita.

May Not Reduce Taxes

"There is a possibility that this saving might never be realized in the form of reduced taxes," the report points out. "As social and economic progress is made, new services are in demand and other services are expanded. However, this makes consolidation more desirable, so that these services may be possible as they become necessary without an extra burden on the taxpayers.

"Furthermore, with the tendency to shift the tax base away from general property to other sources of revenue, it becomes increasingly desirable to consolidate the smaller and less wealthy counties with those of greater resources. This would facilitate a more equitable collection and reallocation of tax funds."

Mr. Weitzell would divide Maryland into seven districts on the basis of geographical and physical characteristics of the areas of the State; convenience in the establishment of a district seat of government; amount of taxable basis and tax budget which would constitute a more adequate unit for local government; population and the service needs of the several districts.

Groupings Proposed

The redistricting, which is possible under the Maryland Constitution, by act of the General Assembly and vote of the county residents involved, would consolidate:

Garrett and Allegany counties into District 1.

Washington, Frederick and Carroll into District 2.

Montgomery and Howard into District 3.

Baltimore and Harford into District 4.

Anne Arundel, Calvert, Charles, St. Mary's and Prince George's into District 5.

Kent, Cecil, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Caroline into District 6.

Dorchester, Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester into District 7.

Benefits May Set Forth

The report thus lists the advantages of the redivision:

Consolidation would tend to place both the services and costs of government on a more equitable basis.

Aid the smaller and poorer counties by utilizing without unjust discrimination the relatively greater wealth of the richer counties.

Eliminate many duplicating expenditures.

Make possible a unit large enough and involving a budget large enough to be of efficient size.

Make possible a centralized and authoritative governmental unit.

Increase the possibility of more equality in assessments and taxation, now needed throughout the State.

Make possible the survival of a system of sound democratic local government, namely home rule county government.

The report also proposed a limited executive plan of county government for the present administrative organization.

Under this, a board of commissioners would be elected, but the executive of the county would be appointed by the board itself. The board would have the authority to appoint all department directors on recommedation of the executive, and the executive would appoint all the personnel of the departments on recommedation of department heads.

That from the time of said marriage until January 1, 1928, the parties resided in the State of Pennsylvania.

That on January 1, 1928, the parties separated and since that time have lived separate and apart without any cohabitation and such separation is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That your oratrix has been a resident of the State of Maryland for more than two years prior to the filing of this Bill of Complaint and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and the last time the plaintiff had any knowledge of the whereabouts of the said Walter Fike he was somewhere in the State of Pennsylvania.

That there was one child born of said marriage; namely, Randall Fike, who is now ten years of age and who has been in the custody of the plaintiff ever since the separation of the parties.

The Bill prays for a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

He Can Restore Faith

Washington, Feb. 17.

It is not easy to be sure about the stability of Mr. Roosevelt's course, because of his well-recognized disposition when moving in one direction to find some means of reassuring those who want him to move in the other. However, there are a number of reasons for thinking that at the moment the so-called "conservative influences" are in the ascendancy at the White House and his left-wing advisers not being listened to as lovingly as before.

* * *

If there were any guarantee that this would last until business could regain its breath, it would be a very encouraging sign. In any event, the reasons for the distinctly conciliatory tone of recent Presidential conversations are interesting and the complete discontinuation of the effort, at first so well received in the White House, to impress the people with the silly idea that business men had deliberately brought about the business slump, is significant.

* * *

Actually, the abandonment of that utterly false and hollow argument was due to the clarity with which a series of events have forced upon the President the conclusion that, however he may have been cheered in the past for his attacks, there is no present support, either in Congress or in the country, for a belligerent attitude toward business. Nothing could be clearer than that neither the "crusading spirit" nor a "reform program" would be popular with the people as a whole, whose chief desire is to end the depression, who are beginning to feel apprehensive and are in no mood to be responsive to tirades against industry or new experiments sponsored by the anti-capitalistic intimates.

* * *

These things have been made plain in a number of ways. One, for instance, was the extreme flatness with which the speeches of Messrs. Ickes and Jackson fell. Another was the surprising unanimity with which the "little business men" saw eye to eye with the big business men, urged repeal of the same taxes and with far more candor asked the Administration to "stop flitting around, light somewhere and give us a chance." Even more significant, however, is the present position of the labor leaders in whose behalf Mr. Roosevelt has spent four years belaboring business. On one side we have Lewis, of the C. I. O., in agreement with Mr. Thomas Lamont, the Morgan partner, visiting the White House and urging the same conservative things. On the other hand, Mr. William Green, of the A. F. of L., makes a vigorous speech urging repeal of "unsound taxes," insists that capital be allowed to make a "reasonable profit," and being commended by business men generally for his "patriotic attitude." In brief, both Mr. Lewis and Mr. Green openly recognize that the fortunes of labor are linked with the fortunes of business; that the former cannot flourish when the latter is flat.

* * *

Considering these things, it is not difficult to understand why from the White House yesterday word went out that Mr. Roosevelt has a "new economic program" especially designed to reassure and help business. Various rather thin details are given, including a tentative indorsement of Senator Bulkley's grandiose dream of a "great national system of self-liquidating super-highways—if they can be made self-liquidating. The way the suggestions were put out really committed Mr. Roosevelt to nothing. He may drop them entirely, as he has other national policies enunciated at his press conferences, or he may follow with various legislative proposals preceded by a "mild message on monopoly." Far more helpful than any ingenious proposal, no matter how well intentioned, would be a general conviction that the governmental heckling and Administration attacks were over, not temporarily but permanently; that the effort to regulate and control business had ended; that the crippling taxes would be removed; that the crusaders and reformers were no longer in the saddle and that the Administration finally had "lit."

* * *

If the President can inculcate a conviction about those things, he need have no "new economic program." None is really needed. What is needed is faith in the sincerity of the Administration's friendliness and a restoration of confidence in the security of free enterprise. That is all. If Mr. Roosevelt will give the country those two things—and it is certainly within his power to give them—he need do nothing else.

WARNS AGAINST BORROWING FOR MARYLAND OPERATING COSTS

Governor Nice, In Second of Personal Statements On Problems of State, Absolves Administration From "Sole" Responsibility For Such "Unsound Practice", Seen As Financial Chaos

Governor Harry W. Nice, in the second of a series of personal statements on problems of the State government, absolved his administration Saturday from "sole" responsibility for the "unsound practice" of borrowing money to meet state operating expenses.

Warning that "such a practice must ultimately result in financial chaos," the Governor asserted money borrowed by the state can be used "legitimately" only for investment, capital improvements or replacements, the usefulness of which outlive the period of indebtedness."

He cited recent press criticism which he said placed responsibility for unsound borrowing on his administration alone. These, he asserted, have been "grossly misleading."

"I wish to discuss this subject from a factual basis in order that the people x x x may have a clear idea of the picture during the last five years," he continued.

"First: In 1933, the state borrowed twelve million dollars to be spent for unemployment relief in Baltimore city. At that time, the city of Baltimore had a bonded debt of one hundred sixty-nine million dollars. The net city debt financed from property taxes was so close to the credit danger line that the state was forced to lend its credit to aid in the solution of Baltimore's unemployment problem x x x

"The pay-as-you-go plan now in operation in Baltimore city is of course a sound financial program as far as it goes, but the people of the state should not be deceived into thinking that its inauguration was the result of wise management, because, as a matter of fact, it was forced upon the city by the above cited condition and is the result of compulsion.

"Second: In 1935 also, $800,000 of state bonds were authorized for the teachers' retirement system x x x.

"While th eappropriation of bonds for this particular purpose has an element of soundness and may be called a capital outlay, it was the first time that this appropriation had not been made entirely from money for what previously had been considered an operating expense of the state.

"Third: Toward the end of the calendar year 1934, just before my inauguration, it was revealed by the state treasury officials that there was an impending treasury deficit of $2,300,000 and that a necessary $1,500,000 of working capital had also disappeared, making a total of $3,800,000 necessary immediately for general treasury purposes. Also $500,000 was needed to prevent a deficit in the annuity bond fund which supports the state debt. Consequently, there was appropriated by the General Assembly of 1935 from an emergency bond issue of $8,500,000 the sum of $4,300,000 for the overrun in the operating expenses of the state government under the previous administration, which bond issue of $8,500,000 is not now and never will be a burden on real estate.

"It is only necessary to add these amounts together to show that the stupendous sum of $17,100,000 was used for other than capital outlays hy or for the previous administration and the state's bonded indebtedness in consequence was increased to that extent x x x.

"Turning now to th euse by the state of borrowed money for operating expenses during my administration which the record shows has been done to finance the state since October 1, 1935, the following comprise the total of such appropriations for some of which I assume my share of responsibility:

"First, part of the state's contribution for four years to the teachers' retirement system reserve has been by bonds. This was following a precedent of the previous administration and is in the opinion of many authorities a sound use of borrowed money. In order to be consistent, however, we will consider this as used for operating expenses. The legislature arbitrarily raised my recommendation for this purpose by half a million dollars, so that the total over four years for this is $1,900,000 of which I had recommended only $350,000 a year for four years, or a total of $1,400,000.

"Second, the legislature of 1935 made restorations to the state budget from the emergency bond issue of that session to compensate for my drastic budget cuts and to make restorations to the state road system for necessary transfers of highway funds. This amounted to $3,500,000 plus the premium obtained from the sale of the issue. This was against my stated policy x x x x.

"In the face of my recommedation for a small bond issue and the raising of additional revenues to provide for a reserve fund, the General Assembly of 1935, in addition to making the appropriation necessary to restore the solvency of the General Assembly at the end of the previous administration, appropriated funds for the operating expenses of the government in the form of restorations for the fiscal years 1936 and 1937 from the emergency hond issue of 1935 x x x.

"Thirdly, the legislature of 1937 made restoration for highway purposes from horrowed money instead of from indirect taxes as recommended by me. They appropriated $3,300,000 for this purpose from bond issue of 1937 x x x. The legislature x x x increased my bond issue bill from $5,092,000 to a total issue of $9,052,000 of which increase $3,390,000 was for restorations to th estate roads funds which I specifically stated should come from new indirect taxes and $500,000 of which was their own addition to the recommended allotment to the teachers' retirement system reserve.

"The General Assembly of 1935 and 1937 has authorized the use of $8,700,000 of borrowed money for operating expenses of the state for the four fiscal years of my present administration, only $1,400,000 of which I sponsored (teachers' retirement system bonds), and I specifically counseled against the remainder. I signed these bond issue bills realizing the unsoundness of this method of financing but also knowing that a veto would mean in each case a special session of the legislature with little change in the net result, but at great added cost. I was unwilling to involve the state in such a useless expenditure.

"To recapitulate the entire picture of the last five years, of the total of $25,800,000 of horrowed money used for other purposes than investment, capital improvement or replacements, $17,100,000 is a responsibility of the administration immediately preceding the present one, and of the remainder I have strongly recommended against all but the debatable item of $1,400,000 of teachers' retirement annuity reserve bonds.

"The bonded indebtedness of the state of Maryland is at th epresent writing $47,491,000 and at the end of my present term in January, 1939, provided bonds are sold that are authorized and redemptions made that are scheduled, the bonded debt of the state of Maryland will be $48,247,000. Furthermore, at the end of the present fiscal biennium September 30, 1939, unless the next Maryland General Assembly changes these figures, the state debt will have been reduced to $939,000 more than the state's ondebt-$939,000 mor ethan the state's indebtedness was at the time of my inauguration.

"Of this state debt it may be well to remember that $8,500,000 was issued in 1935 in such a manner that it has not been and probably never will be a burden on the property taxpayer. It is supported and in all likelihood will be liquidated by an allotment from the collateral inheritance tax of the state of Maryland, so that deducting this issue from the state debt at present there is the sum of $38,991,000 of state debt supported by property taxes and this is $4,646,000 less than the state debt supported hy property taxes when I came into office.

"The taxable basis of Maryland stood October 1st, 1937, $2,737,753,809.95 and is on the increase. This is a ratio of about 1¾ per cent and is about ¼ of what it might be without serious concern for the state's credit x x x.

"The state is to be congratulated on the excellent condition of its-finanees and this enviable position should be maintained undisturbed by any attempt to borrow for expenses. There has been for several years, however, a long range trend toward an increase in the state bonded debt which is dangerous, regardless of who is responsible. This must be reversed x x x.

Governor Nice Takes Exception To Editorial In The Sun

Hon. Harry W. Nice, Governor of Maryland, has taken exception to an editorial appearing in the Monday morning edition of the Baltimore Sun, which criticizes the Governor's statement (printed above) on borrowing in connection with State finances.

GOV. NICE WARNS AGAINST

The Governor states that all of this is not in keeping with the record and has asked The Republican to reproduce his telegram to the city editor of the Morning Sun. The telegram follows:

City Editor,
"Morning Sun,"
Charles and Baltimore Streets,
Baltimore, Maryland.

In this morning's issue of your estimable journal, your leading editorial, critical of my statement of Sunday on the subject of State borrowing in connection with State finances and captioned "Nice on Borrowing," complains of my failure to suggest ways and means of stopping the practice of borrowing.

The editorial further states that Governor Ritchie borrowed as a matter of emergency of a non-recurring character to meet relief and unemployment. The emergency, faced by Governor Ritchie was not non-recurring or temporary, but decidedly permanent as evidenced by his statement that he was borrowing to cover a period of three years.

As it was permanent then, so it is permanent now, and has been permanent all during my administration, and even after the spending of billions of the people's money, and what is more, it will continue permanent for many years to come, so that the editorial was based upon a false premise and totally at variance with the record.

My answer to your editorial is a public request for a workable program that will eliminate the necessity for further borrowing by the State. If you will give me such a program and will pledge me support of your editorial columns and your newswriters, I, in turn, assure you of my full support.

Now and regardless of what my position may be at the time when the next Legislature meets, it is my duty os Governor of this State to call upon those qualified to give advice on any problem that confronts the administration. It is the duty of every citizen or institution called upon to render this assistance.

It particularly becomes your duty, as one of the outstanding critics of this administration, to furnish me any constructive plan you may have or can evolve looking to the correction of this evil. It is very easy to criticize but somewhat difficult to evolve a sane, constructive policy or plan.

When you furnish me your plan, I must necessarily rely to a great extent upon your efforts to secure the necessary Democratic support in the Legislature.

I am sure Governor Ritchie did not like State borrowing. I have consistently voiced my dislike. Both administrations were forced to this method of raising money by circumstances over which they had no control. Let us have your plan, your support, and as Governor of this State, it will be my pleasure to give the best that is in me to its successful consummation and to publicly acknowledge Maryland's debt of gratitude to you.

I am sure that where you criticize you must necessarily have constructive remedies and it is for this reason that I call upon you to come to the assistance of the people of Maryland.

I do hope you will publish this tomorrow morning in full.

HARRY W. NICE.

Annapolis, February 21.

Accompanying Governor Nice's reply to the editorial of the Sun, which appeared in The Sun on Tuesday, was another editorial declining to enter into any agreement with the Governor. Governor Nice answered this editorial with another telegram, which is printed below and which is self-explanatory:

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 22, 1938.
Editor of The Sun,
Baltimore.

Many of the world's most important constructive suggestions by newspaper reforms have been brought about through constructive suggestions by newspapers. Criticism can only be justified when the critic is willing and able to offer a remedy for the faults to which he objects. The problem of State finance is not Republican or Democratic. It is Maryland's problem. Your refusal, therefore, to render assistance in this or any other State problem is a refusal to the people of Maryland and not to me.

I have no comment to make on the language in which your rejection of my proposal was couched except to say that I prefer to forget the temper displayed therein and to remember only the real fine part you have played in the history of our State.

It is not my desire and certainly not your intention to prolong this discussion. I do feel that I am justified in asking you to continue your courtesy by the publication of this telegram in tomorrow's issue.

H. W. NICE, Governor.

County Commissioners Take Exceptions To Mr. Friend's Statement And Show Inaccuracies

To The Editor of The Republican:

It is not our intention or desire to enter into any newspaper controversy with Senator Friend concerning the affairs of our office but Senator Friend's letter to the Editor of the Mountain Democrat published in last week's issue of that paper contains incorrect statements that we feel should be corrected and we also feel that it is our duty to enlighten Senator Friend and the citizens of the county concerning the matters mis-stated in his letter.

Senator Friend seems to be aggrieved because of the statement made by us that Garrett County would receive a smaller amount from the lateral roads gasoline tax because of certain Acts of the 1937 Legislature. Our statement was made because we were advised to that effect by the State Roads Commission. Senator Friend then goes on to say that the Governor diverted a certain amount of the lateral roads tax to the general funds of the State and that the "legislatures had nothing to do with the diversion of these funds". We were under the impression that the legislature passed on the Governor's budget and we think it did in this particular case. He goes on to say that the legislature did restore a portion of the diverted gasoline tax back to the counties with the provision that the funds restored were to be used by the counties exclusively for the construction of roads and highways. We think Senator Friend's own statement verifies the statement made by us. We were discussing the amount the county would receive from the gasoline tax fund to be used for road maintenance and our statement had nothing whatever to say about the amount made available to the county for new construction by reason of the state bond issue. The other items that he mentions are funds that are available for new construction from other sources but have nothing to do with what the county will receive from the gasoline tax for road maintenance.

Senator Friend is wrong again when he states:

> "By act of the legislature direct relief is handled in this county by our Board of County Commissioners leaving relief in other categories such as old age pension and aid to dependent children in the hands of the County Welfare Board. Our Commissioners will receive from the State to defray the cost of direct relief approximately $25,000.00 for this year. This is considerable more than direct relief is costing. I have been informed that our Commissioners are expending per month for direct relief only about $690.00. At this rate relief will cost our County Commissioners about $7,000.00 for the year. The law allows our Commissioners to use the unexpended balance from this fund for general county purposes. Also our county will receive $6,000.00 per year from the State for hospitalization of needy persons. The above grants from the State are entirely new since the present commissioners took office. You will note that these amounts are not mentioned in their levy for this year and will likely be thrown into the contingent fund."

We have not been advised of any Act of the Legislature that direct relief shall be handled by the Board of County Commissioners. The Commissioners may, if they see fit to do so, handle direct relief themselves or they may delegate such authority to the Welfare Board of the county. During the past year the Board has seen fit to handle this problem themselves. Where Senator Friend obtained the information that our Board will receive $25,000.00 from the State for direct relief this year is not known to us. The facts are that from the time of the enactment of the Act providing for funds to be used for relief purposes approximately a year ago, the total amount this county has received is $4,820.00. This check was received from the Comptroller on November 12, 1937. If the county is to receive $25,000.00 for direct relief from State funds this year, we certainly had no information, either official or unofficial, to that effect and we assume that we will not receive any more this year than we received last year; namely, $4,820.00.

As to the $6,000.00 item for the hospitalization of the needy which is contained in the Governor's budget, we wish to inform Senator Friend and the public that the County Commissioners do not receive one single cent of this money. When an application is received by the Board for hospitalization and if it appears that the case is a needy one, the Board authorizes the hospital to receive the patient and at stated intervals during the year the various hospitals to which these cases are referred send a bill direct to the Comptroller for these patients on a per diem basis and the Comptroller sends his check direct to the hospital in settlement of the bills. If there is any surplus remaining at the end of the year, such surplus goes back to the general funds of the State.

Senator Friend again creates the wrong impression when he states "also the increase in the tax base amounting to $2,431,138.00 at eighty-five cents on the $100.00 will produce another $20,664.67 for the year over and above that which the old base would have produced." This statement would create the impression that there was something over $20,000.00 additional funds available for general county purposes. This is not true because, under the law, in order for our county to share in the school equalization fund, we must levy forty-seven cents on each $100.00 assessable basis for the support and maintenance of schools, so that instead of there being the amount mentioned by Senator Friend available for general purposes there would be but $9,238.32 additional revenue.

Senator Friend mentions the item of $25,000.00 additional revenue from the beer tax and licenses. An examination of the levy as published in both newspapers will show that we have accounted for that item and anticipated the full amount that will be received from that source.

As stated in the beginning, we do not intend or care to enter into any newspaper controversy with Senator Friend about these matters but we think in fairness to all concerned the incorrect statements made in his letter should not be allowed to stand without correction.

JOHN W. HERMAN,
V. T. STEYER,
BLAINE GIESSMAN,
Board of County Commissioners.

Crop Loan Applications To Be Received On March 22

Applications for emergency crop and feed loans for 1938 will be received at the County Agent's office Oakland, on March 22, from 9 to 5 o'clock by W. A. Winfree, Jr., field supervisor of the emergency crop and feed loan section of the Farm Credit Administration.

The loans will be made, as in the past, only to farmers who cannot obtain credit from any other source. The money loaned will be limited to the farmer's immediate and actual cash needs for growing his 1938 crops or for the purchase of feed for livestock, and the amount which may be loaned to any one farmer in 1938 may not exceed $400.00.

MT. LAKE PARK

Baseball fans of the old days should get a "kick" out of this letter. We are going to give it to you just as it was handed to us by Mr. A. T. "Buck" White:

"Remember when the baseball grounds were down at the railroad station? Home base was about where the postoffice building now stands. There was a porch along the side of the old postoffice structure which some of the ladies used as a grandstand to watch the game when C. J. "Nibs" Rathbun pitched. James Paugh was the catcher; Phil Gough, first base; Ed Burley, second base; Warren "Hick" Rathbun, third base; Bob Burley, the short stop; Johnny Bonney, left field; Bill Armstrong, right field; Lew Armstrong, center field.

"Later site of the ball diamond was moved to the lake and for a number of years as soon as Johnny Bonney arrived for the summer the baseball season was officially opened. Benney was always the captain and manager (and by the way he was one of the finest fellows who ever came to the Park). He had a team composed of "Pop" Hurst, of Yale; Bill Bowman, of West Va. U.; Floyd Parsons, of Cornell; Jim Brewer, of University of Virginia; "Doodle" Sanks, Lew Armstrong, Ed Johnson, Harry Beck, Bill Armstrong, Joe Johns, Creel List and many others to draw from. Perhaps some of you will recall them later."

Well, we must admit that some of those named are a little before our time, but not all of them. Anyhow, thanks, Mr. White.

Now we give you one that we can remember, and it did not come from Oakland, but from Washington, D. C.: "Do you remember when Blaine Giessman, a lad from near Mountain Lake, drove a surrey for his father, who had a livery in Oakland? He was so very nice; we have often wondered what became of him. Our drive was usually from Oakland to the Dennett Hotel, where we stopped, and the way was that lovely back road from Oakland."

(Blaine Giessman, that "so nice boy," is now a County Commissioner of Garrett county).

From Fairmont, W. Va., comes: "We recall when the Loch Lynn Hotel was the 'high spot.' The Consolidation Coal Company officials held a meeting there in August one year. We believe it was the first year the casino had been built, but we are not sure. Mrs. List was hostess, and what a hostess. We remember that most of our party came in on the B. & O. which reached Mountain Lake around two or two-thirty. Was it called No. 46? Our recollection is that it was."

We looked at an old post card. It pictured the station on a Saturday afternoon. Ladies with parasols were numerous. They were waiting for the afternoon trains. Their husbands, sweethearts and friends were coming in to spend Sunday.

Excursion days were big events in the life of summer and winter residents. All trains were met, and always there was some one unexpected arrived. Then it become a time to figure out where they were going to stay and we began to wonder if there was room enough at the house.

Next week we hope to be able to furnish some programs of those days. Anyhow, they have been promised.

Seems too bad that we can not have at least a little of that "old glamor" in Mountain Lake. After all it has not changed much. What is the trouble? Perhaps it is ourselves; yet nature has remained the same and there are no material changes that we can see. Of course, the days of Chautauqua are passed, but there surely must be something to take the place of that. Mountain Lake is too grand a place to sink into just a place in which to live. We need something—what is it?

An article just came in with a picture of the first kindergarten in the old Assembly Hall. Miss Minnie Daugherty, of Baltimore, a guest at the Braethorn last summer, and Miss Pollack (she has passed on) were the teachers. We ourself went to this kindergarten, but not at this time. In the group picture we saw Hugh Carr, Hallie and Harry Sanks, Gay Hayden, John Hayden, Ellen Hayden, Mrs. Mamie Carr Martin, the Miller sisters, Earl Enlow and his sisters, Miss Helen, Mrs. Gertrude Enlow Utterback, deceased; Mrs. Lois Enlow Graeff, and many others.

Personls

Mrs. Jack Stevenson, who was called to Jefferson, Iowa, by the death of her mother, returned to the Park on Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Dively, Youngstown, Ohio, spent the week-end here with Mrs. Dively's mother, Mrs. Laura Welch. Mrs. Dively will be remembered as the former Miss Dorothy Welch.

Walter Sanner, local B. & O. engineer, spent Monday and Tuesday here with his family, returning to Cumberland on Wednesday.

Dr. and Mrs. Logan Carr are now in Orlando, Florida. They expect to return to the Park early in the Spring.

Mrs. I. D. Hill, who is on an extended motor trip, writes friends that she is now at Palm Springs, Calif., but will arrive in Mountain Lake on or about April 1st.

Mrs. T. G. Ford, Mrs. Mary Moreland and Floyd White returned from Fairmont this week. They had been there to attend the funeral of their sister, Mrs. Ethel Caroline Friend.

Mrs. Frank Murphy left Sunday for a visit in Fairmont.

Miss Norma Welling returned to Cumberland on Monday after a visit here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Welling.

Mrs. Mary Bussell, who has been quite ill, is now much improved.

Mrs. Allie Haymond is in Fairmont to spend several days with Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Fleming. Mr. and Mrs. James C. Frame and Miss Kathleen Bishop accompanied Mrs. Haymond to Fairmont, returning the same day.

Billy Bleakly, who has been ill at the home of his grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. Gregory Bleakly, is much better.

VOLUME 62. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, MARCH 3, 1938. NUMBER 1.

CITIZENS' MEETING WILL BE HELD NEXT WEDNESDAY

Candidates For Mayor, Councilmen and Treasurer Will Be Named at City Hall Gathering

ELECTION IS MARCH 14TH

A citizens' meeting to select candidates for the municipal election to be held Monday, March 14, will be held in the City Hall next Wednesday evening, March 9, beginning at 8 o'clock, it was announced yesterday afternoon.

At this year's election there will be elected a mayor, three members of the town council and a treasurer, the mayor and councilmen to serve for terms of two years and the treasurer to serve one year.

Mayor Fraley announced yesterday that he would be a candidate for the position he now occupies. Thus far he is the only one to signify his intention to become a candidate, although others may be nominated at the municipal meeting. It is expected, however, that Henry W. McComas, Jr., and Earl Shartzer will be candidates for councilmen and that Richard Davis will be a candidate for treasurer. The third councilman whose term expires is Dr. Ralph L. Kercheval, who is ill in Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia. It is not known what his intentions are with respect to the office.

As stated in the official notice of election appearing today on page six of The Republican, the polls of election will be open on the 14th instant from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m. Anyone eligible to vote in a general county election and who lives within the corporate limits of the town, will be eligible to vote that day and also have a voice in the citizens' meeting on next Wednesday evening, when candidates will be nominated.

The citizens' meeting is in the nature of a primary.

It is urged that all citizens of the town attend the meeting and vote the following Monday.

Boy Scout Troop Committee Has Plans For Activities

At a meeting of the troop committee of Oakland Boy Scout Troop No. 1, held last Thursday evening in the Masonic clubroom, plans were made for the organization of a Ladies' Auxiliary and for a Parent-Son dinner in the near future.

Committees were also named by George Hanst, chairman, as follows: Activities, Donald R. Sincell, Dr. W. W. Grant and Arthur Naylor; advancement, Prof. F. D. Bittle; outdoorman, W. W. Dawson, Ralph M. Luman; membership, C. E. Sharps, Dr. Grant; educational and training, Arthur Naylor, E. R. Jones; equipment, Arthur Naylor, George Hanst; health and safety, Dr. N. I. Broadwater; finance, records and thrift, George Hanst.

Rev. D. C. Trimble is an ex-officio member of the troop committee and Messrs. Bittle, Naylor, Sharps, Jones and Broadwater were added to the committee at a recent meeting.

Tentative plans were also made for the improvement of the camp area along Deep Creek Lake, specifically the cook shack and dining hall within the next three months.

David Stephens Painfully Injured

David Stephens, one of the oldest residents of town, he being now 82, was seriously injured last Friday when he fell on the icy pavement at the corner of Oak and Third streets, striking his head and producing a near-fracture of his skull.

The injured man was in an unconscious condition and was found by a group of boys. It is not known how long he lay there. He was taken to the office of Dr. Baumgartner and later to the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jos. Ross, in the east end of town, where he remained in an unconscious condition until Tuesday evening when he revived sufficiently to take nourishment. He remains, however, in a semi-conscious condition.

Burned With Cleaning Fluid

Mrs. Mason Glotfelty, Third street, was painfully burned about her hands, arms and face on Saturday while engaged in cleaning a pair of gloves with a cleaning fluid.

In some manner the fluid exploded and burst into flames, the fire blistering Mrs. Glotfelty's face and searing the skin on both her arms. Her hair and eyelashes were also burned.

Pittsburghers On Tour Plan Luncheon Stop In Oakland

Two bus loads of Pittsburgh business leaders contemplate making a tour of the Allegheny Tableland some time in May and are planning a luncheon stop in Oakland. There will be approximately forty in the party.

The tour of the Allegheny Tableland will be sponsored by the Tableland Council of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce. Local citizens are making plans to have a group of local people meet the Pittsburgh group at lunch to renew the friendships that have sprung up between Pittsburgh and Tableland people within the past few years. Several times in recent years Pittsburgh business men have come here to public gatherings and each year the Chamber of Commerce has a dinner in Pittsburgh, inviting representatives from the many towns and cities of the Tableland.

Definite arrangements will be made later.

Employes Now 65 Should Report To Social Security Board

Employes who have reached 65 since January 1, 1938, and who have earned wages in "covered employment" since that time, should report such fact to the Social Security Board field office, 308 Postoffice Building, in Cumberland. Such workers are entitled to 3½ per cent of the wages which they earned in covered employment since December 31, 1936, and prior to reaching the age of 65, according to Macon G. Williams, manager. An employe does not have to stop work in order to receive a lump-sum payment. "Covered employment," generally speaking, means employment in commerce and industry.

A lump-sum payment is now due the estate or relatives of a worker who has died since December 31, 1936, provided the deceased worker was paid wages in "covered employment" after December 31, 1936, and before he had reached 65.

Bed Collapses On Top Of Occupant, Dazing Him

Ernest Colaw, Jr., of Crellin, student at Frostburg State Teachers' College, awoke the other night thinking a champion prize fighter had hit him, but when he recovered from a severe blow to his head he found it was only his bed.

Colaw was knocked into a daze at two o'clock on Friday morning when an old-fashioned bed with high wooden head and foot, in which he was sleeping at his home on Wood street, collapsed, the head of the bed striking him and pinning him to the mattress.

Two companions, Edward Krontz and Peter Kreigh, who were sleeping in an adjacent room, heard the noise and went to his assistance. They summoned an assistant but no serious injury was found.

Colaw is a star pitcher of the college baseball team.

Series Of Lenten Services In St. Mark's Church Announced

The subjects for the Sunday morning and Sunday evening services are as follows:

March 6, "The Great Fast", and "God's Duty To Man."

March 13, "The Perfect Restoration," and "Man's Duty to God."

March 20, "A Great Deliverance," and "Who Is this God About Whom We Speak?"

March 27, "A Lesson in Conversation," and "How May We Make Contact With God?"

April 3, "Who Is the Liar?" and "In What Way Does God Come to Us?"

April 10, Palm Sunday: "He That Cometh," and "Covenanting With God."

April 17, Easter Sunday, 7:00 a. m., "The Door That No Man Can Shut;" 10:45, Holy Communion, reception of members; 7:30 p. m., "In the Garden With God."

Oakland High Is Defeated

Oakland High school boys basketball team was defeated last evening by Beall High school, Frostburg, the final score being 32-8, on the local court. The girls' team was also defeated by 10 points after holding the Frostburg girls to a close score in the first half of the game.

The boys' team also lost to an alumni group on Tuesday evening 28 to 24.

THE REPUBLICAN BEGINS ITS SIXTY-SECOND YEAR

Today's Issue Marks Start On Another Milestone of History

With today's issue, The Republican enters upon its sixty-second year. The paper was founded on February 28, 1877, the first number appearing the following Saturday, March 4, 1877.

Down through the years, several extra Thursdays have slipped into the calendars and the volume just closing really had 55 papers. This was done purposely just so the sixty-second year could start again on the date nearest the date upon which the first paper was published.

At the time of the founding of The Republican by the late Capt. James A. Hayden, of Mountain Lake Park, there was also being published the Garrett County Herald, with Hiram P. Tasker, editor, but it ceased publication sometime afterward. The Herald was a Democratic organ and was succeeded later by the present Democratic publication.

The Republican is not only the oldest newspaper in Garrett county but is likewise the earliest established business enterprise in the county that has gone on through the years uninterruptedly. The paper has had but two owners since it was established, the founder and the present publisher.

Capt. Hayden was its editor until July 4, 1890, when the present publisher took charge. He published his first paper upon his 21st birthday anniversary which occurred on July 11, of that year. He will have rounded out 48 years of continuous service by July of this year.

Six persons are kept busy in the office and printing plant in the publication of the paper and varied branches of printing operations. The office equipment, with two linotypes, a Kelly automotic job press in addition to the regular newspaper and other job presses, is the best and most up-to-date in this section of the country.

The subscription list of The Republican, conceded to be Garrett County's leading newspaper, is approximately 500 more than any other newspaper published in this county and is steadily gaining new patrons.

To Observe World Day of Prayer Friday, March 4th

"The World Day of Prayer" will be observed locally in the Methodist Episcopal church in Oakland on Friday (tomorrow), March 4, beginning at three o'clock.

This is one day in the year when people in the foreign countries as well as in the United States unite in prayer for God's guidance in directing the affairs of the nations in order that love and brotherhood may prevail in the hearts and lives of all people.

Persons living in all nearby communities are invited to attend this service.

MARCH ARRIVAL IS LIKE BOTH THE LAMB AND LION

Majority Think, However, Lion Seemed To Have Upper Hand

In what condition March arrived on the scene Tuesday is a question in Garrett county, some of its characteristics being much like a lamb, while others portrayed the actions of a lion.

To begin with the temperature on Tuesday morning was 11 above zero, and there were several inches of snow on the ground (not very lamby). But it was warmer than the previous morning, which had a reading of 9 above.

The sun shone practically the entire day and the snow melted to some extent showing, according to some of the weather-wise, a lamb-like atmosphere. However, throughout the day there was a strong wind which was uncomfortable and piercing to many, hence the impression that the lion held the upper hand. The thermometer in shady places did not go far above the freezing point.

Wednesday continued clear and warmer here.

Over the eastern states area, however, there wasn't much doubt. The March lion roared in on a 50-mile gale in that section, giving them the most bitter winter weather of the year. Temperatures dropped toward zero. Storm warnings flew from New York to Maine as the gale kicked up high seas and held coastwise shipping in port.

So Garrett county is still a pretty good spot in which to live.

City Obtains Snow Plow

The City of Oakland has obtained a snow plow from the State Roads Commission, which will be available in the future to keep the streets open to traffic at all times.

The plow is being fixed so that it can be attached to the front of the city's new truck. Negotiations for the purchase of this plow have been under way for some time.

A company selling motor driven snow plows for sidewalks, was in Oakland on Tuesday demonstrating to members of the city council. The plow retails for about $325. There is also an attachment on the machine making it possible to cut grass along the sidewalks in the summer months.

Held on Liquor Charges

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sisler, Oak street, were arrested yesterday morning by county authorities on charges of having illegal liquor in their possession and selling.

Mrs. Sisler was charged with selling a pint of liquor to Andrew Charles Friend on March 1 and on March 2. Mr. Sisler was charged with having illegal liquor in his possession for the purpose of sale on March 1 and March 2.

They will be given hearings in the near future.

BRIDAL PARTY ARRIVES HERE TOO LATE TO OBTAIN LICENSE AND ARE GIVEN NIGHT'S LODGING IN JAIL

Idea Didn't Appeal Until Justice Hammond Told Them It Included Breakfast Next Morning

COUPLE WED AND HAPPY

Four young people, two of whom seriously contemplated marriage, arrived in Oakland last Wednesday evening after the Court House had closed, and having only the necessary funds for the license ($2.00), a little for the officiating minister ($1.00), and five gallons of gas (about another doller), applied for commitments to spend the night in jail where it was warmer than on the outside with the thermometer showing freezing of a little below. The commitments were furnished by Justice Hammond.

Three young men, Howard Frisby (groom-to-be), Emil Sumpler and Elbert Dietrick, and the bride-to-be, Mary Paer, all school chums, left Braddock, Pa., last Wednesday for Kingwood, West Va., where the couple had planned to be married. They left home with about $6 in cash, as it wasn't payday in the mills nt Braddock until two days later. At Kingwood they learned of the three-day marriage law and someone advised them to go on to Cumberland. At Cumberland they arrived after the Court House there had closed and then somebody there advised them they could get a license in Oakland.

The Court House here was also closed and Clerk A. G. Ross never reopens his office, once it is closed, until eight o'clock the following morning. They sought out Justice C. F. Hammond for advice and assistance. "We're in a tight predicament. It's cold and we can't spend the night in the car," said the girl, who seemed to be the spokesman. "Can't you marry us so that we may get back home tonight?" she asked. When told that he could not, Justice Hammond then said that lodging was available at the County Jail.

"They didn't seem exactly impressed at first about the prospect of spending the night in jail, but when I told them that besides having a very comfortable place to stay," the Justice said, "but it also means a good breakfast for the four of you, they readily consented."

So up to the County Jail went the foursome. The groom-to-be tried to curl up and sleep in the car, but gave up within a short time and went in where it was warm. The girl was given the exclusive use of the women's quarters, while the three young men were given the use of the "wide open spaces," as far as it went.

Early next morning, following the promised breakfast, the license was applied for and obtained and the marriage performed by the Rev. W. S. Patterson. "They seemed to be very happy in here," said Miss Nell Nethkin, deputy clerk, wh oissued the delayed license to the couple.

LOCAL AUTOMOBILE DEALERS JOIN IN NATIONAL USED CAR EXCHANGE WEEK FROM MARCH 5 TO 12

Drive on to Sweep The American Automobile Industry Out Of The Current Recession

TO STIMULATE BUSINESS

A national drive to sweep the American automobile industry out of the current recession and stimulate business generally has been announced by Alvan Macauley, of New York, speaking for every American automobile manufacturer and the nation's 46,000 automobile dealers.

The campaign, to be known as "National Used Car Exchange Week," and scheduled for March 5 to 12, is an outgrowth of recent conferences at the White House between President Roosevelt and leaders of the automobile industry, Mr. Macauley said. The President has been advised of plans for the campaign, which is the first cooperative effort ever undertaken in which all American automobile manufacturers have taken part.

The campaign is timed at the outset of the spring selling season when both new and used cars usually begin to move in greatest volume, Mr. Macauley said. It is aimed primarily at stimulating the disposal of used car stocks now in dealer hands. Once this is accomplished, a substantial increase in car manufacturing schedules and employment of wage earners in the automobile factories is anticipated.

To support the campaign, Mr. Macauley announced, the manufacturers will spend $1,250,000 in newspaper, radio and outdoor advertising and in other promotional channels. Two-thirds of the advertising budget will be spent in newspapers.

Local Dealers Cooperate

Every automobile dealer operating a business in Oakland is cooperating in this national drive, and through the columns of The Republican all are advertising a number of bargains available in used cars and trucks.

Those cooperating include Ralph Pritts garage, Hinebaugh's garage, Shahan's Garage, Leighton Brothers garage, Sharps Motor Company, Reckard and Glotfelty, Auto Electric Service and Whites Garage and Service Station.

"The motor car industry," said Mr. Macauley in making the announcement, "is generally credited with showing the way out of the last depression.

"Today the automobile manufacturers, their suppliers, the nation's 46,000 dealers and allied industries are launching a similar drive."

So far as the automobile industry is concerned, the most serious barrier to business improvement is the large stock of used cars in dealers' hands, Mr. Macauley pointed out.

"Until these cars can be sold, it is

HUNTERS KILL FOXES IN GARRETT COUNTY

Get 61 In Three Months In Potomac State Forest

Sixty-four foxes, fifty-eight of them grey foxes and six red, were killed in the Potomac state forest, near Deer Park, in the months of December, January, and February, District Forester H. C. Buckingham has reported.

The forest covers approximately 6,000 acres of woodland and an average of six hunters a week got permission to shoot within its boundaries. Bush Hardesty, with sixteen grey foxes to his credit, killed the most. William Tasker shot eleven greys and two reds, while William DeBerry shot eleven greys. The balance were killed by six other hunters.

The bounty on these animals is $2 apiece.

Many Persons Report Hearing Local Band Broadcast

Many persons have reported hearing the Loch Lynn-Mountain Lake Park Boys' Band over radio station WMMN, Fairmont, on Saturday evening, when a full program of band music was rendered under the direction of H. S. Mickey, band master.

Those hearing the broadcast stated the reception was clear and that the entire program was well rendered. During the broadcast numerous telegrams were received and a few of them read over the air.

A brief message from Mr. Mickey to The Republican states the band is grateful for the telegrams and to those who made it possible for the members of the organization to participate.

P.-T. Meeting This Evening

A postponed meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of Oakland High school will be held this evening in the school auditorium, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. The meeting was originally scheduled for Monday night but was postponed on account of the inclement weather.

The chief address will be delivered by State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley. Entertainment will be furnished by members of the high school glee club, who will present a minstrel under the direction of Mrs. Russell H. Brown, music instructor at the school.

Produce Trucks Wrecks

A heavily loaded produce truck, belonging to Harvey Mussard of Oakland, was damaged considerably last night about 8 o'clock when it turned over on its side when rounding a corner in Hagerstown. In falling over it crushed another car.

No one was injured, but the frame of the truck was badly bent. The truck had just been purchased within the past few days. Carl Hinebaugh was the driver of the truck.

Ice Causes Wreck

Icy roads on Monday morning was the cause of a smashup between automobiles driven by Karl Kahl, Oakland, and Wilbur S. Neer, of Wheeling, W. Va., at a point on Route 50, west of Red House.

No one was injured and the damage to both cars was covered by insurance.

A Few Of Them In This County

The following letter was received by a business concern from one of those numerous persons to whom a statement of account evidently means nothing:

Gentlemen:—We are in receipt of your impertinent letter of recent date making request for payment of our account with you. For your information we will illustrate how we pay our bills.

At the end of each month we determine our cash position and set aside whatever amount possible for our creditors. The names of our creditors and the amounts due them are written on a slip and the slips placed in a hat. The slips are pulled out of the hat until the amount set aside for creditors is reached and all of these items are paid immediately.

If we are in receipt of another letter from you as acknowledged in our first paragraph, we will not even place your name in the hat.

Yours very truly,

Now that's what I would call fair warning at least.

The New Farm Law

The new crop control bill, which, after five years, is supposed to pull the farmers out of the depression, was recently passed by Congress.

Just what the outcome will be nobody who has studied the measure is prepared to answer. This week a printed copy of the bill was received. It contains more than fifty pages of printed matter.

It is even generally admitted that few statesmen and economists, even those who have passed on the measure, know exactly what it will do.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, denounced the bill as a promulgation of the policy of scarcity at a time when more and more agricultural imports are coming into the country from foreign shores, and he charged that it would provide means for coercion of the farmers rather than voluntary cooperation.

Senator Johnson, of California, declared that it was the beginning of a dictatorship and gave more power to the Secretary of Agriculture than ever before given to one man.

Briefly, the legislation seems to combine all of the farm regulatory efforts of the past few years with provisions for "agricultural parity," soil conservation and control of market surplusses and through this crop regimentation. It is to cost $440,000,000, but some think the outlay will be twice that amount. There is no provision as to where the money will come from to foot this enormous bill.

The law provides for about everything except control of the weather and the crops raised by farmers in foreign countries.

Until these two conditions can be made the subject of legislation it is doubtful whether the new law can accomplish that for which it has been designed.

EXCESS HARVEST WILL CUT FARMERS' SUBSIDY

Payments Under New Farm Program to Depend on Acreage Grown

Farmers who harvest more than their allotted acreage of major crops face drastic deductions in their Federal subsidy payments under the new farm program, officials at Washington said on Saturday.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced detailed regulations governing payment of benefits from $500,000,000 Congress is authorized to appropriate for financing the new crop control law.

Crops affected include cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco, rice, potatoes, peanuts and others designated officially as "soil-depleting."

The new farm act authorizes payment of subsidies to growers who divert land from these crops to those which improve the soil and who use other practices which the AAA says are soil-building.

In announcing the regulations, J. B. Hutson, assistant AAA administrator, said the subsidy or "soil conservation" phase of the farm program was designed to do more than improve and maintain soil fertility. He said "it will tend to keep production in line" with crop requirements.

Other provisions of the new act authorize the use of a marketing quota system, when approved by two-thirds of the growers voting in referenda, to keep surplus supplies off the market.

THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1938

A DUTY TO PERFORM—

One of the very great dangers to our democratic form of government today is the lack of interest which people take in elections. Let this not be said of Oakland citizens nor voters throughout the county.

The primary responsibility for good or bad local government as well as other divisions of government, rests with the citizens. The choice of representatives is always put up to them, under our system of government, and unless he makes his choice he is not fulfilling his or her obligations of citizenship.

Oakland citizens have a duty to perform next Wednesday evening.

A citizens' meeting has been called to select candidates for mayor, members of council and treasurer of the town.

For the past number of years there have been in attendance at these citizens' meetings only a mere handful of voters. Many of the citizens of the town absent themselves. Only a few women ever attended.

Too many voters have become indifferent and negligent with regard to this duty of citizenship. Some say they have no interest in who may be chosen to represent them, or that they cannot see anybody they particularly desire among a whole lot of candidates offered.

The opportunity to nominate someone whom they do desire presents itself at this open meeting.

Should there be no interest taken in the meeting those who stay away have hardly any right to criticize the kind of government those who are elected see fit to impose upon the people of the town.

The meeting thus called is in the nature of a primary election. Pay no attention to that old story to the effect that the primary campaign does not mean anything because the real issues are to be settled in the regular election.

As a matter of fact the primary (in this case the citizens' meeting) is just as important as the regular election, if not more so, because if undesirable men get into the running in the primary they may squeeze in at the election.

For good government in Oakland, in Garrett county and in the nation, it is the duty and responsibility of every citizen to be vitally interested in whom they select to represent them in any public office.

KEEPING LENT—

Observed by members of the Christian churches everywhere, by special services as well as by prayer, fasting and sacrifice, the period of forty days between Ash Wednesday and Easter brings a break in the activities of a more worldly nature of the church member.

Meditation and self-denial are worthy habits at any season of the calendar and most particularly applicable at the present time when deep thought is necessary before taking important steps or making decisions of paramount importance to community and country. Every one, be he member of a church or non-believer, may profit by the custom.

Most opportunely comes the period of self-denial, especially if the money thus saved from worldly pleasures or other trifling sacrifice be applied to relief of others less fortunate than ourselves. To make sacrifices during the Lenten period does not mean that it may be followed by an orgy of spending after Easter. Rather does it teach us to curb our desires, appetites and inclinations toward extravagance in many ways.

Meditation and prayer are necessary to clear thinking and clean living, and prayer, coupled with work, will bring about results not obtainable through the mere folding of hands.

Mr. U. G. Palmer Recalls That On February 25, 1898, he Was Storm Bound At Bittinger With The Mercury Showing 35 Degrees Below Zero and Also Reflects On The Changes That Have Come Over Many Of His Friends Of Those Days Of Long Ago.

Verona, Pa., February 25, 1938.
To the Editor of The Republican.

Is there nothing permanent in this world but change?

Forty years ago today I was stormbound at Bittinger. I had gone earlier in the week to Swanton by train, borrowed a horse from Mr. Sweet and rode out to visit the one-room schools in District No. 12.

I found them closed on account of the low temperatures.

I stopped with C. E. Ellithorp at Bittinger, waiting for normal weather (a mighty good place to be stranded, as both his wife and his daughter were hard to beat as cooks).

At eight o'clock on the morning of Friday, February 25, 1898, Mr. Ellithorp said: "I wish you would go out on the porch and look at the thermometer." I did. It registered 35 degrees below zero.

I had an office day on Saturday in Oakland which I was obliged to attend. I waited until 1 p. m. for it to warm up. Then I mounted my horse—temperture 21 degrees below zero—and rode back to Swanton. It was largely through woods then. I had no trouble to keep warm other than my knees. I had to get off occasionally and walk to keep them from getting stiff.

I found at Swanton that the accommodation train was running and was able to reach Oakland at 7 p. m. There were two or three big New York-St. Louis trains on the sidings with their engines frozen up and the passengers were eating Oakland "out of house and home." The next day the weather moderated and soon everything was moving forward as usual.

As I write this with the mercury registering 35 above, I stop to reflect upon the changes that have come over my friends of those days of lang ago. Gone are J. M. Davis, G. W. Legge, Dr. Bartlett, 'Squire Gonder, Dr. J. W. Laughlin, D. E. Offutt, Dr. J. Lee McComas, E. H. Sincell, D. M. Dixon, G. S. Hamill, S. T. Jones, Capt. Jarnoe, Col. Sturgiss, J. W. Hart, A. W. DeWitt, E. A. Browning, Senator Browning, Mr. Fitzwater, of North Glade; C. E. Hilleary, W. H. Jacobs, P. P. Lohr, Eli McMillan, Ross Compton, Ira E. Friend and many, many others.

It is encouraging to know that such men as F. A. Thayer and C. J. Otto still carry on, and that those of a somewhat younger generation as Dr. Henry McComas, W. A. Smith, C. A. Ashby, E. E. Friend, H. M. Speicher, Dr. Ravenscroft, G. A. Fraley, Arthur Townshend, A. D. Naylor, B. H. Sincell, J. E. Harned, Dr. Hinebaugh, H. C. Sincell, D. Edward Offutt, C. F. White, A. T. Matthews and their associates are still going strong.

U. G. PALMER.

The Sun Taken To Task For Its Unfairness To Governor Nice

In the Forum column of The Baltimore Sun of last Friday morning a letter to the editor, written by a Baltimore City resident, and signed "Democrat," takes the Sun and its treatment, editorially, of Governor Nice to task and says "the Democratic party in general and the Democratic legislators in particular should bury their heads in shame for the way in which they have sought to handicap the present Governor."

The letter to the editor follows:

I feel sure that every fair-minded reader you have will feel a positive disgust with you at your editorial answer to the telegram of Governor Nice in which he asks you for a constructive suggestion as to a State financial program.

I am a Democrat, but I feel that the Democratic party in general and the Democratic legislators in particular should bury their heads in shame for the way in which they have sought to handicap the present Governor's term in office, and your paper has consistently aided and abetted them in their uncivilized and unpatriotic conduct, just as one would expect from a blindly partisan paper.

In your editorial you say that you would look for a stronger reed to lean against (if you were going to lean on any politician) than you can find in Governor Nice. All I have to say to this is that you leaned hard against Governor Ritchie and he leaned hard on you, and it is just too bad that he cannot be allowed to come back and settle some of the problems his administration left at the doorstep of this and many other succeedings generations.

In common parlance it is often customary to tell individual men that they should either put up or shut up, and that doctrine is good for papers as well, be they Democratic or just plain political. DEMOCRAT.
Baltimore, Feb. 22.

A Correspondent Considers Governor Nice's Proposal To The Baltimore Sun Was Very Much In Order.

To the Editor of The Republican.

I read Governor Nice's proposal to the Baltimore Sun of February 21st with a great deal of interest. It seems to me that this proposal was very much in order and showed that Governor Nice was inspired by a sincere desire to solve the problem of State finance, which affects all of us.

The Sun rejected this proposal in an angry, unreasonable editorial.

The Governor's telegram in reply, which I consider so fair and high-minded, that I am incorporating it in this letter, was printed in the "Letter to the Editor" column of the Sun. No attempt to reply was made.

"Many of the world's most important reforms have been brought about through constructive suggestion by newspapers. Criticism can only be justified when the critic is willing and able to offer a remedy for the faults to which he objects. The problem of State finance is not Republican or Democratic. It is Maryland's problem. Your refusal, therefore, to render assistance in this or any other State problem is a refusal to the people of Maryland and not to me.

"I have no comment to make on the language in which your rejection of my proposal was couched except to say that I prefer to forget the temper displayed therein and to remember only the really fine part you have played in the history of our State.

"It is not my desire and it is certainly not your intention to prolong this discussion. I do feel that I am justified in asking you to continue your courtesy through the publication of this telegram in tomorrow's issue."

I am impressed with the logic in this telegram. It is true that the newspapers of this country have done much to improve conditions. It seems to me that the Governor gave the Sun a wonderful opportunity to help the people of Maryland.

The angry language used in their editorial does not explain their failure to meet the opportunity and to live up to their responsibilities. It has increased the respect and affection that the people of Maryland have for Governor Nice.

Yours very truly,
A VOTER.

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

A Garrett county delegation appeared before members of the Legislature at Annapolis and made a strong argument for State aid to operate the schools of the county.

Since January 1 Clerk E. Z. Tower had issued marriage licenses to twenty-five couples.

The County Commissioners announced that supervisors of roads in the county would receive fifteen cents per hour for labor while engaged in repairing and building of highways under their care.

J. Forward, of Washington county, was in Oakland interesting farmers and business men in the proposition of establishing a creamery here.

Edward M. Spedden and a force of nemers were engaged in erecting a store building at North Glade for Julius Littman.

Court boarders were being offered rates of fifty cents per day by Mrs. G. W. Mansill, near the school house, and Mrs. John Schlossnagle, west end of town.

E. H. and W. H. Smouse, Mountain Lake Park, went to New York City to dispose of about $1,500 worth of furs which they had bought during the winter from trappers.

At a flower show in Chicago, Henry Weber carried off eight prizes. His new rose, "The Garrett," fell into favor and an order was booked for nine hundred of the plants.

Two well known residents of the county were making preparations to go to other towns. Jonas E. Gnagey, proprietor of the Farmers' Hotel, Grantsville, was going to Salisbury, Md., and James Dorsey, of the New Germany community, where he was engaged in farming, was going to Glencoe, Minnesota.

During a cold snap about six hundred tons of ice was housed at Mountain Lake Park by Superintendent L. A. Rudisill and a number of men engaged by him.

A large gray eagle, alighting in a tree near Cumberland, lost it footing on the ice-coated limbs and became caught between two limbs. It was killed by hunters and measured six feet seven inches from tin to tip.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A delegation of residents from the Bloomington community was in Oakland and asked the County Commissioners to establish a road to afford them an outlet into Allegany county on the east.

High water at Mountain Lake Park carried away 150 feet of the road bed of the railroad switch leading to the ice house and cut a channel out of the west end of the lake dam.

Many automobile owners had taken their cars from storage and were getting them into shape for early use.

Maple sugar producers of the county were urged to produce all the sugar they could, as there was a scarcity of sugar in the country.

Warm weather had left little snow of the more than eight or ten feet which had fallen during the pervious two or three months. Street Commissioner Wotring and a force of men had been busy making excavations and thawing out water mains along Liberty street which froze early in January.

A letter from Leo Lyon, who had reached France, to his mother, was printed, telling how the men of his outfit were "anxious to get to the front to fumigate the nest of huns with the dope that Uncle Sam had to dust them off with."

Gas at Mountain Lake Park had gone up to 54 cents per thousand cubic feet.

Millers of the county were experiencing difficulty in getting buckwheat to meet the demand for flour, although they were offering $1.75 per bushel.

Arthur Hinebaugh, Parsons, W. Va., was visiting friends in Oakland on Saturday evening.

PHOTOGRAPH OF DOCTOR M'COMAS BRINGS LETTERS

Physician Is Flooded With Messages of Congratulation

The photograph of Dr. Henry W. McComas, among the flowers presented February 18 at a K. of P. anniversary celebration, which appeared last week in the Baltimore Sun and in The Republican, has caused a flood of letters to the physician's desk, offering congratulations for his years of service to Pythianism, and also his years of service to the people of Garrett county as a medical practitioner.

Among the letters received was an outstanding one from Judge Haymond Maxwell, of the Supreme Court of Appeals, of Charleston, W. Va.

After offering congratulations, he said in his letter:

"Possibly you have forgotten us, but I hope not. Certainly it is that we have not forgotten you. In the latter part of July, 1911, our youngest child, then about nine months of age, was dangerously ill of dysentery. The heat at Clarksburg was terrific. I called you by telephone and you kindly agreed to meet us at Mt. Lake Park immediately after the arrival of the early morning train from Clarksburg. You suggested in conversation that we go to the Loch Lynn Hotel. We did so and you came promptly in pursuance of the appointment. The baby was almost dead. Happily, however, through your skillful and patient attention, supplemented by the mountain air, the emaciated child soon began to recover.

"After about a week at the hotel we took a cottage in the Park where your visitations continued. In due time the little fellow recovered completely. Needless to say that since that experience we have entertained the kindliest feeling toward you. If it had not been for your skillful attention, the child would most assuredly have died.

"The boy grew to sturdy manhood, and was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis in the class of 1936. Since midsummer of that year he has been an ensign on the battleship Tennessee, home port, San Pedro, California. With his six feet two inches of stature, splendid bearing and correct habits, he is a son of whom one can well be proud.

"Our family all hope that you may be spared for many more years of happiness and usefulness.

Cordially and respectfully yours,
HAYMOND MAXWELL."

Charles C. Reckard, of the Reckard and Glotfelty garage, has purchased the Fred. A. Thayer property on Third street, opposite the Maryland theatre, and will move his family into their new home shortly.

Members of St. Mark's Lutheran choir had a surprise party for Mrs. T. C. Hinebaugh, at the apartment of her daughter, Mrs. Elinor Hoye, Second street, on Monday evening, in celebration of her birthday anniversary.

Matthew Canty, following forty-five years' of service on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was retired on Tuesday, March 1. Mr. Canty began work as a fireman and in 1900 moved up to the position of engineer, which he held for 38 years.

Irvin R. Rudy, manager of the local Coffman-Fisher company's store, was in Baltimore several days this week in company with other members of his organization, who met there to do their spring and summer buying for the several stores of that company. Mr. Rudy returned to Oakland yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hinebaugh and Mrs. Emroy Bolden returned to Oakland last Thursday evening after spending several days in Washington, D. C. Guy William Hinebaugh, who visited his parents here for a week, accompanied them to Washington where he is a student in Strayer's Business college.

Fish Timbales

Two cups raw cod, haddock or halibut, 1 cup bread crumbs, ½ cup of cream, 2 eggs, seasoning of sale, pepper, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Chop, mince or grind the fish till quite fine; add the crumbs, cream and seasoning. Beat the whites and yolks of the eggs separately, the yolks until thick and the whites to a froth. Add the yolks first and mix them well in; then just before cooking, fold in the whites, mixing only enough to blend them with the other ingredients. Turn into well-greased moulds—plain ones are best, as the contents are likely to turn out better—and steam half an hour, either in a saucepan over the fire or in a covered pan containing boilding water, in the oven. In either case let the water come halfway up the sides of the moulds and keep the pan closely covered. Serve on individual dishes with a sauce poured over them.

Stuffed Fillets of Fish

Two level tablespoons butter, 2 level tablespoons flour, ¾ cup milk or fish stock, ½ cup chopped shrimps, lobster or mushrooms, lemon juice, salt and pepper, 8 fillets of fish.

Melt the butter and blend the flour with it; pour in the milk slowly, stir until boiling, season and add the mushrooms or shrimp. Trim the fillets of fish neatly, spread with mixture, fold and fasten with a small skewer. Bake in a moderate oven, covering the pan with greased paper, and adding one-half cup of water to prevent burning. Serve with horseradish sauce.

Shrimp Patties

One cup picked shrimps, either canned or fresh, 1 cup cream sauce, 1 egg yolk, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste, slight grating of nutmeg.

Make the sauce by blending together in a saucepan two level tablespoons butter with the same quantity of flour; then stir in half a cup thin cream and the same of milk. Stir until boiling, cook five minutes, put in the seasonings and the shrimps which may be divided if very large. Heat thoroughly and just before serving, add the yolk of the egg. Fill little puff cases and serve.

Cashing In On His Job

Washington, Feb. 26.

For a long time the manner in which members of the Roosevelt family were using the White House to make money for themselves got little adverse comment in the newspapers and almost none from opposing politicians. There was, of course, a great deal of private talk—even among the President's friends, many of whom deplored it and almost none defended. By those not friendly it was regarded as a shocking commercializing of the Presidency, without precedent in our history.

* * *

But until recently there was strangely little public comment. There were reasons for this. One was the custom among his opponents, while condemning Mr. Roosevelt's policies, to laud him personally—to picture him as high-minded though mistaken. It was a custom carried to extremes. Partly, this was to avoid the appearance of personal attack and partly because of the President's early popularity which made it possible for him to do almost anything without public resentment. A second reason was natural reluctance to be publicly critical of the members of the President's family—particularly the feminine ones. A third was because there were so many great national issues projected by the New Deal that the family capitalization of the Presidency, while indicative of bad taste and a low ethical standard, was certainly trivial by comparison.

* * *

Within the last few weeks, however, there has come an end to this curious immunity. In a number of newspapers satirical editorials and dispatches about the way in which the family is "cleaning up" have appeared. Various columnists have dealt with the subject and in Congress the comment has been bitterly denunciatory. While all this has been smouldering for some time the outburst was precipitated by the announcement that the President himself had written a series of thirty articles which had been sold to a newspaper syndicate, three for a weekly magazine, and was about to publish the first volume of his public papers and addresses. The compensation for the newspaper and magazine articles alone is estimated at $100,000.

* * *

The price paid is clearly based on the fact that the author is President of the United States. Of this transaction one paper—the Hearld Tribune—which, though Republican, has consistently avoided anything like personal criticism, said, "The country is properly generous to its Presidents. It begrudges them neither salary, expense accounts nor ample vacations. But to cash in on a huge scale on the job itself by selling to the highest bidder his own accounting of his stewardship is so unprecedented and steep a descent for a President as to give the whole nation a pause."

Other papers have been equally trenchant in their comment. One writer recalls the President's recent criticism of the motor industry for "high pressure salesmanship" in connection with the sort of salesmanship used to place his newspaper articles. The first syndicate, to which they were offered for $100,000, declined them.

* * *

Some commentators have presented a summarization of the financial activities of the Roosevelt family which is certainly amazing. They point out Mrs. James Delano Roosevelt, the President's mother, recently indorsed a baking powder in a series of newspaper advertisements containing her picture and a facsimile of her signature. What was paid for this, of course, there is no way of knowing. Then, a number of writers have dealt more or less candidly with the fact that James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President and one of his $10,000 secretaries, is head of the insurance firm of Roosevelt & Sargent, which numbers among its clients many of the greatest corporations and most conspicuous economic royalists in the country, some of whom have close contact with the Government, such as the National Distillers Association, the Transcontinental and Western Airways, the Columbia Broadcasting Company, Armour and Company, New England Power Company and many others.

* * *

It is not charged that young Mr. Roosevelt deliberately peddles his father's influence. He does not have to. What is charged is that the mere fact that he is his father's son and also his secretary makes it possible for Roosevelt and Sargent to sell insurance which would be completely impossible if Mr. Roosevelt's name were Smith, Brown or Jones. Again there is no way of knowing how much money young Mr. Roosevelt makes out of the insurance business and the efforts, last year, in the House Committee, to get a look at his income tax returns were frustrated by Administration Congressmen, but a friend rather close to both him and his father, puts the figure at $150,000 annually. In caustically commenting on this situation Mr. Westbrook Pegler recalled that the President had said that "the best citizenship calls for ethics as well as honesty," and suggested that a discussion of the ethics of son James continuing as a silent member of this insurance firm would be interesting.

* * *

As for Mrs. Roosevelt, her remunerative activities are so many that it is hard to keep track of them. She has spoken regularly over sponsored radio programs but that income has gone to charity and, under a special ruling from the Department of Justice, she was relieved of the inhibition of giving more than fifteen percent of her income to charity without paying an income tax on the balance. She has a daily column in many newspapers, has written many magazine articles for large sums, has published four books since she entered the White House, one of which was serialized in a magazine, and has delivered scores of lectures. What Mrs. Roosevelt's total earnings in the five years have been it is impossible to know, but they must be close to a quarter of a million dollars.

* * *

Then, too, it is pointed out, the President's son-in-law and daughter are both on Mr. Hearst's pay roll in Seattle, and his second son, Elliott, is in charge of the Hearst radio stations. Altogether, it is an extraordinary story, and it is high time it all came out in the open. Just as a contrast, one correspondent recalls that three years ago when the Vice-President was offered a contract for $1,000 a week for a fifteen-minute broadcast he replied, "Jack Garner isn't worth $1,000 for fifteen minutes, and the Vice-President is not for sale."

Among politicians the sale by the President of his articles while still in the White House is regarded as the most convincing evidence yet that he will not run for a third term. After the big way he and other Roosevelts have cashed in even he, they argue, hardly could make another campaign as the "pal of the proletariat" and enemy of the "greedy rich."

Lesson for March 6

SERVING WITH WHAT WE HAVE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Such as I have give I thee.—Acts 3:6.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Went Home to Nazareth.
JUNIOR TOPIC—On a Journey for Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Serving With What We Have.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Serving With What We Have.

One of the difficulties we mortals face in dealing with spiritual things is that we interpret things in the realm of the spirit according to the principles and measurements of the physical world. We are quick to say "We cannot" on the basis of logical human reasoning, when an appreciation of the power of God operative on our behalf would enable us to say "We can," and having left God out of our thinking we find that indeed we cannot.

The lesson before us presents two pictures from our Lord's second visit to his home country, Nazareth. On His first visit they had tried to thrust Him over the precipice, and He in all the glory and poise of the Son of God had walked through their midst and gone His way. Now He comes again with His disciples. We then see how His home folk virtually made the power of the omnipotent God impotent because of their unbelief. On the other hand we see the weakness of men made mighty because of obedience to the command of God.

I. The Paralysis of Unbelief (vv. 1-6).

The world, the flesh, and the devil have brought forth a dark list of wicked things, but perhaps the most destructive and distressing of all is the foundation sin of unbelief. When we think back to the underlying reason for any sin or weakness in man it will be found that there is a failure to believe God. Men do not believe what He says about sin and its penalty, nor do they believe Him when He offers them grace and strength for victory.

At Nazareth the unbelief which limited the Son of God revealed itself in two questions—

1. "Whence hath this man these things?" (v. 2).

They could not deny His mighty works so they turn their attack on His person. "Is not this the carpenter?" (v. 3). Essentially this was envy, "the difficulty of acknowledging the superiority over themselves of one of their own number" . . . (Morgan).

We are ashamed of the attitude of the men of Nazareth, but we follow in their footsteps. Heavy among the burdens a Christian worker must bear is the unbelief and ridicule of his own people. Because a man has sold us groceries, or painted our house or driven a taxi in our town we cannot see how he could ever be a preacher or a missionary. Well, he can, and it is such folk that God often calls.

2. "What is this wisdom?" (v. 2).

The wisdom of Jesus was the wisdom of God (John 7:16). But how could they know that? How can we know? In John 7:17 Jesus gave the answer: "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself." We see then that the reason for their unbelief was really an unwillingness to do the will of God. The controlling motive of their life was wrong. Had they been moved by a desire to do God's will, and a purpose to live in accordance therewith (even though there might have been failure in that earnest effort), they would have known that Jesus had His wisdom from God.

II. The Power of Divine Commission (vv. 7-13).

Just as unbelief hinders even the Son of God, so faith in God and obedience to His command makes of weak and poorly equipped men the mighty servants of God. In fact, their very dependence on Him for all things sets them free to devote themselves fully to the ministry of preaching and healing.

Note that they went "two by two." We have forgotten that divine plan, and often send men into remote and dangerous pioneer work —alone. Man needs fellowship; he needs counsel and control.

Consider also how they were to learn to trust God for their daily sustenance (vv. 8,9). They suffered no lack (see Luke 22:35). These rules for the life of religious workers were modified later (Luke 22: 36), but the principle remains the same—the man or woman who is not ready to depend on God for everything had better not set out to follow Him. It is a blessed and delightful life!

Resisting Interference

It is sometimes pretty hard to do something you feel is right against the interference of all the world and her little brother. Sometimes it's a good thing to say "right or wrong, that's my story, and I'm going to stick to it," no matter how many well-meaning friends may advise otherwise.—Oulse Vapel.

Mother's Work

"The future destiny of the child is always the work of the mother." —Napoleon.

MT. LAKE PARK

In Baltimore on February 11-19, the North American Wild Life conference was held. One of the largest exhibits was that of the beaver and his works. This was from our sister State of West Virginia. Mr. Beaver does not like to be penned up, so there was some difficulty with a 40-pounder, two smaller ones who almost wrecked the whole exhibit, but the display was a success and showed how the beaver works for us and how his dam-building does aid in soil and water conservation. Among other exhibits shown from West Virginia were a pair of deer, a 90-pound black bear cub, raccoons, red and gray foxes, wildcats and groundhog, all shown in their native habitat. Even the skunk was there hut he was "deodorized." The beaver was at the top of the list in interest and usefulness. We still maintain that Garrett county could use a few of them.

Saturday night we listened to the Mickey Concert Band in its broadcast from the Fairmont studios. It was a splendid effort and we should feel proud of the boys and of their sponsors. It is a great organization that has worked out against many obstacles, but the members have gone ahead backed hy their parents nnd by a few civic-minded citizens here and in Oakland. Professor Mickey has done his part and Robert Ford has given much time to the management end. Let's hope the organization will continue to function.

Many people around the Park are now drinking sassafras tea. We had some ourself. Hardly a day passes that someone is not at your door selling small bunches of the root. We were reminded of an old remedy which came out in an almanac of 1856. We do not know a lot about the disease for which it was given, but here it is: "For mortification—Make a decoction of sassafras, thicken it with finely powdered charcoal and apply as a poultice."

Watch for a long letter next week from A. E. Rambeau, an old-timer, on "Do your Remember."

John Michaels, who lives on the Mt. Lake-Oakland road recalls when he was the official lamplighter for the Park. Oil lamps were then used.

Organizations To Meet

Next Tuesday night nt 7:30 the Parent-Teachers Association will hold a meeting in the Mt. Lake school building. They will have as their guests the Loch Lynn P.-T. A. Prof. F. E. Rathbun will make the principal address. Also on the program will be a group of the primary grade children who will discuss the Geography of Maryland. Mr. Callis, principal of the school, will instruct a fourth grade History class on the settlement of Maryland. The P.-T. A. is doing a very splendid work in both Mt. Lake and Loch Lynn. Mr. Rathbun has given them full support and much help. The citizens of both communities should make themselves familiar with this fine organization and add their cooperation.

The Neighborhood Club will meet Wednesday, March 9, with Mrs. W. Blake Love as hostess, at her home.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church, will meet with Mrs. Walter Brock today (Thursday).

The Teachers' Council of the U. B. church will meet on Friday at the Aid hall. Rev. E. A. Crites, pastor of the church, will give a talk.

Forty Years Ago—Or More

Ladies wore bustles, operations were rare, nobody swatted the fly, nobody had seen a silo, nobody had appendicitis, nobody wore white shoes, nobody sprayed orchards, cream was five cents a pint, most young men had "livery bills", cantaloupes were muskmelons, you never heard of a "Tin Lizzie", doctors wanted to see your tongue, milk shake was a favorite drink, advertisers did not tell the truth, nobody cared for the price of gasoline, farmers came to town for their mail, the hired girl drew one-fifty a week, the butcher "threw in" a chunk of liver, folk said pneumatic tires were a joke, nobody "listened in" on a telephone, there were no sane fourths or electric meters, straw stacks were burned instead of baled, publishing a county newspaper was not a business, people thought English sparrows were "birds", Jules Verne was the only convert to the submarine, you stuck tubes in your ears to hear a phonograph and it cost a dime.

MAPLE SYRUP PRICES HIGHEST IN YEARS

The Cary Maple Sugar Company, Inc., of St. Johnsbury, Vermont, large buyers in this locality, announced today that they would guarantee to pay as a minimum the following prices on standard weight syrup to all producers who fill their drums:

Fancy, 13c. lb.; No. 1, 12c. lb.; No. 2, 10c. lb.; No. 3, 9c. lb.

The above prices are the highest paid for bulk maple syrup since the 1931 season, and in view of the declining commodity prices, this announcement will come as welcome news to sugar makers, and there is no doubt that many producers who have not tapped their sugar trees in recent years will get busy at once and prepare for sugar.

According to E. R. Boylan, vice-president of the Cary Maple Sugar Company, Inc., some of the early groves in Ohio and southwestern New York have reported early runs nnd the syrup produced to date has been of exceptional quality.—Advertisement 1-2*

Numerous Used Truck Bargains

Excellent values in used transportation, according to Hinebaugh's Garage, local International Truck dealer, Oakland, are available now at prices that are real bargains.

Today there are thousands of trucks on the highways, that due to age, obsolescence, unattractive appearance and mechanical defects, are hurting the owners' businesses and eating up their profits. In nddition, many of these vehicles are hazards to highway safety.

Many owners of unfit vehicles of this type have found it to their definite advantage to discard them or trade them in on good used trucks that are not only in better condition mechanically but more attractive looking and safer to operate.

There has never been a time when so many real bargains in used trucks of all types were available. This is due to the heavy demand that has continued steadily through the winter, for new trucks by big operators. Many business houses have definite periods at which they trade in their older trucks on new ones, rather than go to the expense of reconditioning. These vehicles, carefully reconditioned by the truck distributor or dealer, are still capable of many thousands of miles of economical transportation.

During the two-week period, March 5 to 19, inclusive, International dealers all over the United States will have special displays of high-grade, reconditioned, used trucks in their showrooms. Owners of obsolete trucks who are interested in better transportation values are especially invited to inspect these displays.—Advertisement impossible for dealers to handle a normal volume of new-car business," he explained. "This means that factories will be forced to continue on part-time, and thousands of men in the motor car plants and in allied industries must remain either out of work or on part-time schedules."

The primary purpose of the campaign, he said, is to make known to prospective owners the remarkable used car values which now are being offered by automobile dealers in all parts of the United States.

"The present situation has resulted in the best used car values in the country's history. We are confident that used car stocks will be reduced sharply as soon as the public becomes aware of that fact," he added.

During the last few years vast improvements have been made in motor cars and this improved transportation is available on easy terms to those who take advantage of the bargains to be offered during "National Used Car Exchange Week," Mr. Macauley stated.

"Too many unsafe, wornout, unreliable cars, without the modern safety brakes, safety glass, large tires and steel bodies, are in operation today," he continued. "Too many are costly to operate. Eleven million cars seven years old and older are licensed for operation throughout the country.

"Many of these cars can be replaced during National Used Car Exchange Week—to the great advantage of the buyer and of the public—with newer, up-to-date cars, without initial investment beyond their present car and on terms to suit the average pocketbook. These new cars offer modern equipment and are a good investment in comfort, safety and economy."

FRALEY TO HOLD OFFICE OF MAYOR ANOTHER TERM

Was Nominated At Citizens' Meeting And Is Without Opposition; Election to be on Monday

8 NAMED FOR COUNCIL

Lawrence M. Fraley will be Oakland's mayor for another two-year term, as he was nominated at the citizens' meeting last evening and is without any opposition. His name, however, will be on the ballot to be voted at Monday's election, along with those who were nominated for Council members and the town treasurer.

The six highest men were Henry W. McComas, Jr., Dr. R. L. Kercheval, each 66; Earl Shartzer, 59. All three are retiring councilmen and are out for reelection; Alva Gortner, 37; Dr. B. F. Selby, 34; Raymond D. Houck, 31; William Whorton and Arthur Cogley, with 24 each will be eliminated unless one of the six high men decides not to run.

Miss Sara Stanton, with 41 votes, and Richard Davis, with 46, were the two high ones as candidates for treasurer, and their names will be on the ballot. Miss Grace Jones also received 9 votes.

About seventy-five persons attended the meeting. Howard P. Stuck was chairman and Julius C. Renninger, was secretary of the meeting.

The badges likewise have been placed in charge of Mr. Dahlgren for distribution to those entitled to receive them.

Persons On WPA Are Available For Farm Employment

Persons now employed on WPA can be made available for farm employment, according to information obtained from the office of the WPA. This policy is effective immediately, it was stated.

Any persons wishing to hire a worker employed on a WPA project, is asked to contact the foreman and go to the project and select the persons he wishes to hire.

According to information obtained the WPA will terminate the employment of any worker who is offered a job and who refuses it, unless there are extenuating circumstances. The WPA, however, will not release a worker unless he is offered the prevailing wage for the type of work he is expected to perform.

The prevailing wage for farm work will be determined by a survey of a number of farmers throughout the county, it was stated.

Oakland High Takes County Basketball Championship

Oakland high school boys' and girls' basketball teams won the county championship last night on the local court, taking both ends of a double header from Grantsville. The girls won 41 to 18, while the boys were winners by the score of 53 to 9.

For the boys Frazee and Crites were high point getters with 20 and 19 points, respectively. A number of substitutes got into the game.

Next Monday at Grantsville, Oakland's girls will open play in the Western Maryland tourney by meeting Allegany high at 2:30 p. m. In the second game Oakland's boys will face Fort Hill, of Cumberland.

Oakland and Grantsville were the only schools to support teams in the county this year, and Grantsville made a late start as its court was not ready until the first of the year.

The Oakland boys defeated Frostburg Junior varsity Monday night, 25 to 20.

CITIZENS COMPLAIN ABOUT THE OLD "BOSLEY HOUSE"

Rundown Building On Oak St. Is Subject of Petition To Council

A petition, bearing the names of fifty citizens of Oak street and the vicinity centering thereabout, lodged a vigorous protest on Monday night with the Mayor and Town Council at the meeting of that body, against the conditions surrounding the old "Bosley Hotel" property on Oak street. The petition called attention to the "deplorable conditions existing."

Petitioners set forth a number of objections, including the following:

1. Building in bad need of repair, both inside and outside.
2. Building was unsafe.

Building constituted a fire hazard, endangering not only occupants but nearby properties.

4. Living conditions are unsanitary.
5. Conditions of the structure detracts from beauty of the town, lowers values of adjoining properties and may cause an increase in the insurance rates of that section.

The petition requested the council to take the necessary steps to correct this condition. Council instructed Julius Renninger, city attorney, to contact the State fire marshal and confer about the matter, and also asked the owner of the property to appear at a special meeting of council on March 16. In discussing the matter it was estimated that there were sixteen adults and thirty-two children living in the building at present.

Other Business

Members of council decided to hold a special meeting later to discuss the new golf course and its management. James Spencer, of Kingwood, W. Va., was at Monday's meeting and gave it as his opinion that it would be possible to open the course to the public on May 30, if work was started immediately on the final touches.

Council also approved the town's financial statement, which appears in The Republican today.

Joseph H. Herman was granted a permit to build a dwelling on the Westlake property located on Eighth street.

Bills amounting to approximately $1,100 were ordered paid.

Rev. David C. Trimble Speaks At Cumberland About Rural Church Problems

Rev. David C. Trimble, of Oakland, spoke Tuesday at a meeting of the Emmanuel Episcopal church auxiliary in Cumberland on the mission study, "Church Problems in Rural America."

Rev. Trimble told much about the work in this county where he has labored for eight years among the people of four churches—Oakland, Deer Park, Swanton and Wilson-Altamont.

"The country church is of essential importance to the city," he said. "Take it away and soon there will be no church in the city as the pastors and workers come in many instances from rural districts."

Commenting on parish duties, he stated that preaching was the smallest part of the work involved: community interests, agriculture, crops, forest conservation, stock, home interests and even first aid come under the head of parish duties in a rural community.

Orphans' Court Proceedings

At the regular session of the Orphans' Court held on Tuesday, the following business was transacted:

Letters of administration were granted Troy Glass, Addison, Pa., on the estate of Elizabeth Green, late of Selbysport. Mr. Glass appointed Ernest G. Griffith, Selbysport, as his local agent.

Donald A. Friend, Friendsville, was appointed administrator of the estate of his deceased mother, Eliza E. Friend.

Administration accounts passed:

Estate of Franklin A. Brobst; first and final account; Hattie M. Brobst, administratrix.

Estate of John Krause; first and final account; William Winterberg, administrator.

The next meeting of the Court will be held on Tuesday, March 22nd.

February Theatre Tax $77.00

The Sunday moving picture tax receipts were $77.00 for the month of February, according to J. F. Browning, clerk to the mayor and town council. This amount is distributed to the Oakland Fire Department, Oakland Public Library and the Maryland Children's Aid Society.

SOIL PROGRAM ITEMS ARE UNCHANGED FOR YEAR 1938

Basis of Maximum Payment The Same, But Some Rates Are Different

Items on which the maximum payment to farmers participating in the 1938 agricultural conservation program will be based have not been changed since original announcement of the program, according to John H. Carter, county agent, but some of the rates are different. Changes were made, he states, in accordance with the new Farm Act's specific directions for allocating funds among the crops.

Among the most significant changes from the standpoint of number of farmers affected he points out, is the provision for increasing payments to producers on small farms. For payments of $20 or less the increase will be 40 per cent. The rate of increase will be reduced as payments are increased, but there will be some increases for all payments under $200. The effect of the increase in small payments will be equivalent to an increase between 8 and 10 per cent in the basic rates. The formula in the new act under which these increases are made is as follows: Payments totalling $20 or less will be increased 40 per cent; $21 to $40 payments will be increased $8 plus 20 per cent of th eexcess over $20; $41 to $60 peyments will be increased $12 plus 10 per cent of the excess over $40; $61 to $186 payments will be increased $14; $186 to $200 payments will be increased to $200.

A maximum payment that can be earned will be determined for each farm participating in the conservation program, and every effort will be made to acquaint each farmer with the items upon which the maximum payment is based, Mr. Carter said.

To Observe Anniversary Of Formation Of CCC

The fifth anniversary of the formation of the Civilian Conservation Corps will be observed by camps in this area during the week of March 31 to April 5th.

First Lieutenant David A. Rosenfeld, commanding Camp S-51, at Deer Park, announced an "open house" at his camp during the week with Sunday, April 3, being a special day for parents of the enrollees in the camp, and any others who are interested.

Lieutenant Rosenfeld has issued an invitation to the people of Oakland and Garrett county to visit the camp during the week of March 31 to April 5 to inspect the work that has been carried on there.

A surprise birthday party was held for Charlotte Stanton last Saturday afternoon, March 5, at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Stanton, Second street. Guests were Barbara Pollock Jean Pollock, Patsy Sheckells, Cynthia Sheckells, Sarah Ellen McComas, Betsy Towler. It was the young lady's sixth birthday anniversary.

The Russell Construction Company, of Frederick, which was recently given the contract for the construction of the Mountain Lake Park-Deer Park highway, will begin moving machinery to the site of the road on Monday and work will start as soon as weather conditions permit.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of St. Mark's Lutheran church held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday. Mrs. E. S. Smith led the discussion of the topic, "The Moslem of Yesterday," and Miss Alverta Dillon gave the review of chapters three and four of the study book, "Our Highland Heritage." The meeting was preceded by a covered dish supper.

INSTALLATION CEREMONY WILL TAKE PLACE SUNDAY

Dr. A. B. Leamer To Be Officially Inducted As Lutheran Pastor

Rev. A. B. Leamer, D.D., will be officially installed as pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, at a special service on Sunday evening, March 13, at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremony of installation will be in charge of Rev. A. K. Jones, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church at Red House, assisted by Rev. George M. Kunkle, of Accident.

Dr. Leamer recently accepted a call to become pastor of the local church after being chosen unanimously at a congregational meeting of the membership.

Dr. Leamer is a graduate of Wittenberg college, Springfield, O., and of Western Theological Seminary, Atchison, Kansas, receiving his doctor's degree from the latter institution. He began his ministry at West Point, Nebraska, going from there to Iowa City, Iowa, and Des Moines, Iowa, serving the latter charge eighteen years and being president of the Iowa Synod for five years. He then went to Charleston, West Va., where he remained five years and then to Huntington, W. Va., where he served four years. Since being a member of the West Virginia Synod he has served as its president for three years.

DRIVE FOR EXCHANGE OF USED AUTOS CONTINUES

Ends Saturday Night—Dealers Still Have Many Good Bargains

Even though there have been many used cars sold and exchanged during the past few days, the local drive continues along with the national drive to sweep the American automobile industry out of the current recession, and the campaign will not close until on Saturday.

There are still lots of used cars of late models at the various garages which are participating in the campaign. These late models have roomier bodies, larger tires, better brakes, more economical motors, better and more complpete accessories, and a great number of them are being advertised in The Republican today.

Your old car in all probability would make a substantial down payment during the remainder of this week, should you drive it into any one of the dealers places of business and trade it in, these automobile dealers state.

University Discontinues Distribution of Cultures for Soil Inoculation

As bacterial cultures for soil inoculation are now being prepared and distributed in a successful manner by a number of commercial concerns, the University of Maryland has discontinued this service.

A number of Garrett county farmers had been using this service, according to John H. Carter, county agent. Mr. Carter said the University would continue to take an interest and planned to make a study in the near future of proper methods of control. The University will also supply the names of retail concerns from which soil inoculum may be purchased.

Wed In Taxi

Miss Phyllis Lindsay and Jennings Reckart, of Cranesville, were on their way last Sunday night to Oakland to be married, but as it was such a stormy night their car got stuck in a snowdrift near the Sanitarium at Hopemont and they had to call a taxi from Terra Alta which brought them to the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Nestor on Sanders avenue, where they stayed over night.

They had procured their marriage license in Maryland and had to be married in that state, so they just crossed the Maryland line the other side of Corinth and were married in DeBerry's taxi by Rev. Paul Maness, of Corinth. Monday.—Terra Alta Republican.

COMMISSIONERS SUBMIT REPORT OF FEDERAL AID

Figures Show Nearly $450,000 Has Been Spent In County Under Their Sponsorship

COUNTY GIVES FOURTH

In cooperation with the Maryland State Planning Commission, the Garrett County Board of Commissioners made a survey of the work done in the county by Federal relief agencies.

Nearly $450,000 has been spent in Garrett county under the sponsorship of the Commissioners, of which about $100,000 was furnished by the sponsor, the balance by the Federal Government.

In their report the Commissioners stated that 80 per cent of the needy had been taken care of and that the other 20 per cent could have been cared for if the county was not so sparsely settled.

The Commissioners approved work relief as being superior to direct relief, because the community received improvements of a permanent nature and the workers themselves are kept in condition physically and mentally for private jobs.

Road building had advanced 15 or 20 years through this program and school conditions were improved and two school buildings constructed, it was pointed out. Two sewing room projects have made clothing that has been distributed to the needy.

The Commissioners said they felt that 85 per cent of the county's population had in some way directly benefited by the program and thought the work prfogram projects should continue under their sponsorship.

In th elist of projects were included 43 roads projects under the old CWA, when over $100,000 was expended. Twelve roads under WPA have cost $150,000, with the county furnishing about $30,000. These include the Hoyes Run, Crellin-West Virginia State line, Bloomington - Swanton, Hoyes-Friendsville, Gorman-Steyer-Kearney, Loch Lynn-Pleasant Valley, Avilton-Lonaconing, Fish Hatchery, Miller's Run, Table Rock-Kempton, Meadow Mountain and Fingerboard-Hutton roads.

Four roads are under PWA, and the first three only, have costs figured at $95,181. These roads are Loch Lynn-Gorman, Bittinegr-Swanton (2), and Bittinger-Grantsville roads.

Over $93,000 has been spent on schools, the greater part of the sum being paid out on the Grantsville school. Rural school buildings were painted at a cost of $8,000.

Kitzmiller Improvements

Improvements made at Kitzmiller through Federal aid, include 2,350 feet of stone streets and one concrete bridge with a 10-foot span, during CWA; 950 ft. of streets under WPA, federal cost, $3,272, and a fire reservoir of 15,360 gallons capacity with a federal cost of $2,281 and a sponsor cost of $511. There is now under construction a flood wall which has cost to date $1,034 in federal funds, $400 from the sponsor. Mine sealing projects in that section have aided unemployment.

Oakland Improvements

The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland reported that with some Federal aid there had been constructed 1,100 feet of sewer line, 2150 feet of streets for which all labor was furnished by federal aid, the town furnishing about 80 percent of material. The municipal tennis courts were graded and put into operation, with $1,279.35 in Federal aid and without any cost to the town.

A municipal golf course has been constructed at a cost of $10,681.88. The town has spent $3,100 on this project which will be completed this spring.

Other projects including street improvement, water main extensions and park improvements, are now being prepared.

Grantsville report is in a separate article.

On every Friday afternoon during Lent, beginning at two o'clock, the ladies of St. Matthew's church guild are holding a food sale in Gonder's Pharmacy. The ladies specialize in rolls, bread and cakes, although salads and other items are likewise available. Mrs. W. W. Grant and Mrs. Ed. Wolf are in charge of the sale this week.

R. S. Cropp, of Clarksburg, West Va., and son of Mrs. Bell Cropp, of Oakland, was operated upon Tuesday afternoon in Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, for a tumor on the spine. He became suddenly ill and was taken to Baltimore early Monday. His wife and two of his brothers, Hosmer and Leroy Cropp, are at his bedside. The operation was considered successful.

SURVEY SHOWS WORK OF FEDERALRELIEFAGENCIES

Grantsville Sends Complete Report of Improvements Made

In cooperation with the Maryland State Planning Commission, the Mayor and Town Council of Grantsville have had a survey made of the work done within the corporte limits of the town by the Federal relief ngencies and report the results of the survey as a matter of public interest.

This survey was made by former Counellmen Joseph F. Fahey and H. C. Edwards, assisted by the present town clerk, Clyde F. Bender. The report, sent to the Maryland State Planning Commission, follows:

Grantsville, Maryland, an incorporated town with a population of only 400, loented on the historic National Highway, now known as U. S. Route 40, with the cooperation of the various Federal relief agencies, has been a very fortunate beneficiary to a number of very important and worthwhile improvements, of which our citizens are proud. These improvements are of permanent value and were necessary for the immediate preservation of public health and safety. With this splendid cooperation of these Federal agencies it has been possible for us to advance our local improvements at least 25 years. Therefore, advancing from a rural to an up-to-date town with all modern improvements within this very short period of time, we begun under RFC our first project and the ones following are listed in order:

1. Beautifying and preparing for use community ground, consisting of approximately two acres, the work covering draining, building tennis court, building 1000 lineal feet of ten-foot driveway of stone, removing dead trees, etc.

2. Under RFC we were able to put into use the entire 4-acre public school play ground by means of draining and grading. Prior to this project it was only possible to use about one-half of this now very fine play ground.

3. We then improved the roadway leading to the local cemetery, which in wet weather was almost impassable. Improvement was made with napped stone and covered with cinders and is now in fine condition.

4. Under CWA we began the improving of our streets and alleyways by operating a projeet which covered a distance of 1445 lineal feet, 16-ft. drivway, covered with knapped stone and surfaced with cinders.

5. Under CWA we experieneed the beginning of a project which had been discussed by the older citizens of our town over a period of several years, and a project of the utmost importance: installing 1753 lineal feet of 24-inch sanitary and storm sewer, which was of course only a small part of our sewer requirements.

6. Under MERA we began to realize that another dream was about to come true, so we submitted an application for the project making preparations for the occasion. Under this project we eleared a right-of-way 4400 lineal feet by ten feet wide on Negro Mountain, west of town, for the purpose of laying a water supply line to an adequate supply of mountain spring water, which was necessary for the safe-guarding of our health and for fire protection.

7. Under WPA our dream came true. We installed an adequate and up-to-date water system with gravity flow, no filtration necessary, 140,000 gallon eapacity storage stand pipe, meeting the requirements of the underwriters, thereby reducing our fire insurance rates considerably. Our system has approximately three miles of pipe line.

8. Under MERA we relocated and excavated the overflow ditch from our water storage standpipe and installed 700 lineal feet of 4 inch terra eotta pipe and ereeted a watering trough at the cemetery in order that water would be available to the public for the purpose of watering plants and flowers.

9. Under MERA repairs to the interior of Grantsville school were made possible. An area of 15,134 square feet was painted; doors and windows repaired and painted.

10. Under CWA a blanket project covering the improving of 7000 square yards of roadway, improved by means of knapped stone and surfaced with cinder, ete.

11. Under WPA we built a new street, 540 feet long and 20 feet wide, covered with knnpped stone and surfaced with red top, making an excellent job. This street was built along the side of our community ground, greatly increasing the entrance and parking facilities, eliminating traffic congestion during public gatherings.

12. Under WPA we then began to complete our sewer system, which we had started under CWA. This system when completed will make it possible for every property owner within the corporate limits to have a sanitary sewer connection. This system will be completed within the next few weeks.

13. Under WPA, in connection with our sanitary sewer project, we have installed a sewage disposal system, meeting all requirements of the State Department of Health. This projeet is completed.

14. Under PWA we then put on the finishing touches to our town, building a very fine addition to our high and elementary school, which stands out as a monument to all. This community was very much in need of this addition. The old building that was torn down, making way for the new addition, was built in 1874 and second-hand or used material was used for this construction. At the time of its removal it had become a great hazard, and the parents became very much concerned about the safety of their children. We now have a total ot 14 class rooms, a fine auditorium, adequate toilet facilities, making it the outstanding building in Garrett county. This project was sponsored by the County Board of Edueation.

In going over the project you can readily see that we have had projects to take care of most all kinds of labor. You will note that they were of n type that were beneficial to the entire community. During this period Grantsville has not had much diffculty in coping with the unemployment situation. We will agree, however, that it has been quite burdensome to our taxpayers for the present, but we have every assurance that they will be well recompensed in the future.

We are listing below a recapitulation of projects and amounts expended upon each:

	Federal	Sponsor
Community ground	$1,940.00	$200.00
School ground.....	860.00	180.00
Cemetery road....	1,030.95	75.00
Streets and roads (tow projects)..	9,839.00	1,126.15
Sewer	6,049.00	1,810.58
Interior School painting	389.00	104.00
Clearing R/W	300.00	93.00
Excavating overflow ditch	110.00	102.00
Water system	9,636.48	29,006.50
Street improvement	1,300.00	200.00
Sewer 13,804.00		1,926.50
Sewage disposal...	2,111.00	671.10
School building....38,852.78		49,941.62
Total expenditures	$86,222.21	85,406.98

These public improvements having solved our sanitary and fire protection problems have also induced our citizens to take ndditional pride in making individual repairs and improvements to their properties, which in turn has been beneficial to the entire community.

J. C. MILLER,
Mayor of the Town of Grantsville.

THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1938

BITTINGER

A politician blows and blows,
And the March wind blows a lot,
But the only difference I can see,
The March wind isn't hot.

Following a very mild day on Saturday, the weather turned cold on Sunday and this week begins with freezing temperatures.

John D. Swauger, farmer residing near Jennings, died at his home last Wednesday evening after an illness extending over several months.

The cold weather on Sunday induced a number of sugar camp owners, who use metal tap buckets, to gather in the water on that day to prevent the bursting of the vessels.

William G. Swauger, near Grantsville, was a business visitor in the village last Thursday afternoon.

Jonas Beachy and R. L. Emory made a business trip to Cumberland on Tuesday of last week.

Madam Stork paid a Sunday night visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Knox.

Robins have made their appearance in this community and no doubt spring is not far around the corner.

Insured Motorists May Get Reward For Safe Driving

The majority of insured motorists in Oakland and Garrett county are expected to earn the safe driver reward of 15 per cent of a year's liability premium which will give each driver a net reduction of $5.75 in the cost of a standard limits policy, according to a survey made by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

The survey showed that there has been a general reduction of $2.00 in private passenger car rates in this territory and that the reward amounts to $5.75, making the total saving for safe drivers of $5.75 on the standard limits policy. If national averages hold in this area, the survey pointed out, 88 out of 100 insured motorists will make these savings.

In order to make a difference in the cost of automobile liability insurance between safe drivers and those who have accidents that produce claim losses, an additional factor of 4.8 per cent is not an actual addition to the rate in each territory, but a national average, the survey said. While this 4.8 per cent constitutes a charge upon the driver who has loss-producing accidents, the survey said, it is returned three times over to the great majority of motorists who are safe drivers.

The safe driver reward plan was introduced in this state on February 1 by 32 stock company members of the National Bureau. Since that date all policies newly written or renewed contain the provision that if there is no loss within a year's time, the holder gets a return of 15 per cent of the premium. Safe drivers can have their reward either in cash or apply it as a renewal, the Bureau has announced.

Correction

Unpublished Tunes Saved By County Men For Posterity

"Johnson's Impeachment," "Old Blue Bells of Scotland," "Shanghai," and "Cleveland Bells Waltz," old tunes which recall gay times at barn dances and at the more elaborate ball room frolics of their day, are among some 800 to 1000 American tunes which are known to Abel Browning, 84-year-old violinist of Oakland, Md., who is visiting L. L. Kimmell of Hazen, Warsaw Township, Pa., and collaborating with Mr. Kimmell and his son Perry in making permanent phonograph records of unpublished tunes popular during the last decade of the 19th century.

Progress on the venture, which is hoped will make a definite contribution to the music libraries of America, and is being undertaken in an effort to preserve the tunes for posterity, is moving slowly as both Mr. Kimmell and his son Perry, music instructor at Brookville high school, and Mr. Browning are attempting to create the best recordings possible from the many known by Mr. Browning.

Members of several Brookville high school music classes were given an opportunity to hear several recordings already completed when Mr. Kimmell played them this week for classes as part of their studies. In addition to the old tunes, recordings have been made of the high school band and of the mixed chorus.

In preserving the tunes, many of which have been forgotten and are unknown to students of American music, it is hoped that the recordings may be used for educational purposes as well as entertainment. Work on developing the records faces another obstacle, now, however, because Mr. Browning, a lovable old man who has made many friends since his visit here, is getting homesick for his native state.

—Jeffersonian Democrat, Brookville, Pa., issue of Feb. 24, 1938.

Thirty-two marriage licenses were issued during the first week of March ending Monday at noon, at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland, indicating that the total for the entire month would be greater than the number issued during March, 1937.

Twelve of those issued were written on Saturday.

A card and bingo party will be held in St. Peter's Hall, Oakland, on Thursday evening, March 17, to which the public generally is invited.

Seeks Support For Re-election!

In seeking re-election as a member of the TOWN COUNCIL, I cordially solicit your vote in the coming Municipal Election on Monday, March 14.

Respectfully,
Henry W. McComas, Jr.

IT IS DANGEROUS

It is dangerous to sell a SUBSTITUTE for 666 just to make three or four cents more. Customers are your best assets; lose them and you lose your business. 666 is worth three or four times as much as a SUBSTITUTE

To Oakland Voters:

Having been nominated for the office of TOWN TREASURER I shall deeply appreciate your support at the election to be held on next Monday, March 14.

Respectfully your,
SARA C. STANTON

A Modern Fable

Once upon a time there was a farmer who sold two chickens and with the money bought two shirts. So the farmer had two shirts and the city man had two chickens.

Then along came the NEW DEAL and told the farmer he should get more money for his chickens by making them scarcer—he must not raise so many and then he would get more income. The NEW DEAL also told the working man in the city that he must work fewer hours and get more money for his labor. That of course caused manufactured products to cost more money.

Now the farmer brought one chicken to market. He got as much for it as he had previously gotten for two chickens. He felt fine. He went to buy some shirts, but found that shirts had also doubled in price. So he got one shirt. Now the farmer has one shirt and the city man has one chicken, whereas without the NEW DEAL the farmer should have had two shirts and the city man could have had two chickens.

THIS IS CALLED "THE MORE ABUNDANT LIFE."

Open Letter To A Drunken Driver

"Sure, you can drive home a'right. Don't let 'em feed you any of that bunk about letting somebody else take the wheel. Any time old Pete can stand on his two feet he can drive an automobile, drunk or sober. Whatsh a few drinks between friends, anyway? You show 'em who's going to drive.

"Pile 'em into the car. That sweet little wife of yours, who's such a swell kid even if she does nag you about driving when you're drunk. And that funny couple with you who want to take a taxicab home. Imagine! Wanting to take a cab! Pile 'em in! Step on the gas! Whoopee! Go places . . . !

Brother, you're not the big shot you think you are. You're just a fuzzy-brained, liquored-up, obstinate ass with about as much right to drive an automobile on the public highway as a monkey from the zoo would have.

I won't appeal to your reason, because it's obvious that you haven't any. I won't appeal to your emotions, because they're pickled.

I hope you'll start to drive home some night, alone, when you've had too many under your belt. Then I hope some little emergency will arise which your addled brain and fumbling hands won't enable you to meet. I hope you'll have an encounter with a tree or a telephone pole that will land you in a police cell and your car on a junk heap. As you sober up I hope the haseness of your continued offenses against society will be borne in upon you with sickening clarity. I hope the newspaper headlines will scream out to all your relatives and friends and business acquaintances: PROMINENT LOCAL MAN GETS DRUNK AND LANDS IN JAIL.

Yes, I hope an All-Wise Providence will arrange this little lesson for you. And soon, before you kill somebody, as you surely will if you continue to drive when you are drunk.

Lesson for March 13

FEEDING THE HUNGRY

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:30-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—Give ye them to eat. Mark 6:37.
PRIMARY TOPIC—When Jesus Fed a Hungry Crowd.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy's Part in a Great Miracle.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Sharing What We Have.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Providing for the Needs of All.

"My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus" (Phil. 4:19). Such is the assurance of God's Word. Countless Christians have proved it to be true that they may trust God to supply every need—temporal or spiritual.

The lesson for today first presents the disciples as they had come back from their preaching expedition and presented to the Lord Jesus a report of their stewardship in ministering the bread of life to the spiritually needy. He invites them to a place apart from the busy walks of daily life for a time of communion and rest. The multitude would not be denied, however, and follow our Lord to the desert place. Having taught them, Jesus has opportunity to instruct His disciples in the important ministry of supplying for those in need the bread for their bodies.

I. The Ministry of the Bread of Life.

Reports of accomplishments in the field of Christian work (although sometimes an earnest accounting of stewardship of service and money) are all too often prepared for the purpose of impressing men and seeking their financial assistance. The real report is the one which disciples make to their Lord. It concerns two vital points.

1. "What they had done" (v. 30).

One of the temptations which face the preacher and teacher of Christian truth is to avoid unpleasant and difficult problems by simply proclaiming the truth and doing nothing about the outworking of that truth in daily living. It sounds very pious to say that we will present the Word and let it do its own work, but the Christian worker who evades his duty to deal at close grips with sin and disorder in the church and community has not discharged his responsibility to Christ.

2. "What they had taught" (v. 30).

The second temptation of the preacher is to follow the specious reasoning of the modernist who says that it does not matter what a man believes, it is what he does that counts. The foundation of Christian character is Christian doctrine, therefore the disciple of Christ must know what to teach, and give account to the Lord for his teaching. Teaching and doing the commandments of God go hand in hand.

II. The Ministry of Daily Bread.

Jesus found no rest, for the multitudes followed Him to the other side of the lake. Ere long the evening approaches, and the disciples begin to be concerned about how this great multitude is to be fed. They follow the inclinations of the flesh and decide to solve the problem by asking Jesus to

1. "Send them away" (v. 36).

The church has followed their example in dealing with the social problems of the people down through the years. The result is that being denied fellowship, comfort, and help by a church which was too busy building up a vast organization or a beautiful order of worship, the common people have responded to the appeal of political leaders who have provided a substitute for what the church should have given them.

Serious thoughts are these. It will not do for us to "send them away" from the church empty hearted and empty handed. Our Lord says—

2. "Give ye them to eat" (v. 37).

Reckoning hastily on what a small boy had brought for his lunch (trust an alert boy to be ready!), the disciples soon demonstrate that it is impossible to feed this great throng. Logic is such a devastating thing when it operates apart from faith in God. They were absolutely right in their reasoning and in their calculations, but they had forgotten the one factor that really counted. Jesus was there, and Jesus is God and God is omnipotent.

3. "He commanded . . . and they did all eat" (vv. 39, 42).

When God speaks all the limitations of the finite disappear, and the needs of men are fully met—with "twelve baskets full of fragments" left over!

Let those who labor in difficult places with limited resources take heart—and trust God.

Wisdom

Wisdom allows nothing to be good that will not be so forever; no man to be happy but he that needs no other happiness than what he has within himself; no man to be great or powerful that is not master of himself.—Seneca.

Longings

Every longing should become an active impulse in the soul. Our longing should lead us into all paths of Christly service and all heroic duty.

THAT SENATOR AGAIN—AND THE CHAPTER ENDS

EDITOR'S NOTE—Here is proof positive that words can be meaningless. What is printed below is the biggest space waster that The Republican has received in weeks. It is being printed merely to let our readers know what agony we endure whenever we are presented with such a mass (or mess) of ridiculous twaddle from Senator Friend and have to read it. Had we refused to print it, Mr. Friend in all probability would have burst forth again about a biased press and about him not getting a square deal in his arguments, regardless of how meaningless his articles are. It is a never ending circle. Mr. Friend makes statements. His statements are proved wrong. He makes more statements. It is proved he was misinformed. He makes more statements about his former statements, in the face of proof that he is wrong again. After just so much of that it isn't any wonder that The Republican on several occasions has refused to publish the brain children of Mr. Friend and his bullet-molders. This time, however, we let our readers once more view the "mighty" pen blots of Mr. Friend. If they struggle through to the conclusion, here's hoping they have an aspirin handy. Then just relax and breathe a sigh of relief, knowing that in the future The Republican will endure the agony alone and save its readers from any pain. The next time Mr. Friend must have something worthwhile or it goes into the waste-basket for sure.

To the Editor of The Republican.

For the public information I want to re-state that portion of my previous letter which the County Commissioners charged is wrong, and in order to render further denial useless, I quote a part of the law which deals with the payment of moneys to our counties by the State Comptroller, to defray the cost of direct relief.

That portion of my letter which they have denied is as follows:

"By act of the legislature direct relief is handled by the County Commissioners, leaving relief in other categories, such as Old Age Pensions and Aid to Dependent Children, in the hands of the Welfare Boards. Our Commissioners will receive from the State to defray the cost of direct relief approximately $25,000.00 for the year. This is considerably more than direct relief is costing. I have been informed that our Commissioners are expended for direct relief only about $600.00 per month. At this rate direct relief will cost only about $7,000 for the year. The law allows our Commissioners to use any unexpended balance from this fund for general county purposes."

I now refer to Page 57 in the back of the 1937 law book, "Laws passed at the Extraordinary Session in April, 1937", Section 40A sub-section e, which reads as follows:

"Disbursements under this sub-section shall be made directly to the proper fiscal officers of each county, or Baltimore City, the county commissioners of the various counties and the mayor and city council of Baltimore, as the case may be, shall have the right to apply any such allotments, in whole or in part, to the relief of the unemployed, or to the ordinary purpose of government supported by ordinary direct property tax levies, or to the repayment of any obligations previously incurred for any or said purposes as they may deem advisable."

It is utterly ridiculous for officials to attempt to make public denial of a fact that is so plainly written into the law. It is plain from the wording of the law that the legislature intended to put the money for direct relief into the hands of our County Commissioners to be expended by them for relief, or for ordinary purposes of government. Our Commissioners are fully cognizant of this fact as evidenced by their own admission that they are handling direct relief. They know that the reason they are handling direct relief is because the law authorizes them to do so. I want to state here that the law permits our County Commissioners to disburse these funds for the State because there were those of us in the legislature who felt that our Boards of County Commissioners could and would spend the money more prudently and more economically than the welfare staffs would likely do, and in order to provide some incentive to the various Boards of Commissioners to conserve these funds, we of the legislature purposely designed this method of allowing the Boards of Commissioners to apply any unexpended balance, over and above actual requirements for direct relief, to the ordinary expense of county government, hoping thereby to aid in bringing about a reduction of real estate taxes in our respective counties.

The last Relief Law was enacted in May, 1937, and our county cannot hope to receive its full allotment from the State to defray the cost of direct relief until the taxes have been collected. There is a manufacturer's tax on distilled spirits, tax on admissions, tax on cosmetics, tax on beer, tax on instruments of writing, tax on incomes and various others, all of which added to the surplus from the inheritance tax and the franchise taxes were estimated by the Senate Finance Committee of the Legislature to yield over $6,000,000.00 for the first year. After paying the cost of collecting the various relief taxes the Comptroller is to pay over to the board of State Aid and Charities a sum not to exceed $3,620,000.00 which will be distributed to the local welfare boards for Old Age Pensions, Aid to Dependent Children, Aid to the Blind, salaries of local welfare workers, etc., the remaining balance in said fund to be divided between Baltimore City and the counties on a basis of 60% to Baltimore and 40% to the counties. It was estimated that there would be about $2,300,000.00 to be divided in this manner. If this estimate is correct nearly $1,000,000.00 will go to the counties and our share would be 2.41% of that amount; of course it is to be understood that the actual amount these special taxes will yield depends to a considerable extent upon the favorable or unfavorable business conditions prevailing for the term over which the taxes are collectable and this may be more or less than the estimate accordingly.

It is possible that our Commissioners are not familiar with this law but there is no doubt that their attorney who writes statements for publication over their signature is fully informed for he is being paid by the tax payers to advise our Commissioners in legal matters.

They state that they only received one check of $4,820.00 from the Comptroller for direct relief last year. This cannot be true for I find in their financial statement published in October, 1937, under receipts into the contingent fund five different checks totaling $13,441.45. This is in addition to the check for $4,820.00 which they admit having received in November. They cannot help knowing that this check for $4,820.00 was the first installment on the new taxes that had been collected for the State fiscal year 1938, which started October 1, 1937, and that further payments will be made as the taxes are collected. I have been advised that the next installment will be paid about the end of this month after the income tax due March 15, has been collected and divided for distribution to Baltimore City and the several counties. I have no quarrel with our Commissioners but I believe that through lack of knowledge of the actual facts and of the laws controling the disbursements of the special taxes they have been led into the signing of statements which as responsible officials they should know are incorrect. Therefore, for the purpose of clarifying the public mind, I want to re-affirm that our present Board of Commissioners is spending approximately $123,000.00 more this year than was expended four years ago, and despite the fact that we are receiving $25,000.00 per year from the beer tax and, despite the fact that our county is receiving grants from the State to defray the cost of hospitalization for the needy and direct relief to those persons who are out of employment because of physical disabilities, it cannot be denied that we are paying in direct taxes some $67,000.00 more than when the present Board took office. This is brought about by the raise in our tax rate of 23 cents for the year, or a raise of 35 cents for the period of a year and a half covered by the levies of last and this year and the increase in our taxable basis.

In their statement they cite the fact that there will not be available for general purposes all the additional funds that the raise in our taxe hasis will yield because 47 cents on each hundred dollars must be levied to schools. This is only another reason why the base should not have been raised, for by increasing the levy for schools we will lose a corresponding amount each year from the State Equalization fund. It is equivalent to taking $11,000.00 each year from our county tax payers and giving it to the State insofar as the equalization fund is concerned. In addition it will increase the amount our people will be required to pay in State taxes by $5,348.00 so that altogether we will be losing to the State each year over $16,000.00 through the raise in our tax base. A reassessment was badly needed for the purpose of correcting inequalities heretofore existing but certainly not for the purpose of raising assessments.

Finally, referring again to their statement that the roads funds for this year were cut by the legislature so that $30,000.00 less than the amount for last year will be available, I wish to re-affirm my former statement that last year our county received only $118,000.00 for roads, construction and maintenance, and this year there will be provided from State and Federal gasoline taxes $139,000.00, or $21,000.00 more than was provided last year.

MT. LAKE PARK

This letter came to the office of The Republican and it is given just as it was written to the editor:

"Have been very much interested in 'Old Memories' in the column. The dam at the lake gave way in 1898. It rained nearly all summer of that year. Harry "Buck" Armstrong, Gay Armstrong and Howard Swan and myself made a raft out of the boardwalk during this flood. We had a great time. I also remember a water trough (other than the one in front of the Association cottage, for three of us fell in after imbibing too much blackberry wine. I worked for L. A. Rudisill in the postoffice the summer of 1906 and 1907, and we had Sunday mail. Mrs. List, who ran Loch Lynn, had written to Washington and gotten this service.

"I belonged to the 'Amanias Club,' which met at the Laughlin pharmacy regularly. We came to the Park in 1893. My father bought the Dr. Frysinger property. Do you remember when Dr. A. Rambeau was head of Romance Languages in the summer school? Towards the last the school was held in the Hall of Philosophy. Does anyone remember when Miss Swan had a school for girls—Briarbend Seminary? My half-sister, Miss Cecile Bacot taught there the winter of 1895 and 1896.

"Does anyone recall when Allan Dare and myself ran the ball team—that was in 1909. They were all Collegians except two members from Oakland, the Frantz brothers. We played from Rowlesburg to Piedmont—and believe it or not, we lost every game.

"I have traveled a great deal, but I have always considered Mountain Lake as my real home. We spent many summers there. I could write a book about the Park, for I have forgotten very little of the happenings since 1893 on to 1909. True, I have only been back a few times, but I love it for its beauty and the happy memories. No doubt there are some of my friends who will remember me. I enjoy this colmun because I see quite often the names of people I once knew.

"I was at Crystal Spring a short time ago while making a hurried trip and I want to say this: I do wish that something could or would be done to start a movement to take care of the spring and its surroundings. Would suggest an enclosure, and I am quite willing to back this up with a donation toward doing something. It is terribly run down and a disgrace as it is.

"In closing let me say that I should like to hear from any old friends. For the last twenty-five years I have followed the steel game and do not get much chance to get to the Park.

"I hope you will publish all or part of this letter."

A. E. RAMBEAU.
711 Pearl Street, Martins Ferry, O.

We feel that there are one or two statements to be made as regards Mr. Rambeau's letter. We know that the town offered to take over the spring and guarantee to put it in order. The spring is the property of the Association and its officers refused to accept this offer. Why, we cannot say. However, regardless of who the owners are, it would seem to us that civic pride would come to the rescue and the spring taken care of. The surroundings could be made attractive. Instead we have simply—well, there is no name for it, but it's certainly any place but what it should be.

Memories

The back road to Weber's—what a lovely walk that was.

When T. A. Deveny bought Black Diamond, a Kentucky thoroughbred for his daughter Lottie (now Mrs. Carl Beatty). There were few fine horses at that time. Dr. Hinebaugh and Dr. McComas each had a span of beauties.

Croquet was the favorite sport. Almost everyone had a croquet court.

Hammocks were in vogue.

Going to campmeeting and carrying a lantern was the thing to do.

Mrs. E. L. Winchell has had a very interesting letter from Mrs. John L. Alcock, of Towson. Mrs. Alcock is the former Miss Edithe Allen. Her mother was the owner of Allenhurst Cottage for a number of years.

We have a short communication from "Old Timer" in which he says: "I can remember when E. L. Winchell gave those grand suppers. The main food was turtle soup and frogs' legs. Mr. Winchell kept a large pool, box or water container in which the turtles were kept, and he made the soup himself. No one else could do it quite like he did. On these occasions there would be huge platters of fried frogs' legs. During one Chautauqua season there were a number of the artists invited by Mr. and Mrs. Winchell to one of these suppers. Among them, Professor Viney, of New York City, well known singer; Klintelter and Whistler, and on the front porch the Stevens Band played. The Dailey quartet from Philadelphia sang during the evening. Many others would drop in and always found a welcome. 'Journey's End' was a bright spot for all who cared to visit the genial host and hostess, and there was always company."

"Going Up To Jerusalem With Christ" is the general theme of the sermons during the Lenten season. Our Lord's threefold mission was clearly set forth during the days immediately preceding His sacrificial death: to reveal the Father's forgiving mercy; give a faithful example to all his followers in the matter of facing life's severest tests, and in making atonement for the sin of mankind.

From the viewpoint of His humanity, He was the great fearless personality, showed a kindly sympathy for all whose hearts were filled with confusion and fear, and gave direct and positive assurance to all who were overwhelmed by the burden of sin and terrified by the mystery of death.

The entire community is most cordially invited to worship with us.

A. K. JONES, Pastor.

ENTIRE SLATE OF TOWN OFFICIALS RE-ELECTED

Mayor Fraley Was Unopposed; Kercheval, Shartzer And McComas Named As Councilmen

R. DAVIS IS TREASURER

Citizens of Oakland re-elected the entire group of incumbent officers at the annual municipal election conducted on Monday at the City Hall.

Representing about sixty per cent of the voters, 479 persons cast their ballots. Last year there were 613 ballots cast.

Mayor L. M. Fraley, unopposed in the election, polled 395 votes. In the 1936 election he defeated Grover C. Stemple, three times mayor, by a plurality of 100 votes. Monday's election assures Fraley his fifth term as mayor of the city. He previously had served in that capacity from 1924 to 1930.

Dr. Ralph L. Kercheval led the ticket for council with 379 votes. Earl Shartzer was second with 322, and Henry W. McComas, Jr., third, with 320 votes. In 1936 Shartzer led the ticket, while Dr. Kercheval ran second. McComas finished third in the same contest.

For Town Treasurer, Richard Davis was elected by a plurality of 101 votes over Miss Sara C. Stanton. Davis' vote was 229, and Miss Stanton's was 128.

All of the recently elected officers will take their respective positions next month, the mayor and three councilmen for two-year terms, and the treasurer for one year.

Defeated candidates and their votes were Raymond D. Houck, 180, and J. William Whorton, 109. Alva Gortner, Dr. B. F. Selby and Arthur Cogley, who were also nominees at the citizens' meeting last Thursday, withdrew from the ballot.

This week's figure brought the total to 65. Eight were written on Saturday. Two licenses during the week were marked "don't publish," while one applicant was refused.

Re-employment Office Moved

The Re-employment office is now located on the second floor of the McIntire building, corner of Third and Alder streets, having been moved there this week from the City Hall, where it had been established for a number of months.

The re-employment office also is in charge of the unemployment compensation insurance records.

MEETING OF JUVENILE COURT GROUP HELD FRIDAY

Will Consider Appointment of Magistrate Today

For the purpose of becoming acquainted with the provisions of an act of the 1931 Legislature in regard to their own committee responsibilities and the appointment of a juvenile magistrate, members of the Juvenile Court committee of Garrett county met last Friday afternoon in the office of the County Commissioners.

The Act of the Legislature set forth a way for the appointment of a juvenile magistrate in each county to have jurisdiction in all cases of delinquency among boys and girls under sixteen years of age, in case the County Commissioners would set aside a fund for the expenses of such court in their annual levy. Since 1931 only one county has provided the necessary funds until this year when the Garrett County Commissioners, a little more than a month ago, levied $600 to be used during 1938.

By providing the money to set up a juvenile magistrate it next became the duty of the juvenile court committee to meet. This committee was appointed several years ago and consists of E. R. Jones, Dr. W. W. Grant, Adam Richter, Truman C. Bittinger and Rev. David C. Trimble. Others in attendance at the meeting last Friday with the committee were John L. Fitzwater, attendance officer of the public school system; Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the Garrett County Welfare Board, and Mrs. E. Z. Tower, of the Maryland Children's Aid Society.

The Act of the Legislature which created the court committee was explained by State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley, who is also attorney to the Board of County Commissioners. Mr. Fraley pointed out the need for some additional juvenile jurisdiction in the county.

The committee is to meet again this afternoon to recommend the appointment of a juvenile magistrate. The law requires the appointee to be a member of the bar. The appointment will be made by Governor Harry W. Nice.

McMahon "Plan"

Hugh Carey McMahon, Garrett county Democratic senatorial aspirant four years ago, but whose name failed to appear on the ballot because of the fact that he failed to comply with a section of the election law governing the filing of nomination papers, and who was an avowedly "wet" candidate against the field, was in California during the floods in that state and was drafted for some of the rescue work. According to a nwespaper report appearing on Monday, he is "active these days visiting Townsend headquarters with the hope of linking the Lemke-Frazier farm bill and the Townsend plan, which he claims will bring about general prosperity."

He is on record saying he will "support any good man who will pledge himself to the Townsend plan and the Lemke-Frazier bill, regardless of party, with the view of "getting us out of the Roosevelt muddle."

Demand For 1938 Auto License Tags Is Very Slow

The demand for 1938 auto license tags is very slow, according to Walter R. Rudy, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. Last year at about the same date 109,511 sets of tags had been issued. The mark this year is 91,020, or more than 15,000 under the demand during the previous year.

Despairing at the slow demand for tags, Rudy predicted "during the last week of this month we'll have one of the worst last-minute jams in the history of the bureau."

THREE BROTHERS DIE IN FLAMES NEAR KITZMILLER

Cremated As Home Burns—17-Year-Old Boy Returns To House In Effort To Save Brothers

6 OTHERS BARELY ESCAPE

James Haddick, 17, broke through a cordon of relatives early Tuesday morning to dash into his blazing home in a vain attempt to save his two little brothers from the flames.

The three brothers, James, William, 9, and Howard, 4, died in the embers of their frame house near Kitzmiller, in this county, which caught fire from an overheated wood fire and became a raging inferno within a short time. A half dozen others narrowly escaped.

The house, owned by Charles Harvey, and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Haddick and their family, and two others, was too remote for any aid to be effective.

Abe Haddick, an elderly relative, arose at 6 o'clock and built a wood fire in the heating stove in the dining room, and then went to build a fire in the kitchen. While out of the room the overheated stove ignited some flimsy material and by the time the elderly man knew what had happened the flames were beyond control.

Arousing others in the house, including Mr. and Mrs. Sam Haddick, seven children and a boarder, all managed to get out except two—William and Howard, who was nicknamed "Bucky."

Loses Life Attempting Rescue

James Haddick heard his brothers' cries and resisting efforts to detain him, rushed into the blazing home. He managed to grab William and was seen emerging from the flames with his brother in his arms when he stumbled in the doorway and fell backward into the house. The upper floor crashed in carrying Bucky down to his death and covering the other two boys.

In the first rush from the burning home the adults carried children with them and expected to go back for any that might be left. When it was found that William and Bucky were still in the house the heat was so intense that rescue efforts were deemed hopeless. James, however, seemingly frenzied by the thought of his two little brothers in the midst of the flames made a sudden dash for the house and the futile attempt at rescue.

The last sight of him was with Bill in his arms staggering through the door, his eyes blinded by smoke, and then the fall as his physical powers failed him. Onlookers could not tell whether he stumbled or fell from exhaustion.

Among those saved were Bertha, 11; Nettie, 7; Walter, 14, and Franklin, an infant.

The Haddick family has been on relief. The house, valued at about $1,000, was not insured. Practically all the belongings of the Haddick family were destroyed.

Wants Returns on Seal Sale

Those in charge of the Tuberculosis seal sale campaign in this county are urging this week that all persons having money to turn in should do so before the end of March.

No money has been received during the past three weeks. Christmas seals were distributed in December to a number of business men, organizations and individuals, and those who have not returned the seals or the money are urged to make a report to Miss Speicher in the health office, Court House.

TWO GLARING MISTAKES—

The municipal elections in Oakland for the past years have brought forth two glaring mistakes, which need correction, in the opinion of The Republican.

The first is that there is no absolute method of proof as to who resides within the corporate limits and who does not—no registration system of any kind showing who the qualified veters are. If there should be a close race for any office, there's no telling who would be brought into the voting place to cast a ballot.

The second mistake is that there is no system for filing for a position on the ticket. The method used at this time is entirely inadequate and highly unsatisfactory to many, even to those whose names are presented at the open meetings prior to the election.

One never knows whether the persons nominated desire to run or not, and at times it is highly embarrassing to individuals whose names are presented without their knowledge and have no desire to become candidates for public office. If they do not attend the meeting, sometimes they don't even know they have been nominated until the ballots are distributed on the day of the election.

There is already a law on the statute books providing for a registration in Oakland prior to elections, but in the opinion of the city attorney the law is invalid and contradicts the town charter. That is the reason it has been allowed to lie dormant.

For the best interests of good government and everybody concerned, it should be the duty of the Mayor and Council to have an act drawn to present to the next General Assembly providing for a registration of all voters in the town.

If a resident desires to run for office he would have the privilege of filing his candidacy. If he did not care to become a candidate he would not be embarrassed annually by a group of otherwise well-meaning people who seem to delight in nominating everybody they can think of at these citizens' meetings. The council can well afford to spend some time thinking about these two suggestions.

DON'T FORGET CHILDREN—

The city election is over. Soon the mayor and council will be thinking of the year's work ahead, and it seems a most opportune time for those interested in the youth of the community to bring up the subjects of a community playground and community building to be constructed somewhere within the city limits.

The golf course will be completed this spring and the councilmen are meeting this month to discuss a way to organize and place the project on a business basis—one that will make it a paying proposition within a reasonable time. Any profits from the golf course might well be put aside for a playground or community building.

The responsibility to the youth of our town will remain as long as there are families, and there is no tendency at present showing a decrease in the number. Continued interest, however, on the part of all parents, and full cooperation with the mayor and council, are needed to eventually bring such things to pass.

The mayor and members of council are interested.

Already the members of the Fire Department have discussed a community building, taking upon themselves the responsibility of financing the construction. Bigger quarters are needed for the Fire Department and equipment, and they have talked of a building with a large auditorium. On the first floor would be the fire house and rooms for organizations.

Perhaps if enough interest was created by all of us, some public spirited citizen would donate sufficient ground properly located for a building and playground adjoining. It would be an everlasting memorial in his honor and certainly would bring intense satisfaction within himself for a public service well rendered.

Without the help of the citizens of Oakland, The Republican could write and write editorials, to no avail.

But with editorials and some active interest upon the part of individuals, wonders could be performed.

It is worth trying.

APPRECIATION

We take this means of conveying our appreciation and sincere thanks to all of our many friends who were so kind and thoughtful at the time fire destroyed our home and contents about fifteen days ago.

We also want to thank the Friendsville Fire Department members for their response and doing all they possibly could.

Mr. & Mrs. Blaine Friend and Mother.

MAPLE SYRUP PRICES HIGHEST IN YEARS

The Carey Maple Sugar Company, Inc., of St. Johnsbury, Vermont, large buyers in this locality, announced today that they would guarantee to pay as a minimum the following prices on standard weight syrup to all producers who fill their drums:

Fancy, 17c, lb.; No. 1, 12c, lb; No. 2, 10c, lb; No. 3, 9c, lb.

The above prices are the highest paid for bulk maple syrup since the 1931 season, and in view of the declining commodity prices, this announcement will come as welcome news to sugar makers, and there is no doubt that many producers who have not tapped their sugar trees in recent years will get busy at once and prepare for sugar.

According to E. R. Boylan, vice president of the Carey Maple Sugar Company, Inc., some of the early groves in Ohio and southwestern New York have reported early runs and the syrup produced to date has been of exceptional quality.—Advertisement 3-1*

IT'S A BIG HONEY FOR MIGHTY LITTLE MONEY!

ASK YOUR FRIENDS, ask your neighbors, what they think of this '38 Buick, and they'll give it to you quick in six little words:

"It's a honey for the money!"

That's praise all right—but praise that still doesn't do this great car full justice!

For here's a traveler that would be a buy even if you had to pay a premium to get it!

It's a car with power like no other. Power literally born of the hurricane—power that makes gasoline deliver more—power that's smooth, willing, brilliant.

Here's a car, too, with an utterly different kind of ride. A ride that gentles every jar and jolt. A ride that's safer in nasty going, that gives sureness to control, that cuts down upkeep and makes rear tires last longer.

NEW DYNAFLASH ENGINE.. puts cyclones at your service.. nearly 10% more power from the same rationing of fuel.

NEW TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING... gentles every jar and jolt... reduces skid-risks... makes rear tires last longer.

And here's a car that in addition sparkles with features as a Christmas tree sparkles with ornaments.

New quiet, from "silent zone" body mounting. New comfort, from deep, broad comfort-angled seats. New pride of possession, from style hailed as the smartest of the year.

Yet big and satisfying as this beautiful Buick is, a little money buys it! No more than you'll pay for some sixes. Less than for any other eight of its size.

So there's no longer any reason for not stepping up to the kind of car you've always wanted.

Go now and get the details from the nearest Buick dealer—see the car that folks just won't do without.

"Better buy Buick!"

MT. LAKE PARK

In this column we have had the pleasure of trying out a "memory" column. This has met with a very great response on the part of subscribers and readers. The Cumberland News has the announcement of the candidacy for Mayor of Mr. Harry Matheny. It is rather a coincidence that from Mrs. C. W. there comes an inquiry as to his whereabouts, she having remembered him when he was at the Mt. Lake Pharmacy—or should we say the old Mt. Lake Drug store. In view of this fact we are sending Mrs. C. W., of Washington, D. C., a clipping from the Cumberland paper.

Miss Helen Schooley has contributed a large advertising folder of Loch Lynn Hotel. They certainly went in for advertising on a large scale in those days. However, there were one or two inducements that are interesting to readers. The pictures are very large and most interesting. The date is the beginning of the season, 1907, under Mrs. L. B. C. List as manager. Listed under modern conveniences are "long distance 'phone, direct communication with Dr. McComas' office and drug store, stenographer, manicure, barber, Sunday mails and trains." Another, "Music, an important feature in connection with our many inducements offered this season will be the music in charge of Mr. Herman C. Rakemann, of the Washington Symphony Orchestra and Washington College of Music."

A Chautauqua program of 1899 next comes to our notice. It was issued and printed by F. E. Rathbun, Printer, stationer and newsdealer of Mt. Lake Park, near the depot. The first advertiser on the list is the late P. T. Garthright, and his picture is in the center of the add. He is listed as "General Merchant and Real Estate Agent, also agent for Marvin's Bakery."

McComas Sanitarium has a page also.

C. M. Rathbun and Sons Planing Mills, Builders' Supplies, Coal and Kindling. And, of course, the hotels. Mt. Lake Hotel, under the management of Mr. J. L. Roadarmour; Columbian Hotel, R. P. Spiker and Sons; The Hotel Dennet, Mrs. J. Hunter.

Just who had the Hotel Chautauqua we are not sure, but we do find an add in which Richard Moore (colored) says he will give you "an easy shave or stylish hair cut, hot and cold baths."

The only livery stable at that time was that run by E. F. Smouse and was located in Loch Lynn. His horses were always advertised as "safe horses."

Next week we have another intersting letter from one who has not forgotten Mt. Lake.

Personals

L. Y. Ramsay, Jamestown, N. Y., was the guest of his brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Blakely Love, over the week-end.

Master Billy Bleakly continues quite ill at the home of his grandparents, Rsv. and Mrs. Gregory Bleakly.

Arthur Martini, Washington, D. C., is spending some time here with his aunts, Misses Kathrine and Mary O'Donnell. Mr. Martini has been quite ill and is here to recuperate. His many friends are glad to see him.

The Loch Lynn P.-T. A. will hold a food sale Friday night bgeinning at 7 o'clock, in the Loch Lynn school.

Mrs. Laura Welch was a business visitor to Cumberland last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Turney celebrated their 16th wedding anniversary on Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Turney and Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Kahl were dinner guests at the Anderson place.

Thomas Stevenson and Robert Stevenson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stevenson, are recovering from an illness of influenza. Little Miss Barbara Hamill, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Hamill is also ill with influenza at the Stevenson home.

Last Sunday was a record breaking Sunday school attendance for the U. B. church. There were 128 present, the largest Sunday school gathering ever held in this community.

On Friday evening a community sing will be held at the church under the leadership of C. C. Gnegy. Last Friday the sing was held in the M. E. church.

Canning Co. Gets Large Contract

The Mt. Airy Canning company is shipping 25,000 cases of peas to several points under a Government contract. This contract calling for such a large amount should mean a great deal to Mt. Lake industry and the Mt. Airy company.

JUDGE HUSTER CHARGES GARRETT CO. GRAND JURY

Inquisitorial Body, With Joseph E. Harned, Foreman, Assembled Monday Morning

SESSION WAS QUITE SHORT

With Joseph E. Harned, Oakland, as foreman, and other members of the March Term grand jury in attendance Monday morning, Associate Judge Huster of the Garrett County Circuit Court, addressed the body, which completed its work and adjourned on Tuesday, as follows:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury:—

You have been selected as the grand jurors for the March Term of Court for Garrett County, and it is customary for the Court to instruct the Grand Jury, in a general way, of the duties which they are about to undertake and perform. I shall confine myself to a general statement of the things you are expected to do, and to those statutes, which we are required by law, at each term, to bring to the Grand Jury's attention.

Grand Juries are an ancient and important institution, and the strict performance of their duties constitutes one of the safeguards of the public in the preservation and peace of the community and the safety and security of the individual. In the furtherance of justice your investigations and deliberations should be conducted in secrecy. You are sworn to keep secret the State's, your fellows' and your own counsel. This language has reference to all things which transpire in the Grand Jury room, and the principle underlying this injunction of secrecy extends to all persons required by law to be present before the Grand Jury. This policy is to inspire your body, as a whole, with confidence of security in the discharge of your responsible duties, so that you may deliberate and decide without apprehen-

"House Must Come Down," Says State Fire Marshal

Following an inspection of the old Bosley Hotel on Oak street on Tuesday, Joseph F. Daugherty, State Fire Marshal of Maryland, told members of the City Council that the "house must come down."

Emroy Bolden, member of the City Council and of the Oakland Fire Department, accompanied Mr. Daugherty on his inspection trip. The building was considered by Mr. Daugherty to be a dangerous fire hazard, and he informed the owner of the property as to what should be done.

Council was informed last week that the building would be razed within sixty days. The subject was brought to Council's attention through a petition signed by fifty residents of that section of town declaring the building to be unsafe and living conditions unsanitary. Nine families, with a total of fifty-two adults and children occupy the structure.

Carter, county agriculture agent, was held at the home of Misses Margaret and Mary Frances Rowan, on Friday evening, March 18. The speaker was Mr. Lindey Dawson, rural sociologist from the University of Maryland, who gave an interesting discussion of the question "Is machinery the cause of unemployment?"

A program was arranged for the remaining months. Those in charge include Jessie Guard, Friendsville; Mary Jane Porter, George Porter, Mary F. Rowan, Anna Durst, all of Oakland; William Wildesen, Gormania; Robert DeWitt, Accident; Miss Barton and Mr. Carter.

The April meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Hanst in Oakland.

Spring Opens In Oakland With Temperature of 73 Degrees

On wings of mid-summer temperatures, Spring sailed into Oakland on Monday with a temperature of 73 degrees, which was raised on Tuesday to 79 degrees, one of the warmest March days on record in this county.

A bright sun shone throughout Monday and most of Tuesday. Thermometers on the street, in direct line of the sun, went as high as 110 degrees.

There was a light rain on Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning. A heavy rain began falling Wednesday night, accompanied by thunder and lightning, and this morning the atmosphere had cooled to such an extent that it was snowing.

During these first days of spring property owners have been raking leaves and debris and cleaning up their yards, getting a jump on the sometimes erratic weather man.

Spencer Hardesty, at Hutton, reported that he had seen a lot of grasshoppers in the fields near his place, and that up in his section bluebirds already had their young.

At one residence in town, several tennis enthusiasts were out batting balls back and forth across the net. The court had been rolled and was considered in fair shape.

Theatre Tax For Year Reaches Sum Of $828.10

The theatre tax for one year on Sunday moving pictures reached the sum of $828.10, according to a report just released by the Mayor and Town Council of Oakland.

In the municipal election in 1937 voters of the town of Oakland favored Sunday moving pictures, and the law called for a tax on admissions to be paid to the City Council. Half of the proceeds were to go to the Garrett County Children's Aid and Relief Society, one-fourth to the Oakland Free Public Library and one-fourth to the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department.

The statement shows $413.42 turned over to the Children's Aid; $206.71, to each the Public Library and Fire Department; $1.25 for a check book, and a balance of 1 cent. The year's figures run from March 24, 1937, to March 20, 1938. March distribution will not be made until April 4, it was announced by J. Frank Browning, city clerk.

Sale Of Savings Bonds Reaches $28,181.25 At Postoffice

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has announced that the total maturity value of United States Savings Bonds sold through the close of business March 7, 1938, amounted to $1,584,462,875. This total was purchased by more than 1,260,000 investors, and represents an average sale for each business day since March 1, 1935, when these bonds were first sold, of $1,720,375.

The total sales of savings bonds at the Oakland postoffice was $28,181.25 for the year. Of this amount $27,787.50 were sold direct from the postoffice; $393.75 were sold by mail order.

'OPEN HOUSE' AT SWALLOW FALLS CCC CAMP APRIL 3

A Program Of Interest Is Being Planned By The Officials

In commemoration of the fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Civilian Conservation Corps, Company 304, located in Swallow Falls State Forest, is planning an unusual program and "open house" for Sunday, April 3. This program will be the high-light of the anniversary week, from March 31-April 5. The general public of both Oakland and other Garrett county communities, as well as the county as a whole, are cordially invited to attend the "open house" and participate in the festivities, is the expressed wish of Captain R. S. Isiminger and Project Superintendent F. W. B. Taylor, together with other officials of the camp, who are planning an excellent program for the affair.

Among the major items on the program is an inspection tour of the Camp and Herrington Manor project, upon which the enrollees at Swallow Falls are working. The entire camp will be thrown open to the public on Sunday morning, and guides will be provided to show visitors through the camp as well as Swallow Falls State Forest, in which the camp is located. Between 2 and 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon refreshments of sandwiches and lemonade will be served in the camp mess hall.

Means of reaching Herrington Manor, weather permitting, will be provided by camp officials from the camp.

Invitations are being prepared and will be mailed to Oakland as well as to Garrett county officials.

As a means toward acquainting the public of the ideals and projects of the Civilian Conservation Corps, Mr. Fechner, Director of that organization says:

"I am heartily in favor of the 'open house' commemorative exercises. Letters and reports reaching this office indicate the holding of these anniversary celebrations has aided in improving camp morale and in strengthening the good relationships that normally exist between the camps and communities. They have also served to acquaint the press and the public with work which the CCC is accomplishing and the fine things which the CCC is doing for the boys in the way of improving their employability, physical condition and morale."

To Offer Prize For Planting Best Half-Acre Of Trees

A purse of $5, being raised by members of the Swanton community, will be given to the person living in that section who this year plants the best half-acre of trees.

This offer is part of a reforestation program which was suggested in the address of Mr. Rudolph F. Boening, of Oakland, when he met with a large meeting of citizens in the Swanton school building last month.

A State Extension forester will be in the county within the next two weeks, it is stated, when he will meet those persons who showed a particular interest in the matter of developing forests on their properties.

His advice will also be available to others who wish to plant trees this spring and who make arrangements for this service through the office of John H. Carter, county agent. Adults and young people may compete for the prize offered. A committee of farmers and experts will act as the judges.

Meeting On Sunday To Be Held; Has Been Closed Two Years

Member sof the congregation of Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church in Oakland will meet Sunday, March 27, at 4 o'clock, in the church, corner Second and Liberty streets, to decide as to the future of the church.

The church, one of the most beautiful landmarks of Oakland, observed its fiftieth anniversary on March 17, 1935. It was on that date in 1885 that the local congregation received the deed to the property from the estate of the late John W. Garrett, who erected it in 1868 as a memorial to his brother.

It was first named the First Presbyternan church, but later its name was changed to the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church in honor of its donor, who, during his lifetime was president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

FOURTEEN INDICTMENTS FOUND BY GRAND JURORS

Investigating Body Adjourns Following 2-Day Session; 43 Witnesses Examined

RECOMMENDATIONS MADE

The Grand Jury for the March Term of the Garrett County Circuit Court adjourned Tuesday afternoon following a session of two days, during which time 43 witnesses were examined and fourteen presentments and indictments were returned.

A number of recommendations are made to the County Commissioners in regard to the upkeep of the Court House and Jail properties, all of which are contained in the full report of the jury, which is printed below:

To the Honorable, the Judges of the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland:

The Grand Jury for the March Term, 1938, hereby submits its report as follows:

We have had before us and have examined 43 witnesses and have found fourteen presentments and indictments.

Following the instructions delivered to us in the charge of His Honor Judge Huster, we have given careful consideration to the matters brought to our attention and have returned indictments where we believed the evidence warranted such action.

We have made an inspection of the Jail and find it to be in excellent condition and to be well taken care of by the Sheriff, and we desire to commend him for the good appearance of the property which is in his charge. We believe the prisoners are well taken care of and have the benefit of wholesome food.

We have examined the Court House and the several offices and find them to be in good condition and well taken care of by the officers in charge. The records in the several offices are in good condition and neatly kept and all information asked for was readily available and cheerfully given.

We would recommend to the County Commissioners the following improvements and repairs:

First, we would recommend that the Grand Jury room walls and ceiling be painted; second, the walls and ceiling in the Health Office should be painted; third, we recommend that the walls and ceiling in the Orphans' Court be painted; fourth, the walls in the stairway to the basement should be repainted.

We would recommend that the step in front of the Court House leading to Third street should be repaired and made three inches wider. The grass plot along the Alder street side should be filled in and sowed with grass seed.

The sidewalk in front of the Sheriff's residence on Alder street and the sidewalk on Fourth street leading to the Jail entrance should be rebuilt.

We believe the officers of the county are performing their duty in the enforcement of the law.

We desire to thank the State's Attorney, Neil C. Fraley, for his cooperation and assistance given us during our deliberations.

We extend our thanks to His Honor Judge Huster for the assistance he has given us in performing our duties as Grand Jurors.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOS. E. HARNED, Foreman.
C. MILTON SINCELL,
PAUL D'WITT, Clerks.

Immediately following the submission to the Court of the Grand Jury report, a recess was declared until on next Monday morning when the criminal docket will be taken up. Members of the petit jury are required to report at that time.

JUDGE HUSTER CHARGES GARRETT CO. GRAND JURY

sion of any detriment from an accused or any other person; to secure the utmost freedom of disclosure of alleged crimes and offenses by enforement officers; to conceal the fact that an indictment is found against a party, in order to avoid the danger that he may escape and elude arrest.

You are an investigating body, and the major portion of your time will be taken up in investigation of such cases as have already been dealt with by the enforcement officers of the county against persons who have been charged with violations of the criminal laws, and are already either in jail or held by bail to await your action, all of which will be brought to your attention by the State's Attorney. It will be your business to hear the witnesses, who will be produced before you, and if there is reasonable evidence of the guilt of the accused, to indict, their guilt or innocence to be later determined by the petit jury or by the Court, as those indicted may elect. In addition to the cases already prepared for submission to you, it is your duty to investigate any other offenses which may be brought to your attention, or any of which you or any of you have personal knowledge, and summon such witnesses as you may think necessary.

There are certain statutes which we are obliged by the Legislature from term to term to bring to the attention of the Grand Jury:

Section 4 of Article 27 of the Code requires . . "the Judges of the several Circuit Courts of this State . . . to give (Section 3) in charge of the Grand Jury of their respective Courts, at each term of said Court". Section 3 pertains to the crime of abortion and the advertisement, advice or information of any remedy designed or represented to effect the crime.

We are required by Section 79 of Article 27 to charge the Grand Jury with respect to the provisions of a statute which reads as follows: "If any clerk, register of wills, sheriff, collector of taxes, notary public or other officer whose duty it is to collect revenue due the Stat eof Maryland or any county thereof, shall, after the receipt of the said revenue by him, wilfully detain the same in his possession and neglect to pay the same into the Treasury of the State or to the County Commissioners, or the proper officer authorized to receive the same, for more than sixty days after the day upon which it is made by law his duty to pay the same, or if no particular day be appointed by law for said payment, and such officer shall detain any revenue dut to the State or to any county thereof, and which it is his duty to collect, and which he shall have collected and shall neglect to pay the same into the Treasury of this State, or to the County Commissioners or the proper officer authorized to receive the same, for the space of six months after he shall have so collected the same, said officer so offending in either case shall be deemed to be a defaulter, and, upon indictment and conviction thereof shall, in addition to any other penalties already provided by law, be for each offense imprisoned in the State Penitentiary not less than one year nor more than five years, unless the amount for which he is a defaulter be sooner paid . . " and it is your duty—and an important one—to see that these provisions of the law are obeyed.

Section 286 of Article 27 makes it the duty " . . of all Judges of Courts having criminal jurisdiction in this State at every regular term thereof to charge all regularly impanelled juries to diligently inquire into and investigate all cases of the violation of the provisions of Sections 283, 284, and 285, forbidding the furnishing, selling, giving or otherwise dispensing of cocaine, opium, morphine, and other habit-forming drugs except upon the prescription of physicians, surgeons, dentists and veterinarians," with the regulations under which they may prescribe them.

It is provided by Section 22 of Article 51 of the Code of General Laws that "The Grand Jury shall at each term of the Court visit the Jail and inquire into its condition, the manner in which it is kept and the treatment of the prisoners, and report the same to the Court." It is customary also to inspect the Court House and to report its condition with such recommendations as they may deem necessary and proper.

Article 20, Sections 20-22, requires that each constable of the county shall appear at every jury term of the Circuit Court and be sworn and make a report as to any and all violations which may exist in their respective districts, and particularly where it is suspected that gaming tables are kept, and give information of all violations of law.

The law does not require the Court to especially instruct the Grand Jury against the statute of carrying concealed weapons, but it has been the custom of doing so because this offense—so lightly regarded by so many persons—frequently has such tragic consequences that it should not be ignored. That the Legislature realized its seriousness is attested by the fact that it has imposed penalties for violation of the statute by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars or imprisonment in the jail or House of Correction for not more than two years.

It has also been customary to direct the attention of the Grand Jury to the liquor laws of the county. The sale of beer is now legalized in Garrett county, subject to such regulations as the Act of 1935-1937 imposes. It will be your duty to make an investigation as to the observance of these regulations by those who hold licenses under this law, and if violations are found, it will be your duty to find indictments against the violators. It will also be your duty to make an investigation as to whether alcoholic beverages are being unlawfully sold or manufactured without license in Garrett County, and if you find that such violations exist, it will be your duty to return indictments against those who violate this law.

I also wish to call your attention to the great loss of life and injuries to persons caused through the use of motor vehicles operated in a reckless and incautious manner, in utter disregard for the safety of others. This condition cannot be too strongly brought to the attention of all law enforcement officers and operators of motor vehicles everywhere. Safety should be the paramount thought of all operators of motor vehicles and those who do not strictly observe the law and safety rules of the road, and thereby cause loss of life, injuries, damage and great grief to others, do so at their peril.

Upon your retirement to the Grand Jury room to begin your duties, you will organize by appointing two of your number to act as clerks to the Grand Jury. In any case which is presented to you, after hearing the evidence, in order to return a true bill, it will be necessary that you have twelve affirmative votes, and during your deliberations and voting no one will be permitted within the Grand Jury room except members of the Grand Jury.

It is to the public interest that you promptly assume your duties and conclude them as speedily as may be consistent, with a thorough investigation of all matters which may be brought to your attention, and other work which you may be required to do, but it is not advisable to sacrifice thoroughness to speed.

That this Court is of the belief that you will promptly and properly perform the duties to which you are summoned is attested by the fact that you have been selected to serve as Grand Jurors.

THE REPUBLICAN

BENJ. H. SINCELL, Editor.
D. R. SINCELL G. H. HANST
Associate Editors

The Republican was established in the year 1877 and is the oldest newspaper with the largest circulation of any paper published in Garrett County, Maryland.

Entered at the Postoffice at Oakland, Md., as second-class mail matter.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION

The Republican is published every Thursday morning at The Republican Building, Second Street, Oakland, Md., at the following rates, payable in advance:

One copy, one year.....$1.50
One copy, six months..... .75
One copy, three months..... .40

Remittance may be made by bank draft, money order or registered letter addressed to The Republican, Oakland, Garrett County, Maryland.

Advertising rates made known upon application at the business office.

THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1938.

HEARTY APPROVAL—

Hearty approval of The Republican's suggestion last week in regard to a city primary and a registration of voters for the town of Oakland, has been given by Mayor Lawrence M. Fraley, and several members of the city council.

Mr. Fraley's plan is to have such a bill prepared in proper form so that it will be presented to the next session of the Legislature for passage. Whether such a bill would be in time to change precedure before the 1939 election, is not known, but anyway the plans are underway and the mistakes will be corrected.

Any resident desiring to run for office will have the privilege of filing his candidacy, and only registered voters will be eligible to vote, under the proposed law.

These changes have been needed for several years. It is gratifying to know the Mayor and Council agree with The Republican on this matter.

Another question upon which there is agreement is the need for a community building and playground. How and where are questions not so easily answered, but surely there is a way if people persist.

No civic minded persons have offered any site yet for such a purpose, but that is no reason for giving up hope. "Hope springs eternal in the human breast."

Wha' This Country Needs At The Present Time Is A Lot of Good Old-Fashioned American Flag Waving.

Mr. Benj. H. Sincell,
Editor The Republican,
Oakland, Maryland.

Dear Mr. Sincell—It was a pleasure, indeed to read the United States Senate's proclamation that it intends to assume leadership in the restoraration of business and return this Government to American principles. If you haven't read its Ten Point Program, please do.

We have all stood by passively longer than we should have and observed the unpatriotic anti-business demonstrations on the streets of our cities. Picketing by terrible looking characters is permitted without the slightest attempt on the part of the authorities to preserve American rights. Mob scenes instigated, directed and financed, perhaps, by Communists are put on under the designation of the "Death Watch", and "Hunger Brigade" and other such names, which incite to riot. And nothing is done about it.

What this country needs mort than anything else at the present time is a lot of good old-fashioned American flag waving.

Perhaps I am not up-to-date in my thinking or have lost my perspective. Perhaps I don't recognize these conditions as the new standards resulting from our economic evolution. I have tried to have an open mind on this matter of liberal thought but I find, in undertaking it, one must sacrifice one's character, self-respect and patriotism and become an "internationalist";—a person who does not owe allegiance to any country; respects no religious principles and does not see the need to be faithful to a husband or wife.

If that is what we are facing, then God grant that we might find some American Creed to preserve ourselves and that which we created, With a desire to help find that Creed, I offer an excerpt from a speech made many years ago by William Tyler Page:

The American Creed

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable; established upon the principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes.

I, therefore, believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its constitution; to obey its laws, to respect its flag and to defend it against all enemies."

We, at the Hotel Empire, are Americans who believe in this Creed. Our flag flies daily, weather permitting. If you believe in this thought, please write your friends about it.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Copyright by the Baltimore Sun and reprinted in The Republican by special permission.

Paralyzed By Politics

Washington, March 19.

The situation in Europe is so menacing that to a considerable extent it overshadows almost everything else. Certainly the threat to civilization of another great conflict is such as to make discussion of domestic political events seem more or less trivial.

* * *

Nevertheless, the cold fact remains that it is domestic politics which paralyzes the American foreign policy, prevents it from acquiring stability, substance or a clear sense of direction. If this were not true—if our policy were logical and forceful, if it were not twisted by the politicians out of all semblance to an effective instrument, the chances of another great war would be lessened, the hope for peace strengthened.

* * *

It is customary for our governmental and legislative leaders to ignore these facts, but there are few thoughtful men among them who do not privately concede their truth. For example, there is general agreement that in the event of another European conflict, ultimately the United States will be drawn into it, just as surely as in the last war, on the side of Great Britain and France. There are, of course, some persons—though not many—who believe we can preserve so complete a neutrality and achieve such fool-proof isolation that the whole of Europe might go up in flames and leave us untouched.

* * *

However, the overwhelming opinion is that once the war begins, soon or late our active involvement is certain. But even those who cling to the conviction that somehow we might escape active participation concede that there would be no escape for us from economic consequences of a collapsed Europe and that the effect here would be devastating. This being the case—and few deny it—clearly, it is vital to do what we can to prevent the smash from coming over there. Perhaps nothing we can do will aver it, but it seems incredibly unintelligent not to make the effort. It is too plain to argue that the one effective contribution we can make toward this end is thru cooperation with the nations—Great Britain and France—whose purposes parallel our own and with whom, in the event of war, we are certain to be allied. It is too plain to argue that the prospects of peace would be enhanced by joining with them, letting it be known to the world at large and to the aggressor nations in particular, that should war come, the United States will promptly enter on their side. It is plain that that knowledge would reduce the chances of aggressive action from the dictator nations because it would reduce the chances of their getting away with it.

* * *

There has been much criticism at the lack of firmness and force upon the part of Great Britain in dealing with the crisis. Can anyone douht that if it were known that this nation saw eye to eye with Great Britain, that in the event of a war sure to effect us this nation would be found fighting with Great Britain as before—can anyone douht that this would immensely strengthen the British voice and promote a peace almost as vital to us as to her? Can anyone doubt that the weight and power of the forces whose supreme desire is to avoid a conflict would be vastly enhanced? Can any sensible man doubt that there is a better chance for peace this way than any other?

* * *

There would seem little doubt, indeed. Yet, such is the force of the "No Entangling Alliance" appeal, so potent is the power of the "mind our own business" cry, so plausible the argument that we were unnecessarily dragged into the last war, and so gullible are people generally that it has been easy for those who abhor any form of international cooperation to create a sentiment which makes those in power afraid to advocate openly the sort of British-American understanding which they privately know to be the hope of the world. By constant harping upon alleged efforts of the British to have us pull her chestnuts out of the fire, and in other ways, it has been possible to stir up an anti-English prejudice here in a population nearly half of which is of British descent.

--*

Of this prejudice politicians of the Bill Thompson type for years have taken full advantage. It has been promoted by a certain number of sincere men in the Senate and outside. It is an exaggerated prejudice but sufficient to keep those charged with forming and enforcing a national foreign policy from being openly realistic. Even in the Far East, where our interests are identical, and our purposes parallel, and where naval cooperation is a necessity, th eutmost care has to be taken to avoid an appearance of understanding; and there are prompt denials when the charge is made that one exists. Our diplomats abroad have to be especially cautious, as the mere suggestion of an intention to cooperate brings howls of protest from Senate isolationists and the extremely articulate element which holds that any form of international cooperation is wicked—an element which, with its head buried in the sand, believes that nothing that happens in Europe can possibly hurt us, if only we refuse to "mix in their affairs."

* * *

The thing does not make sense. It minimizes the influence we ought to have in world affairs. It prevents us from making our real contribution toward peace. Here is a nation in which the desire to keep out of war is overwhelmiug. Yet, such is the nature of our politics that the men responsible for guiding the country in foreign affairs are prevented from openly adopting the course they know to be best for protecting ourselves. It would be fine to have one of them speak out fearlessly and realistically on the subject. Secretary Cordell Hull came closer to doing it last Thursday than anyone else has come so far.

AUTO "REPAIR RACKET" PARDON MOVE IS STARTED

Ellicott City Barber Seeks Pardon For Four Convicted

Reaching out from a barber shop in Ellicott City, a movement is afoot to seek pardons for three former State policemen and a garage proprietor serving time in a penal institution for conviction of conspiracy to defraud Washington boulevard motorists.

Admitted instigator of the movement is Philip Lauman, Ellicott City barber, and father-in-law of former Sergt. Albert E. Markley, one of the convicted men. Lanman admitted petitions asking the Governor to pardon the men were being circulated.

Convicted and sentenced with Markley on charges of cousppiring to extort money from motorists in a "repair racket" were his former fellow officers John E. Wheeler and John E. Taylor, and John Herbert, Washington Baulevard garage proprietor.

They began serving their terms in Appeals affirming these sentences following convicition in a Howard county court and a later appeal from the court's verdict to the Court of Appeals:

Markley, three years; Wheeler, two years and six months; Herbert, two years, and Taylor, one year.

Charge Called Doubtful

The petition for a pardon circulated by Lauman, read in part:

"Prior to the conviction, the first three named were members of the Maryland State police force, and the last named, an independent business man. Their lives and careers were spotless until stained with the stigma of a doubtful charge of being parties to a conspiracy, in a Maryland court, and evidence the strictest adherence and conformity to the best ideals of American citizenship.

"We believe the theoretical establishment of their offense, which to a host of lay citizens had no establishment in fact, was alone sufficient punishment without the further crushing sentence of imprisonment."

Governor Harry W. Nice said Saturday he would take no action toward clemency for the three imprisoned former members of the State police without recommendations from the judge who sentenced them and the State's Attorney who prosecuted them.

This was the Governor's sole comment on the matter.

State's Attorney Sybert, of Howard county, the prosecutor in the case, in an open letter to the Governor, cited evidence introduced at the trial which showed that the men had been engaged in the extortions for two years and protested any action on the part of the Executive to show clemency.

J. A. Conover, dairy specialist, Extension Department, University of Maryland, spent several days in the county last week inspecting dairy herds.

DISINFECTION NECESSARY WITH CATCHING DISEASES

Much Can Be Done To Prevent Its Spread To Others

If any member of your family or of your household should happen to come down with one of the "catheing" diseases, you can do a great deal, according to Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, to prevent the spread of the disease to others, by careful disinfection of articles used by the person who is ill with, or who is recovering from, such a disease.

"Such articles," Dr. Riley said, "include dishch, drinking glasses, knives, forks, spoons, other utensils, wash cloths, towels, bedding, clothing and other personal articles used by the child or grown-up who is ill. The walls and floors of the room occupied during the illness, require special care also.

"Two kinds of disinfectant are specified," Dr. Riley said, "in the State Regulations for the Control of Communicable Diseases—concurrent and terminal. 'Concurrent' means the sort of disinfectant that must be carried on continuously—day by day—during the course of the disease. Terminal disinfection, as the name implies, comes at the end of the illness, after the patient is up and out again.

"Day by day disinfection includes boiling the dishes and other table utensils used by the one who is ill, after each meal. Boiling the towels, wash cloths, sheets, pillow cases and clothing of the one who is ill, in plenty of hot water and strong soap, before laundering, and keeping them separate from the supplies used by the rest of the family, come under the same heading.

"In diseases in which discharges from the nose or throat are sources of danger to others, soft paper handkerchiefs are a great convenience because they can be readily disposed of, or hurnt up, after they have served their purpose. Diseases of this sort include influenza, colds, sore throat, pneumonia, tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles, whooping cough and other children's diseases.

"In typhoid fever and similar diseases in which the discharges from the digestive tract are sources of infection, the regulations specify that such discharges must be carefully sterilized by the use of some chemical before they are disposed of. This precaution must be carried out day by day, also."

For the final—the terminal—disinfection of rooms, floors, walls, bedding, clothing and other personal articles used or worn in the sick room, Dr. Riley said that nothing better has been discovered, so far, than scrubbing walls and floors with plenty of hot water and soap, sterilizing sheets, bedding, covers, blankets, and other articles, by boiling, and by letting in plenty of sunshine and fresh air.

"SAWDUST TRAIL" TO BE PRESENTED BY GLEE CLUB

Operetta Formerly Presented With Success Under Title "Rings in The Sawdust"

The Oakland High School Glee Club will present a two-act operetta, "The Sawdust Trail," the first week after Easter.

Several years ago the same operetta, under the name of "Rings in the Sawdust," was presented in the O. H. S. auditorium with great success. During the space of time from then until now, many requests have been received by Mrs. Brown, Glee Club instructor, to repeat the performance. Deciding that there was not time to practice and produce succesfully the operetta, "The Mikndo," which had been given very serious thought, Mrs. Brown announced yesterday that "Rings in the Sawdust," masquerading under its new title, "Sawdust Trail," would be the forthcoming operetta in place of "The Mikado." The characters already having been selected, practice will begin at once.

The play is in the hands of a good cast, which includes Toby Dunn, Jas. Chisholm; Sally Squeezum, Millie Lamhert; Mrs. Jaybird, Lucille Harvey; Banker Squeezum, Norris Crites; Miss Eliza Slimmer, Helen Peck; Willie Jaybird, James Williams; Inky, Oliver Bowers; Dinky, Claude Bowers.

There are four choruses: An Irish colleen chorus, an old-maid chorus, Hottentot chorus and a Circus Hand chorus.

The action of the play takes place in a small town somewhere in the United States on a circus day. The story is that of the love of a rich banker's daughter and a poor (but honest) circus manager. The affair is looked upon disapprovingly by the banker, who in turn, is being pursued by a gay widow.

A mortgage, two hired men, a mischievous brat and a sour old maid all and to the spice and mystery of the play.

Mr. Luman's tumbling club will provide entertainment between the acts.

Maryland's Governor Announces Definite Policy Despite What Has Been Done In Years Of Fiscal Stringency

From time to time Governor Nice has discussed in the columns of Maryland newspapers various aspects of his administration. This is the third article dealing with phases of State finances.

By HARRY W. NICE
Governor of Maryland

I am positively and unalterably opposed to a policy for Maryland of diverting gasoline and automobile income from highway uses. I say this for two reasons.

First, I believe that it is the opinion of a large majority of our citizens that the taxes and fees levied upon automobile drivers and owners should be used for the purpose originally intended.

Secondly, the State roads system in Maryland cannot afford to have a dollar deducted from the funds intended for the building and maintenance of the highways of our State.

Diverted In Other States

This definite statement of policy is made in the face of what has been done in Maryland for six years of fiscal stringency, and well knowing that many State governments are committed to a permanent program of diversion of automobile income.

The tax is one of the least expensive to collect and the almost universal use of motor vehicles indicates a fair and equable spread of the burden. Florida has, for a long time, built and maintained its entire public school system from "gas" tax money. New York diverts approximately half of its motor vehicles collections to general government purposes. Many States are using the taxes collected from the motorist for emergency relief or other fiscal necessities.

While the use of one dedicated fund government function in cases of an or another to the support of some emergency is, after it has been legally enacted by the representatives of the people, not a high crime and misdemeanor, I still maintain that Maryland's road income should be used on the roads.

Cites Ritchie Action

There is no doubt but that the late Governor Ritchie, when he first proposed the diversion of highway funds to other than highway purposes, felt that he was acting for the best interests of the people of Maryland. General Treasury income had been decreasing when, in 1933, Governor Ritchie presented his biennial budgets to the Legislature.

In those budgets he proposed to divert to the General Treasury the sums resulting from budget cuts in the highway departments in order to present a balanced budget to the General Assembly. Governor Ritchie also proposed a diversion of highway funds to the annuity bond account to compensate for a 3-cent property tax rate reduction.

Proposed Tax On Retail Sales

At that time Governor Ritchie saw the necessity for indirect tax levies and proposed to the Legislature taxes on the retail sales of:

	Estimated to yield
Cigarettes	$1,125,000
Soft drinks	1,631,000
Cigars	490,900
Smoking tobacco	489,300
Chewing gum	326,200
Total	$4,062,400

He also suggested an increase in the tax on pari-mutual betting and added:

> Other commodities should also be considered and studied as possible subjects for special taxation.

These indirect taxes were not levied and no restoration made. In spite of Governor Ritchie's diversion of highway funds to the General Treasury and to the annuity bond fund, the end of the 1934-1935 biennium approached with the State Treasury surplus gone, a threatened deficit of $2,300,000, and an indicated shortage of $500,000 in the annuity bond fund.

Balancing The Budget

This was the situation when I took office, and even after severely cutting the already drastically reduced allowances for departments and agencies of the State, the General Treasury income had fallen away to such an extent that there was no other alternative than to continue the device of using highway funds to effect a budgetary balance.

In so doing I carried in mind the fact that Governor Ritchie's recommendations for additional indirect taxation had not been accepted, and this made it incumbent on me temporarily to use current income from any available source rather than make an unbalanced budget presentation with an already created Treasury deficit incorporated therein.

Urged More Indirect Taxes

I recommended, as Governor Ritchie had done, additional indirect taxes to make restorations for drastic cuts and transfers. In my message to the Legislature of 1935, I said:

> In view of the fact that additional revenues must be raised through new taxation, I recommend that provision be made out of such revenues for the establishment of an emergency reserve fund of $500,000 for each of the years, 1936 and 1937, to be placed under the control and jurisdiction of the Board of Public Works and to be used for those State agencies which may be unable to maintain essential services. . . .
>
> . . . As you are aware, no appropriation bills can be considered until the budget bill has been finally acted upon by both Houses.
>
> Revenue measures, however, may be considered at once, in order that such additional expenditures as you may prescribe may be incorporated in the supplemental budget.

Partial Restoration Made

Partial restoration of diverted highway funds was made by the Legislature of 1935 from a bond issue and not from additional indirect taxes which I advocated, and thereby there was restored to the highway departments over $2,000,000 of the transferred funds.

This was the first time that a transfer of highway funds had been replaced, and I was greatly relieved that my proposed temporary use of highway income had served its intended purpose of balancing the budget and, even though not by the method that I recommended, over two millions of dollars of transfers had been restored.

When the State budgets were compiled for presentation to the 1937 Legislature a similar situation presented itself. A makeshift and unsound method used by the Legislature in restoring funds for highway and other uses to the State budget in 1935 had stopped the gap for only two years and we were faced again with the situation by reason of the refusal of the Legislature to consider levying of indirect taxes for General Treasury purposes recommended by Governor Ritchie in 1933 and again advocated by me in 1935.

Needs "Extremely Urgent"

The needs of the State departments and agencies had become extremely urgent under the curtailments of the previous four years.

On the one hand we were faced with the imminent possibility of trouble at our penal institutions arising from the psychological effect of enforced idleness; with the threat to the public welfare in not being able to care for the growing waiting list of mental cases, some a menace to their communities; with the enforced neglect of our Negro tuberculars with the attendant danger to the public health; with harm to the education of our children through the depletion of a competent teaching force as the result of inadequate compensation; and with the lowering of the efficiency in the functioning of the Government through the loss of personnel among qualified classified service employes.

Road Program Inadequate

On the other hand, we had the continuation of a lamentably inadequate program of road construction, a curtailment which in itself bids fair to become a contributing factor in the increase of highway accidents. All could not be served with the available fiscal resources.

I balanced the budget by continuation of highway transfers to avoid the hazard of an unbalanced budget presentation, and recommended emphatically and insisted upon the immediate restoration to the State roads budget of the temporarily transferred funds. I said:

> No one is more conscious of the regrettable nature of the necessity of such direction of funds. It is in direct conflict with my oft-repeated opposition to such executive action and in again taking such action, I am fully conscious of the unfairness toward the State agencies from which I am making these transfers. Nothing short of the stern necessity such as faced my predecessor and as now forces me to continue his policy would have impelled me now to take such drastic action.
>
> I recommend the restoration to highway uses of the transfers made necessary to balance the general fund budget and strengthen the annuity bond fund.
>
> I express the hope that you will make restoration to the highways as the fundamental and outstanding basis in any adequate construction program. Of all recommendations made and to be made by me, I regard this as the most urgent and important.

Suggested List Of Levies

And I suggested a list of indirect tax levies from which to make restoration. The Legislature in substance approved the State budget which I submitted, making only minor reductions in the allowances, but, on the other hand, while approving of the State Government setup as it stands and recognizing the necessity for operating it efficiently, they have consistently refused to levy taxes in support of it.

The only recourse open, first to Governor Ritchie and then to myself, was to present budgets balanced by the transfer of dedicated funds. Drastic curtailment had been tried, but it is impossible properly to operate the Government of the State of Maryland as legally established on the allowances of the budgets presented in 1933 and 1935, and certainly not without new sources of general treasury revenue. On January 2, 1935, Governor Ritchie said, in reference to budget cuts:

Cites Ritchie Again

> In considering further reductions, care must be exercised in view of these reductions already made to see whether additional ones might go so deep as to affect or impair necessary public services . . . If it is demonstrated that expenditures cannot be reduced sufficiently to make up the prospective deficit, it will then be in order to consider new or increased revenues for the purpose.

This was Governor Ritchie's parting recommendation to the Legislature after his own long experience with budgets and his experience in diverting funds.

My own policy has been consistently along the same line, but, being faced with a condition requiring, on the one hand, certain minimum services from the State, and, on the other hand, inadequate treasury income, rather than present a pre-instituted deficit, I chose to protect the Treasury of Maryland and the credit of the State by a temporary transfer of available funds, recommending their immediate restoration from indirect taxes.

I know that this device has been used for the best interest of the people of Maryland, and the fact remains that restoration was made to the State Roads Commission of a considerable part of the diversions of 1935 and similarly a temporary transfer again used in 1937 has, to a great extent, been restored to the use of the highways.

Predicts Hard Problem

I have felt, and still believe, that it is the solemn responsibility of the Governor in all his fiscal proposals that the solvency of the general treasury and the credit of the State shall not be impaired.

As pointed ont by me in November, the one who presents the next State budgets to the Legislature of 1939 will have a hard problem with which to cope. The law passed last year preventing a diversion of highway income to the State Treasury will necessitate an unbalanced budget presentation. If this is what the people of the State desire, their General Assembly must assume the responsibility.

I believe that the integrity of the Treasury of the State of Maryland is a matter close to the hearts of any right-thinking electorate, and I have acted in the emergency to uphold this sound business priciple.

The general fund budget is balanced. The Treasury has had a comfortable increase in surplus since October 1, 1935, and, from authoritative estimates, we are solvent for two more years.

Open Letter To A Driver Who Speeds Through Our Street

I saw you barely miss a little boy on a tricycle this afternoon and heard you yell, "Get the H--- out of the way! Don't you know any better than to ride in the street?" He didn't answer because he hasn't learned to talk very well yet. So I'm going to answer for him.

No, the little boy doesn't know any better than to ride his tricycle in the street. He has been warned not to, but little boys don't always heed warnings. Some adults don't either, especially traffic warnings; for example, the one limiting the speed of automobiles.

I'm going to tell you something about that little boy. He has a mother who endured considerable inconvenience, anxiety and suffering to bring him into the world. He has a father who has worked hard and made many sacrifices to make him healthy and happy. The supreme purpose of their lives is to have their little boy grow up to be a useful man.

Now stop a minute and think. If you should kill a child, how would you feel facing its parents? What excuse could you give them for having robbed them of their dearest possession? More important: What excuse could you possibly offer Him whose Kingdom is made up of little children?

Children, my hasty friend, were here long before you or your automobiles were thought of. All the automobiles on earth are not worth the life of one little boy. We don't know what that little boy may some day be. But we know what you are, and it's unimportant. We could get along without you, but we can't spare a single little boy on this street.

Famine Ahead

The new farm regimentation scheme invites the coming of the day when for the first time in our national history there will not be enough food in the United States to go around. When that time comes the rascals who perpetrated the scheme will be cursed for the crime they have committed, but they may be out of reach.

One Of The "100"

I have just received a very important letter. It puts me in the "400," the socially prominent of the nation.

The letter offered me the opportunity of being included in the social directory of the United States in which will appear data regarding persons prominently active in social circles in each of 400 cities. There are to be 400 families chosen in each of the 400 cities.

The letter said I was chosen because after due care and upon verified information the publishers decided that my family was one of the 400 families outstanding and socially prominent in Oakland.

There wasn't going to be any charge for this listing—except $2.50 or more for a copy of the book.

Of course, that was the catch. Oakland, with a population of about 1700, would be lucky if 400 families could be found in it.

That would be some racket if 400 families in 400 cities fell for that line at the total of $2.50 each. And yet, it is my guess that many "suckers" will be found.

At the risk of losing my social standing, I'm afraid I'll have to refuse their invitation.

Down in Cumberland the other day a relief client drove up to the Court House proudly displaying his 1938 license tags. The man hadn't worked for many months but he operates his car daily and apparently enjoys his compulsory idleness.

Lots of people with regular jobs can't afford to get their tags yet. Myhe we'd all better get on relief.

MT. LAKE PARK

Work At M. E. Church Completed

Of interest to all in the Park is that a great job has been completed at the Methodist church. The building has been entirely renovated and repaired. A rather disquieting rumor has reached us to the effect that the Baltimore Epworth League convention will not be held here this summer, but will go to Westminster instead. If it is true, then it is bad news indeed. While this organization is not a rich one those who belong to it did spend considerable money in the Park and in addition brought some fine things for our people.

Mrs. Page Gibbons and Miss Gertrude Hays, of Morgantown, were at Allenhurst on Monday.

Bushrod Grimes, Morgantown, was a business visitor here this week.

Mrs. Viola Lockwood and son Amzi, of Lancaster, Pa., are guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. Oscar Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. William Montgomery, of Sewickley, Pa., spent Saturday in the Park with Dr. and Mrs. Blake Love.

Friday night at 7:30 in the basement of the Methodist church there is going to be a right big time. The Women's Bible class will hold its regular monthly meeting and immediately afterward will sponsor an old-fashioned last day at school with A. T. White as master of ceremonies. There will be recitations and songs, dialogs and then to finish it right a spelling match will be held. Everyone will provide himself with a lunch in an old-fashioned dinner pail.

One-Third of Soil Conservation Checks Have Been Received

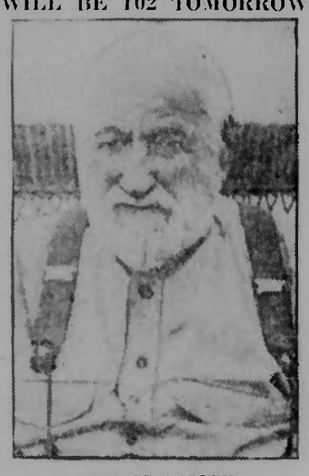
Approximately one-third of the checks to Garrett county farmers, reimbursing them for participating in the 1937 soil conservation program, have been received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent, it was announced this morning. The checks have been received for 287 participants. The amount totals $12,391.12.

Mr. Carter emphasized that the parties would be notified by personal letter when their checks were ready for distribution, and that it would be necessary to bring the letter to the designated places for identification before the checks would be released. Most of the checks are for amounts ranging from $20 to $40. A few will get approximately $100, and one man has a check for $240. Several will get $1 or less.

There were 900 applications for payment under the 1937 program and more checks are expected each day until the total amount has been received. Garrett county farmers will have received approximately $35,000 when all checks are distributed.

An addition to White's Garage and Service Station, at the north end of Third street, has been under way for the past two weeks. The addition will be about 30 by 40 feet and of stone construction. The first floor will be used for storage purposes, while it is planned to use the second floor for an apartment.

WILL BE 102 TOMORROW



GEORGE MARLEY

To Celebrate 102nd Birthday Anniversary Tomorrow

George Marley, Garrett county's oldest resident, will celebrate the one hundred and second anniversary of his birth tomorrow, April 1, at his home in Deer Park. A dinner is being arranged for relatives and close friends.

The celebration will be rather quiet this year, however, as Mr. Marley has been ill for the past week. His four children will be with him, Mrs. Henry Wilhelm, Gary, Ind.; Mrs. D. R. Hinebaugh, Mrs. Robert Thrasher and George Marley, Jr., all of Deer Park; and his sister, Mrs. Rebecca Cook, of Columbus, O., is also expected. Mr. Marley became reunited with his sister in September, 1936, whom he had not seen for 78 years.

He was born in Stockton, England, in 1836 and came to this country as the Civil War was breaking out. He settled in Deer Park in 1866.

POTOMAC RIVER BRIDGE RATED UNSAFE; IS CLOSED

Span Between Bloomington And Beryl Barred To Motor Traffic

The steel bridge across the Potomac river from Bloomington to Beryl, W. Va., was closed to vehicular traffic Sunday hy joint action of the Maryland and West Virginia State Road Commissions. The bridge is showing the strain from the constant use of heavy coal trucks and is declared unsafe for traffic. As the bridge is an interstate one, joint action will be necessary by the two commissions for its repair or replacement. Plans are now being considered.

The bridge is a single span and is a steel overhead arch type. It is one of three spans of an old bridge that years ago joimed Piedmont and Westernport at the site of the present interstate bridge.

The West Virginia State Roads Commission has a number of men at work scraping and otherwise repairing the road from Beryl to the Piedmont-Elk Garden road, this being the only practical route now open between Piedmont and Beryl.

Program For "Open House" At Swallow Falls Completed

The program for the celebration of the fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Civilian Conservation Corpse by Company 301, at Swallow Falls State Forest, near Oakland, on Sunday, April 4, is virtually completed.

Arrangements are being made by the commanding officer, Capt. R. S. Isiminger, for a corps of guides to show the camp and projects. The general public is invited to visit the camp, the Swallow Falls State Forest and the Herrington Manor project upon which the company is working.

Barracks and camp buildings will he opened for inspection and, weather permitting, transportation will be furnished from the camp to Herrington Manor for those who desire to inspect the project.

In order that as many as possible may have the opportunity to see Washington at a most inviting season, the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will again operate a low rate excursion from West Virginia and Maryland points on Saturday and Sunday, April 9 and 10, to Washington. Trains will arrive in Washington early Sunday morning, permitting a full day for sightseeing and visiting. The Japanese cherry trees will be in full bloom, and there will be many other things to see.

EX-SENATOR BEALL GIVEN ROAD BOARD APPOINTMENT

Allegany Countian Put on Commission to Fill Vacancy Created By Death of Nice Wilkinson

WELL KNOWN IN GARRETT

Governor Nice on Monday announced the appointment of former Senator J. Glenn Beall, of Frostburg, to the State Roads Commission to fill the vacancy caused by the death of C. Nice Wilkinson, of Cumberland.

The announeement stated:

"Senator Beall is a high type, and an outstanding citizen of the State of Maryland. He served in the Maryland Senate as a representative from Allegany county during the sessions from 1930 to 1934. He was selected twice by the citizens of Allegany county to the board of local road directors, in 1923 and 1926, serving as chairman for three years and during that time more hard surface roads were built in that county than during any other period.

Served On Committees

"As a Senator, he served on the Roads and Highways Committee, as well as being a member of the Senate Finance Committee.

"The roads commission for Allegany county was abolished in 1931, when the Legislature placed county roads partly under State control. He had had, therefore, a very intimate and practical knowledge of road building and I am convinced he will bring to the State Roads Commission a seasoned judgment and conscientious devotion to duty.

County Represented

"Allegany county has been represented on the State Roads Commission since the commission was created, having had as members Andrew Ramsey, of Mount Savage; G. Clinton Uhl, W. W. Brown and C. Nice Wilkinson. The county is therefore entitled to a continued representation and especially in vie wof the fact that next year the commission must be divided, one from Western Maryland, one from Baltimore City and one from the Eastern Shore."

Senator Beall is married and has three sons. He is a Republican, a member of the American Legion and the Protestant Episcopal church. He is well known to the people of Garrett county, and his appointment will no doubt meet with the favor of most everyone in this section.

Counties Face Deficit in Roads Funds for Year

On the basis of latest available State Roads Commission funds statements more than half of Maryland's counties will finish the current fiscal year with deficits in their lateral roads accounts totaling more than $75,000. Garrett county was included.

Should all obligations incurred fall due immediately the statement showed that all 23 counties and Baltimore City as well would show heavy shortages, but that the application of anticipated revenues to obligations will leave 11 counties and the city with favorable balances on September 30, the end of the fiscal period.

Deficits anticipated, despite application of expected revenues, included Garrett, $351; Allegany, $36,634.

The balance sheet showed total obligations of the State Roads Commission amounted to $7,927,061. With anticipated revenues of $16,396,631 to apply against these obligations, the commission had $8,469,570 available for expenditure up to next September 30.

An all-day conference for Girl Scout leaders and troop committee members of lone troops in Allegany and Garrett counties, will be held in Oakland on April 9, in the Oakland High school auditorium. A fifty-cent luncheon will be served in the Home Economics building. Anyone interested is asked to make reservations with Mrs. Julius Littman by April 7.

ONE-TEACHER SCHOOLS IN STATE ARE DISAPPEARING

State Superintendent Says Units Have Been Reduced Three-Fourths

The steady march of school consolidntions in Maryland has reduced the number of one-teacher schools by more than three-fourths in the last eighteen years, Dr. Albert S. Cook, State Superintendent of Schools, reported.

Dr. Cook made public figures showing that there were 283 one-teacher schools when the present school year began, as compared with 1,171 in 1920.

Lower Cost Claimed

There were 7,838 white pupils in one-teacher schools during the 1936-37 school year, which was 7.4 per cent of the total white elementary enrollment. Dr. Cook said the consolidation of schools, even though it involved the expense of transporting pupils by bus, has brought a lowering in the per pupil cost of instruction. It costs $52.41 per year to instruct the average county pupil in a one-room school, as against $47.20 in graded county schools.

Garrett county still has the most one-room schools, with a total of fifty-six. Washington county has thirty-six. Baltimore and Caroline counties have no one-teacher schools. Anne Arundel and Calvert have one ench.

Garrett County Furnishes $393.34 in State Income Tax

On the basis of receipts totaling $678,006.30, in payment of the Maryland one-half of one percent Income tax, Garrett county furnished $391.34, it was announced. Baltimore county led the counties with $46,090.78. Montgomery county was second, and Washington county, third. The lowest county payment, $172.87, was received from residents of St. Mary's county.

The total amount came from the tabulation of 32,942 returns. Approximately 30,000 returns remained to be classified and tabulated. Officials said it was too early to make an estimate on whether the tax would bring in the $1,500,000 contemplated by the Legislature.

No Action Taken About Church; Another Meeting Called

No definite action as to the fnte of the Garrett Memorial Presbyterian church, closed since 1935, was taken at a meeting of members of the congregation on last Sunday afternoon, but members will continue the discussion of their problem on Sunday, April 24. About thirty-five members attended Sunday's meeting, which was in charge of the Rev. William E. Brooks, Morgantown, W. Va., and others, named by the Presbytery of Grafton.

Rev. Packard, besides being active in church work in this community, has been scoutmaster of Oakland Troop No. 1 since last July, and has built up the troop to a total of 41 members.

He will deliver his last sermon here on Wednesday, April 6, at the Union Lenten Service, and will leave the next day for his home.

It was stated a student would probably be sent here during the summer months to assist Rev. Trimble in his parish work.

The Board of State Aid and Charities has approved Maryland's relief program for the next three months, with the total cost of the period set at $1,645,373, according to Samuel E. Shannahan, chairman.

The figure compared with a $1,605,958 allocation to the counties and Baltimore city for the quarter ending March 31.

The board approved estimates of $916,765 for old age pensions; $688,618 for dependent children aid, $40,988 for aid to needy blind. The new budgets cover the period from April 1 to June 30.

All allocations were based on estimates of need by county and city welfare authorities. Garrett county will receive $32,114.09.

Home Robbed At Altamont

The summer home of Henry Reithmiller, near Altamont, was robbed last Friday evening of household furnishings, including lamps, silverware, linens, dishes and other articles.

County officers were notified and a complete investigation is now under way by Sheriff Spear and other officers. Mr. Reithmiller resides at Sewickley, Pa., and came here to remain over the week-end, and when he opened the house discovered that several of the rooms had been ransacked.

A caretaker had been in the building a day previous and had noticed things out of place, but nothing missing so far as he knew, so it is supposed the robber returned on Friday evening to complete the thieving.

Investigates Deer Killing

Investigation into the killing of deer in Garrett county is now under way, according to Joseph A. Minke, district deputy game warden, of Cumberland. Three weeks ago a doe, carrying two small fawns, was found dead in the county, while on Monday the intestines, hide and head of a doe were discovered on Negro mountain.

Extra game wardens are to be provided in the county in an effort to track down the deer killers, Mr. Minke stated.

GAS TANK EXPLODES AND CAUSES DISASTROUS FIRE

Ernest Townshend, Jr., Seriously Burned In Blaze At Garage Of Sharps Motor Company

TWO OTHER FIRES OCCUR

Two men were burned, one seriously and the other painfully, on Monday afternoon when a gasoline tank in the repair shop of the Sharps Motor Company's garage on Third street, exploded, setting fire to the building and destroying four automobiles on the floor of the shop. Damage was estimated at $5,000 or more.

Ernest Townshend, Jr., mechanic employed by the Sharps concern, was seriously burned about his face, hands and legs when the exploding liquid spattered over him setting his clothing on fire. Townshend attempted to escape the flames by running to the outside of the buildiug. As he passed Claude Friend, another mechanic employed in the shop, Friend doused him with a tub of water, quenching the fire consuming his clothing.

Edwin Michael, another mechanic, who was engnged in another part of the building, suffered burns about his face and was near exhaustion, having stayed in the structure until the flames had been extinguished by the local fire company.

While the building was badly damaged by the fire, some parts of it, through the efforts of the local firemen, and saved almost intact. As the firemen worked to get the blaze under control, a number of volunteers entered the two wings of the garage and were able to roll to safety fifteen or more automobiles, several of them being new or of late design. The blaze was difficult to fight as the structure was made of wood and dense clouds of smoke arose from the roof, made of composition, when the flames finally got into the roof timbers. The loss is said to have been covered by insurance.

A temporary office has been set up in the showroom, which escaped serious damage, where business is being conducted.

It was a day of activity for the Oakland Fire Department. No sooner had the garage fire been brought under control than a second alarm was turned in from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul DeWitt, just north of town. A grass fire was getting out of control but this was quickly extinguished by members of the department.

The firemen were called again at six o'clock to put out a blaze at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Cosner, on Third street and south of the Little Yough River. A grass fire had spread to the home and the blaze had communicated itself in the frame work between the weatherboarding and the studding. The firemen soon located the source of the fire and put out the flames. It was necessary, however, before this was done, to remove a portion of the outside of the structure. The damage resultant was comparatively light.

Civic Club Officers All Re-elected At Tuesday Meeting

All officers of the Oakland Civic club were re-elected at the regular meeting of that organization on Tuesday afternoon. The officers include Miss Lottie M. Loar, president; Mrs. Arthur Naylor, vice-president; Mrs. W. W. Grant, treasurer; Mrs. J. B. Littman, secretary; Mrs. H. H. Harned, assistant.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Naylor, vice-president. Nine resolutions were acted upon to be sent to the meeting of the General Federation to be held in Kansas City in May.

Mrs. Harned, educational chairman, was in charge of the program when the article by Dorothy Thompson, "Isms," was reviewed, followed by a general discussion. Miss Loar gave her report on the year's activities.

The meeting was held in the Home Economics building of the local High school.

BIRTH CERTIFICATE MAY BE NEEDED TO PROVE AGE

Important Where Legal Proof Of Identity Is Required

Have you ever had occasion to find out whether your birth was duly registered? If you should need to establish your identity, to prove that you are of age and an American citizen, to establish your right to an inheritance, to vote, to take out insurance papers, to substantiate your claims to property rights, or for other purposes for which legal proof of identity, based upon official records, is required, are you sure you could produce the necessary copy of your birth certificate?

These are some of the questions asked by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, to illustrate the importance of the birth record to the individual, and the possibilities of irreparable loss or great inconvenience, to the person whose birth has not been duly and accurately recorded.

The State Department of Health, Dr. Riley explained, is the final custodian of the records of births and deaths in the State. Responsibility for reporting births rests primarily with the physician, midwife or others in attendance, but it is shared with the parents or others with knowledge of the circumstances. The law requires every birth to be reported within four days. Blank forms on which this is to be done are supplied to physicians and midwives, and to hospitals or other institutions in which births may occur. The records are transmitted to the State Department of Health through the local registrars, and are checked and filed, provisionally, by the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

Within a short time after the report of the physician or midwife has been received, a copy of the records is sent to the parents, who are asked to check it up for accuracy and completeness of information, and to return it for permanent filing in the Department. Very great responsibility rests upon the parents at this point, Dr. Riley said, for reviewing the record carefully, to see that the given name of the child, sex and color, the date and place of birth, the full name of mother and father, and the name of the physician or midwife in attendance, are correctly and legibly stated. Very often the necessary information is lacking, and the record has to be sent back to be corrected or completed.

Birth registration, Dr. Riley added, serves a double purpose. It is not only of the utmost importance, legally, to the individual, but it is equally so to the State from the standpoint of public health administration. The State must know how many babies are born, and where, and how many die, and the causes of deaths among them, in order that the necessary protective measures may be put into effect. Accordingly, it is for the best interests of both the individual and the State for every birth to be promptly and accurately reported.

In many parts of Maryland, people are "birth registration" conscious; in other sections, the situation is less favorable. In every part of the State every possible effort is made to have the registration of this State one hundred per cent complete.

THURSDAY, MARCH 31, 1938

OF PARTICULAR NOTE—

Of particular notice at the serious fire Monday afternoon when for a time it looked like the building of the Sharps Motor Company and all its contents would be entirely destroyed, was the valuable assistance rendered by every other garage owner in town, and several of their workmen.

Of course, there shouldn't be any reason why they wouldn't help, but if they hadn't wanted to help they wouldn't have had to be on the scene. They worked hard in getting the supply of new and used cars out of the building, and doing all they could to help.

There were others who helped too, and when there is work to be done at a fire the people of Oakland and surrounding communities never shirk. There was plenty of cooperation on Monday.

Members of the Oakland Fire Department did their usual prompt and efficient service, as only the Oakland firemen can do it.

WHY BIRTH REGISTRATION IS CONSIDERED IMPORTANT

Authoritative Copies of Birth Records Needed In Many Cases

The wide range of uses for which authoritative copies of birth records are now required, is indicated by some of the sources from which endorsement of the campaign now under way for more complete birth registration in Mnryland, has been received by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health.

Departments of State and Federal government, lay and professional organizations, have indicated keen interest and have expressed cordial approval of the undertaking. The importance of the authentic birth record to the individual has been emphasized by the Social Security Board, the Passport Division of the Federal Department of State, the Railroad Retirement Board, the Maryland Board of State Aid and Charities, and other agencies.

The use of the birth certificate as evidence of citizenship, as proof of age and parentage was pointed out by Dr. Virgil D. Reed, acting director of the Federal Bureau of the Census as follows: "It has been said that, 'A birth certificate is baby's first citizenship papers.' This statement is literally true. In fact, a properly filled birth certificate is an unquestionable proof of citizenship and also is generally accepted proof of age and parentage. These important facts about birth registration should be known by every person in the country."

In outlining the purpose of the Maryland Campaign, Dr. Riley said that the State law requires all births to be reported within four days after their occurrence, by the physician or midwife in attendance, or in the absence of such service by the parents or other responsible persons. He pointed out that such a record, for each individual, is a necessity from the public health standpoint, to enable the health authorities to know how many children are born in the State, when, where, and to whom, and how many survive, in order that the necessary health protective measures may be instituted without delay.

"Uniform requirements are in force throughout the country," Dr. Riley continued, "with regard to the information contained on the official birth certificate, and those records which meet the State and Federal requirements are accepted as legal evidence of identity, age, cltizenship, nationality, legitimacy, to establish property rights, and for other purposes for which such proof is required.

"As these items indicate, the birth record is, and has always been, of great importance to the individual. Since the beginning of the World War, when decisions with regard to nationality hinged in thousands of cases upon birth records, such records have been required to a greater and greater degree for many other purposes.

"Surveys have been made from time to time by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health and the Federal Bureau of the Census, to ascertain whether or not those who are responsible for filing such records in Maryland are meeting these obligations. Such surveys have shown that the proportion of unregistered births in the counties of Maryland, ranges from two percent of the total in some counties to ten or possibly more in other sections.

"This indicates a total of about a thousand unregistered births every year. The omissions are usually due to oversight or to misunderstanding of the requirements. Whenever a birth is registered by the State Department of Health a copy of the record is sent to the parents, by whom it should be very carefully kept for future need."

IN DAYS OF OLD

FORTY YEARS AGO

The establishment of a creamery in Oakland was almost assured. The Dunlap laundry property on Oak street was secured to house the new business. W. S. Dunlap planned to move his laundry machinery to Cumberland and embark in the business there.

George Warnick and Hug Dellinger, Bloomington, both chosen on the Garrett county jury, sustained fractured bones which incapacitated them from service. Mr. Warnick, while attempting to stop his runaway horses was thrown against fence and fell under the wheels of the wagon and he sustained a broken arm when the vehicle passed over it. Mr. Dellinger sustained a compound fracture of the leg. He was engaged in trailing logs. One of them slipped just as he was passing over a bridge and fearing the piece of timber would roll on him he jumped from the bridge into the bed of the stream.

A shingle mill in the Blue Lick Valley, near Pea Ridge, had resumed operations.

A minstrel show was planned for the benefit of the Oakland band, under the leadership of Professor Barker.

A concern in Philadelphia was advertising free homes in North Dakota—160 acres of land free to every applicant; no taxes for seven years.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The tax schedule for assessing live stock included: Work horses, $100; ordinary cows, $40; purebred cows, $60; cattle, coming three years old, $35; sows, $25; ewes, $10.

Julius C. Renninger, of Oakland, was elected grand prelate of the Knights of Pythias of the State of Maryland.

The price of eggs dropped suddenly from 50 cents to 40 cents per dozen.

Packages of government garden seeds, forwarded to The Republican office by Senator France for distribution in the county, were received.

Francis Gander, who returned to Oakland after prospecting for gold for three or four years in the west, purchased the stock of the Oakland Auto Supply Company in the Ravenscroft building and planned to carry on the business.

A. E. Harned spoke to high school students on "Working Under Difficulties," indicating the poorly lighted and poorly ventilated building.

Julius Renninger, Jr., was also in the news that week, suffering a dislocated thumb which he sustained when he fell from the running board of a moving Maxwell car.

SIXTY-FIVE PERMITS TO WED ISSUED IN TWO WEEKS

First Day Of Spring Beckons But 2 Applicants; 1 Refused

Sixty-five marriage licenses were issued during the past two weeks ending Monday afternoon from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, bringing the total for March thus far to 131. This number is already 14 greater than for the entire month of March last year, and makes a total of 271 thus far during 1938. For the first three months of 1937 only 198 permits were granted.

The first day of spring, Monday, March 21, found only one successful applicant appearing, although another couple made the attempt. Youthfulness of one of the contracting parties, however, caused a refusal.

Thirteen of those issued this week were granted on Saturday. The total of the Saturday previous was ten. Seven licenses issued were marked not to be published, while two applicants were refused.

IN COMMEMORATION AND RESPECT OF BRISON JOSEPH ROBERTS DEHEAVER, WHO DIED APRIL 2, 1937.

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice I love is stilled;
A place is vacant in my home
Which none can ever fill.

God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon His love has given,
And though your body moulders here
The soul is safe in heaven.

'Tis hard to break the cord
Where love has bound the heart;
'Tis hard, so hard, to greet thee
We must forever part.

Yet again I hope to see thee,
When the day of life is fled,
And in heaven with joy to meet thee
Where no farewell tear is shed.

FUNNY LOVE LETTERS

12 OF THEM IN ALL SET
Korkers, each and every one of them—enough to make a mule laugh, but they are vulgar—just rip roarin' from start to finish—that's THESE LOVE LETTERS ARE SO WORDED THAT EACH ONE READS TWO WAYS, SO YOU WILL REALLY HAVE 24 DANDY LETTERS TO READ.

First, read just as printed, and you'll say that they're about the best bunch of real honest-to-goodness love letters you ever got acquainted with.

Next, read again, skipping every other line, and you'll find all the mush candy stuff suddenly turned to vinegar, and you'll laugh until folks think you've gone crazy.

Just nonsense? Yes, that's all, but the korkingest line of nonsense ever invented. As each set of letters reads two ways you'll have 24 letters to read, so if you intend reading them all at one sitting I would suggest taking out some life insurance, for I will not be responsible for those who knock themselves to death. Every letter neatly printed. Set of 12 letters by mail postpaid, 25 cents. Address J. F. ROBERTS, Confluence, Pa.

DIAMOND

The Birthstone For April

The Diamond derives its name from the Greek "Adamantos", meaning adamant, no doubt due to its superior hardness—being 110 times as hard as a ruby or sapphire.

Diamonds are the most sought for of all the gem stones and is known as the "King Gem."

It is the emblem of fearlessness and invincibility. Astrologically it comes under the Heart sign Leo for which reason it was considered symbolical of success and happiness for those entering wedlock. Hence, its popularity for engagement rings. Ancients believed that its virtue was to repel poison and it was considered defense against the arts of sorcery.

GOVERNOR NICE DEFENDS STATE'S ADMINISTRATION

Makes Bid For Votes Of Women At Luncheon Meeting of Federation of Republican Women

"NOT TALKING POLITICS"

Governor Nice, in a speech interpreted as a step toward seeking reelection, made his first detailed defense of the State administration on Monday.

He spoke at a luncheon meeting of the Federation of Republican Women at the Southern Hotel, in Baltimore.

The Governor attacked some of the candidates for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination, assailed "a partisan press," criticized Mayor Jackson's administration and made an open bid for the vote of the women of the State.

"Not Talking Politics"

Mr. Nice asserted he was not speaking politically, but only enumerating facts, "since I am not a candidate for any political office—as yet."

"Were I permitted to discuss politics," he added, "I would feel myself justified in calling attention to the fact that I am subject to human frailties; that I have no claim to perfection for my administration, but that I have endeavored, honestly and to the limit of my ability, to give to the people of Maryland a constructive and wholesome performance of the duties of the office to which I was elected."

The welfare of the Maryland people, he insisted, has been and would continue to be his chief concern.

Asks Comparison

He asked what had occurred in his administration that has been positively and inexcusably wrong. He requested his audience to compare his appointments with those of his predecessor and then point out to me any defect in the character, and reflection on the honesty or ability of a single man or woman of them."

"Do not permit your judgment to be warped through newspaper articles written in a spirit of partisanship, and in bitter opposition to any Republican," the Governor continued.

Defends His Magistrates

"Magistrates appointed by me," he said, "have been subjected to a campaign of villification unparalleled in this State. The hundreds of decent, upright men and women appointed by me to these offices have, through innuendo and insinuation, been held up to scorn. . . .

"Stand my magistrates side by side with thos eappointed during the past twenty years; but, of course, you cannot compare all, because some of them appointed by my predecessor are still in penal institutions."

Cites Case of "Petulance"

"Among my magistrates there has been found one instance of petulance and an assumption of authority that should not have been assumed, but this, I grant you, was highly improper. I corrected it at once. There were found two or three of my magistrates who, following the precedent set by their predecessors and in conformity with the law of the State, issued showcause summonses; and for this they have been persecuted.

"Another magistrate refused admission to her court of a newspaper reporter, and, therefore, was guilty of a high crime and misdemeanor.

Trials In Private

"As State's Attorney and as Assistand State's Attorney, I have participated in the trial of cases held in judge's chambers, excluding the public and with none present other than the judge, the defendant, the witness on the stand and the counsel for State and defense. This petty pilloring of decent men and women, I am sure, does not appeal to you.

"I know that the people of Maryland, deep down in their hearts, believe in fair play, decency and justice, and, therefore, I again ask you to judge for yourselves and not have your judgment made for you by newspaper headlines."

State's Surplus "Handsome"

Mr. Nice explained that when he was elected he found a State deficit of nearly $1,000,000, adding:

"You knew nothing of this. I knew nothing of this. But in the newspaper office it was on the desk of the editors at least a week before the election. Today the State's financial structure is supported by a handsome surplus amounting to several million dollars.

"On discovery of this deficit, the partisan press immediately began a campaign of explanation and apology, issuing a clarion call to the Jeremiahs, who then poured forth from their caves of seclusion and came down on us like a wolf on the fold, their cohorts gleaming in purple and gold.

Attacks "Partisan Press"

"With the gnashing of teeth and the shedding of crocodile tears, they proclaimed their prophecy; that the skies would fall; that the earth would heave and groan and give up its dead; that chaos would reign supreme, and that orderly government would be wiped from the face of the earth.

"The Jeremiahs have returned whence they came, but the partisan press, like Old Man River, 'just keeps rollin' along', still carping, still lamenting and persecuting."

The State in all its essentials is in good order, the Governor reported. Maryland's financial structure "is as sound as Gibraltar, its obligations are selling at the greatest premium with the lowest interest rate in the history of Maryland."

Mr. Nice then referred to a recent charge of William S. Gordy, Jr., State Comptroller, and a candidate for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination, that certain State Roads Commission funds were being held back for political campaign purposes.

"After years of office-holding and wabbling about in the uncertainties of political expediency, he, like Saul, decided on a trip to Damascus and was struck down by a Great Light," the Governor continued. "Of course, this money was being withheld, and withheld upon the direct request of the President of the United States, who desired to curtail allotment of Federal funds dedicated to road building, but, Congress not agreeing with the President, the President notified me a few days ago that the Federal allotments would be released, which, of course, in return, released our matching funds, and now permits the immediate commencement of road construction projects dependent upon such funds.

Finds Bit Of Humor

"However, the humor, deeply hidden in this incident, lies in the fact that while he was engaged in his structures upon the Administration, the chairman of the Unemployment Compensation Commission was making public his political value to the Democratic organization of this State, through his announcement that he had been able permanently to put on the public payrolls some 267 faithful Democratic workers, and he very naively made public the information that most of this army of 267 Democratic workers had been recommended to him by my beloved Gubernatorial critics—some by the debonair and highly intelligent Mr. Curran; a few by Howard, the self-proclaimed wonder Mayor of Baltimore; none, however, by Herbie, the political purist who dwells in the clear and rarified atmosphere of his self-proclaimed dream world of political righteousness.

"The slumbering and much beloved Mr. Sasscer was left in his splendid isolation on the banks of his Patuxent to continue his impersonation of Rodin's Thinker. Dr. Conley and Mr. Kennedy, being at the time as yet Gubernatorially unborn, were ruthlessly eliminated as participants in the cutting of the pie, while three lone Republicans were put to work solely on the recommendation of my dearly beloved friend, the State Comptroller.

MT. LAKE PARK

G. A. R. Reunions

Remember the grand rally of old soldiers held here on August 29, 1899? Both those who wore the blue and the gray were admitted free, and seats reserved for them. They came from all points. Excursions were run on the railroad. Jahu DeWitt Miller talked in the morning on the "Problems of Our Country." In the afternoon there were war songs and a grand array of musical talent, also an address by Bishop Charles Fowler on Ahraham Lincoln. Other speakers were Senator J. B. Foraker, Governor Lowndes and Lieut. Kimmell of the battleship "Monterey" which ship took part in the battle at Manila. At night there was an old soldiers' camp fire. Following this everyone went to the lake to witness a marvelous and realistic representation of the Battle of Santiago. Forts had been erected on the island and the bombardment and sinking of four vessels was enacted.

Speaking of old times and olden days—the "Last day of school," which was given last Friday night at the Methodist church by members of the Bible class, would make a full memory column. A. T. White was teacher and he was perfect in the role. The pupils acted as they probably did years ago. Special honors we think should go to Timothy Moon as the real schoolboy, both as to costume and acting. Mrs. Moon, as his "girl", was also fine. In fact, the whole entertainment was well done. The spelling bee proved one thing—the older folks know a lot more about that branch than the younger ones. We heard a mother spell her grown son down, and when the few survivors were left they were not the younger set.

Church Notice

Owing to the fact that the U. B. church is being renovated and redecorated the primary and intermediate Sunday school classes will meet this Sunday in the Ladies' Aid Hall. The Young Women's and the Young Men's classes, also the adult Bible class will meet in the I. O. O. F. Hall. Superintendent J. W. Ream, will have charge of one division while M. E. Lee, assistant superintendent, will have charge of the other. Last week the attendance was 148 and it is hoped that this Sunday may pass that. The church will be ready for occupancy on Sunday, April 10, according to George Dawson, who is in charge of the work.

The U. B. Ladies' Aid will meet on Friday, April 1, in the Aid hall with Mrs. A. L. Biggs as hostess.

Friday night the Community sing will be held at the M. E. church with C. C. Gnegy in charge. Mr. Gnegy is anxious to have as many of the young people present as possible. Any one interested will be welcome.

Personals

Miss Mary Isobel Love, Miss Mary Jane Hipsley and Miss Evelyn Teagarden, of The Acorn, High school paper, were in Lonaconing on Saturday where they attended a meeting of the Allegany and Garrett county high school papers. Dr. W. B. Love, father of Miss Love, drove them down.

Mrs. Virginia Cale, Fairmont, spent the week-end here with her mother, Mrs. Etta Commerford.

The many friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Talson will regret to learn of a sudden relapse, which occurred at her home in Wheeling. Mrs. Talson has been improving rapidly from a serious operation, but pneumonia set in and her condition is regarded as critical.

Mrs. Rachel Laughlin and daughter, Mrs. Bushrod Grimes, arrived this week and have opened their cottage for the season.

Mrs. William Johnson, Cumberland, spent the week-end here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Burk.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley Rudisill, who have been residing in Clarksburg for the winter, have opened their home here.

Mrs. Wiley Welling returned on Sunday from a visit to Cumberland.

NOTICE

On account of a white slip of paper marked "NOTICE" which was sent out from the Treasurer's office along with the tax bills, it becomes necessary for me to quote a portion of the law governing the collection of taxes by the County Treasurer, and explain its provisions very briefly.

It is too bad that the Treasurer did not quote five or six lines on the little white slip of paper just as it is printed in the law book, for had he done so, then this epistle from me would not have been necessary.

The printing on the white slip of paper reads as follows:

"ALL TAXES REMAINING UNPAID ON THE FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER, 1938; THE TREASURER IS COMPELLED TO FORCE THE PAYMENT THEREOF BY THE SALE OF THE PROPERTY UPON WHICH SAID TAXES MAY BE OWING. AS THE TREASURER HAS NO CHOICE IN THE MATTER THIS LAW WILL BE ENFORCED WITHOUT FURTHER NOTICE."

Section 108, Chapter 199, which he refers to reads as follows:

"IT SHALL BE THE DUTY OF THE TREASURER TO ENFORCE THE PAYMENT OF ALL TAXES REMAINING UNPAID ON THE FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER IN THE YEAR IN WHICH THE SAME SHALL HAVE BEEN LEVIED, PROVIDED THE NOTICE REQUIRED IN THE PRECEDING SECTION SHALL HAVE BEEN GIVEN; THE FAILURE OF SAID TREASURER TO MAKE FINAL SETTLEMENT THEREFOR WITHIN ONE YEAR THEREAFTER SHALL BE SUCH WILLFUL NEGLECT OF DUTY AS TO REQUIRE HIS REMOVAL FROM OFFICE, IN THE MANNER PROVIDED IN SECTION 99."

It is plain that the Treasurer has one year from October, 1938, to enforce the payment of taxes that will be overdue after October 1st, of this year. He is not compelled to advertise and sell property for the non-payment of 1938 taxes immediately after October 1st, as he has indicated. The purpose of the law, however, was to provide for the more immediate collection of taxes than was required in the old law. The first clause of the quoted section was not changed except for the substitution of October instead of January, but the penalty provision requiring the Treasurer to collect within one year thereafter was added. This was made necessary by reason of the fact that the Treasurer had been collecting taxes for several months without a bond, and the bonding company refused to write a bond for our Treasurer unless the law was changed to impose a penalty for failure to collect taxes within one year after they become overdue. Under the old law there was no penalty for failure to collect taxes that were overdue and some of the taxes have been permitted to go uncollected for as long as six or seven years. The present law only requires our Treasurer to have all taxes for this year in and accounted for by October 1st, 1939.

CLIFFORD FRIEND.

—Advertisement. Authorized and paid for by Clifford Friend.

Editor's Note:—But, in the above advertisement, authorized by Senator Friend, he has failed to set out the mandatory section (107) of the Treasurer's Law which provides very plainly and in terms that cannot be misunderstood the duty of the treasurer concerning the collection of delinquent taxes, the said section 107 reading as follows:

107. The said treasurer shall during the first week in September in each and every year, give notice to all the delinquent taxpayers of said County, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said County, and by handbills posted in five of the most public places in each Election District of said County, and at the Court House door, warning them and each of them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrears will be enforced by advertisement and sale, unless the same are paid before the first day of October then next following.

Lesson for April 3

SERVING OTHER RACES

LESSON TEXT—Mark 7:24-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—God is no respecter of persons. Acts 10:34.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Lord of All.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Lord of All.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Showing Good Will to Other Races.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Practicing Christian Brotherhood Toward All Races.

"God is no respecter of persons" (Acts 10:34). He who by reason of His infinite knowledge might well draw lines of distinction between them is loving and gracious toward all, not willing that any should perish, extending his mercy to men of all conditions and all races. But men, whose knowledge is so limited that they cannot even rightly judge the thoughts of their own hearts, are quick to discriminate against their fellow man because he is of a different race, color, or social position.

A leader in the Southern Baptist church recently pointed out that the number of heathen in the world has increased about two and a half times as rapidly as the number of Christians, which means that at the rate of progress of missions during the last generation the world has become more heathen at the rate of six million a year, and now we are retarding the process still further. Because of financial depression we are recalling missionaries. When the world is ablaze with sin and God-denying political theories we withhold the gospel it needs. It has well been said that such strategy is like closing the hospital because an epidemic is in progress.

Jesus had gone into Syrophenicia and the region of Decapolis (look them up on the map) to rest. But the need of the Gentile people (to whom He was not at that time called to minister) impelled Him to help them also. Note how they were stimulated to believe, how their faith was tried, but triumphant.

I. Faith Encouraged.

The Greek woman and the man of Decapolis were led to believe in Christ in two different ways.

1. By hearing about Jesus. The woman "heard of him" (v. 25). Paul says, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God" (Rom. 10:17). Are we diligent in season and out of season, telling the story of Jesus and His love? If so, men and women of our acquaintance will hear of Him and be ready to call on Him in the day of their trouble.

2. By a personal meeting with Jesus. The man was deaf; he could not hear about Jesus, but he could see Him. To him the Lord came in person, and by the sign language, related in verse 33, He stirred his heart to believe.

II. Faith Tested.

1. By obstacles. The woman met what seemed to be a sharp rebuke (v. 27), although it was no doubt much tempered by the tender voice of Jesus, and by the fact that He did not use the word "dogs" as the Jews did in speaking of the Gentiles. He spoke kindly, and He talked of the "little dogs" which were the pets of the household. But her faith was greatly tried, just as ours often is, not that it should fail, but that its strength might be demonstrated.

2. By natural handicaps. Jesus put no impediment in the way of the man, for he was already hindered by nature. How often do we not feel that in our very personalities and bodies are those things which hinder our full apprehension of the grace of God. Shall we then give up in discouragement? No. The man believed right through the barrier of unhearing ears and a speechless tongue. We can do likewise by the grace of God.

III. Faith Rewarded.

1. By deliverance from the devil. The woman's daughter was set free because of her faith. Men and women around us need to be delivered from the devil. Perhaps you who read these lines are in need of such deliverance. "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house" (Acts 16:31).

2. By deliverance from personal limitations. The man's "ears were opened . . . and he spake plain" (v. 35). What is the unfortunate trait of personality, the handicap of body or mind that holds you back from accepting Christ as Saviour, or, having done so, from the full and free development of your spiritual life? Faith in Christ cuts right through the hindering inability. He said to Paul, "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

Temper

We are told, "Let not the sun go down on your wrath," but I would add, never act or write till it has done so. This rule has saved me from many an act of folly. It is wonderful what a different view we take of the same event four-and-twenty hours after it has happened.

Forgive Your Enemies

And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.—Ephesians 4:32.

Wins Book For Best Essay On Successful Farming

Troy Fike, vo-ag student of the Friendsville High school, was awarded a book, "As a Man Doeth," by Purina Mills, for the best essay written recently in the Friendsville vocational-agriculture department. It was presented recently at a meeting of the club members.

His essay was, "The Ten Commandments of Successful Farming," His commandments were:

1. Farmers of a community join in a cooperative movement, by buying and selling cooperatively, thereby making bigger profits and prevent overstocked markets, thus promoting understanding and generously passing of any good farm ideas between them.
2. Plant legumes and cover-crops to maintain and uplift the fertility of the land.
3. Protect and improve the soil of the farm by marketing the produce of the farm in the form of livestock.
4. Beautify your home and farm by making good use of paints, shade trees, and flowers, thus making farm life more endurable and livable.
5. Improve your crops and livestock by the use of certified seed and pure-bred animals.
6. Exercise and maintain some goals in the future of farming, and so accomplish these goals by future planning, keeping receipts and expenditures in a farm account book, and exercise the business of farming to the best of your ability.
7. Diversify the farming business by growing several kinds of crops, and not stake everything in one cash crop, such as corn, wheat, or cotton.
8. Cooperate with your neighbors to improve agriculture, progressive activities, and social conditions of the community.
9. Care for your tools well by keeping them dry and clean, because good, sharp tools are essential and necessary on a farm.
10. Improve your farming ability by making trips to see other people's farms and methods of farming, and also by thinking, reading, and extensive use of the United States Government Bulletins.

Wall Paper

The approach of spring and lovely weather creates in the homemaker a desire for clean and more beautiful surroundings in the home. Trying to fulfill this desire, one finds extra laundring, all kinds of cleaning and wall papering going on almost everywhere. The wall paper, whether new or being cleaned, is one of the greatest factors determining whether the homemaker actually creates the desired beauty or not. Very often the selection of wall paper in itself defeats all further efforts to make a room attractive and interesting. The background is the very first thing an interior decorator of experience considers when planning the furnishings of a room. Can we as amateurs afford to do less?

Some Points To Consider When Selecting Wall Paper For a Room

1. Very rough paper may be used with large furniture and in large rooms.

11. Rather smooth paper is desirable with fine furniture and in small rooms. Smooth papers, particularly those that are decorative with gilt or silver, sometimes reflect light unpleasantly.

111. Patterns in wall paper are of two kinds—background or decoration.

A. Background patterns are those in which the patterns are so inconspicuous that they are not noticeable in the room and are therefore usually good; such as:

Small pattern effects in two tones, using dots, stripes, diamonds or squares—the best choice for most cases.

Faint hair stripes in two colors, as cream and gray—good.

Stippled effects—delightful for living rooms.

Imitations of weaves, two-tone—moderately good.

B. Decorative patterns are those that show definite patterns when seen on the wall. A large percentage of decorative patterned wall paper is poor in design and color.

Avoid a spotty effect which is usually caused by some motifs that are darker than the background.

Avoid figures that are out of scale. Small patterns suit a small room, larger patterns are better in a large room.

Avoid strong diagonals; they destroy the architectural unity of a room.

Avoid papers that do not seem to lie flat on the wall.

Avoid patterns that are restless as they suggest restless activity.

The use of pictures gives a cluttered effect on a heavily-patterned wall.

Plain or nearly plain ceilings in light tones of the side wall are always satisfactory.

In general tones of yellow or other warm colors are best for poorly lighted or north rooms.

Blue greens, gray greens and soft blues may appear in the designs or backgrounds where the room is well-lighted or has a southern or southwestern exposure.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 62. OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MARYLAND, APRIL 7, 1938. NUMBER 6.

STATUS OF CHILD RESCUE HOME IS NOW UNCERTAIN

Institution Which Aided Children For Seventeen Years, Now Hindered By Welfare Laws

IS HOPEFUL OF FUTURE

Because of recent laws passed by West Virginia and Maryland requiring a license for certain welfare agencies to operate, the Maple Grove Child Rescue Home, in Preston county, W. Va., nine miles south of Oakland, and near Gnegy church, is having its difficulties. The Home was organized in 1921, since which time many children have been given care, its support coming from free will offerings. The Home has sent many well trained citizens into the channels of industry and commerce.

Now, however, the Board of Directors is uncertain as to the future of the Home but is hopeful of favorable consideration by the Board of State Aid and Charities of Maryland.

The West Virginia State Department of Public Assistance at the board meeting on April 2 presented the State license for the operation of the Home for one year. The presentation was made by Mrs. Luln E. Dixon, representative. The Maryland Board has agreed to consider the request for license this month.

While the Child Rescue Home is owned and controlled hy the Church of the Brethren, it does not confine itself to caring for children of this particular denomination, but cares for children of other churches as well.

Since the Home has been in operation 163 children have been its wards, and of this number 31 have been placed in approved homes, which is the ultimate aim of those in charge. Many of those received into the home have been Garrett county boys and girls.

The Home was incorporated under the laws of the State of West Virginia on October 1, 1936. It was purchased by the First and Second District of West Virginia and Western Maryland, which comprises the Northern half of West Virginia and Garrett and Allegany counties, in Maryland. Three directors from each district are elected and these nine elect a superintendent, a matron, general manager and secretary-treasurer.

Emra T. Fike, secretary-treasurer, states that the atmosphere of the Home is made as much home-like as possible.

There is a farm of 93 acres on which the hoys are taught general farm work and the girls are taught to do house work.

The children are given proper training and have their religious needs well cared for.

The Home property cost $17,000; $1,500 for machinery and stock; $7,500 for the farm, and $8,000 for the house and other buildings. It has been supported by free will offerings of the people.

"The Home has appreciated very much the support of the people of all churches and will continue to appreciate in a wonderful way the continued interest and support of its friends, as in the past," Mr. Fike said on Monday when he was interviewed by a Republican writer.

Japanese Cherry Tree In Bloom Near Bridge At Luke

A Japanese cherry tree of the single blossom variety is in bloom at Luke, just across the county line from Bloomington. A second tree of the double-blossom type is budding.

The trees, located on the bank of the Potomac river near the Piedmont-Luke bridge, were purchased by the West Virginia Pulp and Paper company as part of a beautification plan for its property along the river bank.

The two trees are the only remaining ones of six planted about five years ago, the others having been washed away by the floods. The flowers are fragilely pink contrasting with the shiny mahogany bark, which has an appearance of birch.

There are no other cherry trees of the Japanese variety known to he in this vicinity and these are attracting much attention.

Missionary Sister Safe In China, Tunnelton Woman Is Told

Mrs. John S. Graham, Tunnelton, West Va., has received word from her sister, Miss Julia Bonafield, for nearly fifty years a missionary in China, of her safe arrival in Foochow, which was her destination when leaving this country a year ago, after a visit to her homeland. Miss Bonafield was delayed in getting to Foochow after being detained at Peking and Shanghai because of the war in China.

Miss Bonafield is well known in this section of the country and has spent much time at Mountain Lake Park during her periodic visits to her home, where she was a guest of her niece, Mrs. Bruce Falkenstine.

At Foochow Miss Bonafield, at the time she wrote to her sister, was domiciled with her ward, Dorothy Lee, a Chinese girl, who accompanied Miss Bonafield to America several years ago.

The following are excerpts from her letter: "I have been in Foochow for three weeks. Have been welcomed by receptions, dinners and programs and am already into my old jobs of running a small hotel (hostess), business agency (buying for six inland stations), and property inspector (repairs, etc.), and getting in touch with our older graduates. I am not planning to take up any teaching.

"We have few steamers calling here now as the river is closed to all but small craft.

"True to my exeprience in Peking and Shanghai, Foochow had her first bombs ten days after my arrival. The air field, two miles from us, was thoroughly torn up, but there were no airplanes on the field. Twenty people in a nearby village were killed hy shrapnel.

"In Shanghai we had no sirens or dugouts, but here the epeople are trained to run to cover when the siren sounds. Foochow is not a military post and should not come into the fighting zone."

DR. RALPH L. KERCHEVAL LOSES BATTLE FOR LIFE

Succumbs At 4:30 This Morning In Mercy Hospital, Baltimore

Dr. Ralph L. Kercheval, who tried every available means to combat a serious illness, died at 4:30 o'clock this morning in Mercy hospital, Baltimore. He was 35 years of age.

Dr. Kercheval was a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kercheval, of Tunnelton, W. Va., and came to Oakland eight or nine years ago, where he has been engaged as a dentist since that time.

He had been in failing health for several months, the result following scarlet fever which he contracted when a boy, and since the first of the year he had been seeking the advice and help of physicians throughout the east. He returned home from Jefferson hospital, Philadelphia, on Tuesday, March 31, and since that time had gone back to Philadelphia twice, leaving Oakland the last time on Monday evening, unaccompanied. He left Philadelphia and went to Baltimore on Tuesday, and word was received here last evening that he could hardly survive the night. His wife was already at his bedside and his parents arrived there shortly before he died.

Dr. Kercheval had served a term in the City Council and on March 14 was re-elected to that position. He was intensely interested in the water system of the town and had spent much time in making improvements. He was also much interested in seeing the municipal golf course completed.

Surviving are his widow and one son, his parents, a brother, Phray Kercheval, and a sister, both of Kingwood, West Va.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete at this time. Interment will be at Tunnelton, W. Va.

Mrs. C. W. Gregory, of Frederick, was elected president; Mrs. A. N. Golladay was reelected vice-president; Mrs. B. Maurice Eburg, of Hampstead, secretary, and Mrs. Carlos Crawford, Westminster, treasurer.

The first district is composed of Garrett, Allegany, Frederick, Washington, Carroll and Harford counties.

COUNCIL REORGANIZES AT MONDAY NIGHT'S MEETING

Only Slight Changes Made In Committee; Appointments Remain Same As Last Year

LIGHT CONTRACT RENEWED

Only slight changes were made at the reorganization meeting of the Mayor and Town Council on Monday evening.

Mayor Fraley and the three Councilmen, whose terms expired, were all reelected at the municipal election in March.

Edward A. Shaffer was reelected president of Council and the only changes made were in two committees, the water committee and the finance committee.

Appointments were also the same as last year: Julius C. Renninger, attorney; C. F. Hammond, police magistrate; J. Frank Browning, clerk-collector; W. H. Byrd, weighmaster; James Compton, water superintendent. Appointments of the day and night policemen were held over until after the make-up of the annual levy following the appeals session of the Council.

Committees were named as follows: Water, Henry W. McComas, Jr., chairman, Dr. R. L. Kercheval, Edward A. Shaffer. Street, Emroy Bolden, chairman, Earl W. Shartzer, Irvin R. Rudy. Finance, Irvin R. Rudy, chairman; H. W. McComas, Edward A. Shaffer.

Lighting Contract Renewed

Council, at Monday's meeting, renewed the contract for street lighting with the West Maryland Power Company, for a ten-year period, thereby saving $1,000 over that period, according to J. Frank Browning, clerk. The lights under the contract with the cost per year include 93 100-watt lights at $22.80 each per year; 1 250-watt light at $29.45 per year; and 4 400-watt lights at $43.70 each per year.

Dates Set For Appeals

Council set the dates of the appeal session for Monday and Tuesday, April 18 and 19.

Henry Tarring, local WPA administrator, conferred with Council on proposed projects for the tawn, including water main ditches, street and sidewalk improvements.

Mr. Tarring also reported that the sum of $4,000 in government funds still remained for use on the golf course construction and the work of completing the project will get under way this week. There is still some draining to be done, grass to be sown and other work to be completed. A meeting of golf enthusiasts will be called in the near future to discuss how the course can be operated efficiently and profitably.

H. V. Leighton and Son Company was given a permit to erect a lumber storage place near the railroad track in the rear of the Leighton Funeral Home.

Arrested On Burglary Charge

George Felda, of Altamont, and Clarence Paugh, of Shallmar, were arrested last Thursday afternoon on a warrant charging them with burglary and receiving stolen goods.

The arrests were made following the robbery of the summer home of Henry Reithmiller, near Altamont. Felda has confessed to the charge, according to State's Attorney Fraley, and the goods stolen were recovered at the home of Paugh.

Both Felda nnd Paugh are in the Garrett County Jail and are being held for action of the grand jury in September.

More Checks Received

More checks to county farmers for participation in the 1937 soil conservation program were received at the office of John H. Carter, county agent, this week. Those totaled 197 nnd amounted to $10,430.99.

Added to last week's figures this made a total of 484 farmers receiving the sum of $22,822.11. Each farmer on an avernge received $47.15.

There are still about 400 who made application for payment who have not received their checks.

Mr. Paul Nystrom, state executive of the Maryland Soil Conservation committee, was in Oakland Tuesday when he outlined the 1938 program to Mr. Carter and the county committee. A series of meetings will be arranged by Mr. Carter to acquaint farmers with the provisions and regulations of the program.

Lesson for April 10

FINDING OURSELVES IN SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-33.
GOLDEN TEXT—"What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?"—Mark 8:36.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What Peter Found Out.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Peter's Right Answer.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Making Life Count Through Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Finding the Richest Life Through Service.

"Finding ourselves" seems like a singular, almost self-contradictory, expression, but it refers to a sound principle recognized by psychologists as well as spiritual leaders. As a matter of fact, modern psychology has begun to recognize and use spiritual laws and principles which alone bring about human happiness and efficiency.

A word of warning—let no one who studies this lesson fall into the serious error of thinking that some formal religious service will bring redemption and favor with God. We are saved by grace through faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—"not of works, lest any man should boast." It is then by the new birth that we are "created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them" (Eph. 2:8-10).

It is the Christian who needs to "find himself in service." Only as he thus yields to Christ does he really find the life worth living. The words of Jesus in verse 35 are solemnly and gloriously true.

I. Clear Confession (vv. 27-30).

Even those who deny to our Christ the recognition of His deity, and the devotion of life which is His just due, must, if they are at all intelligent, admit that no man ever lived who has made such an impact on human history. Even in the days of his life on earth those who did not accept Him as Christ regarded Him as the resurrected form of one of the nation's greatest leaders. Now unbelieving men speak of Him as the great founder of Christianity, a mighty leader, a wonderful example, or an unequalled teacher.

It is not enough that we stand with the mass of humanity who may thus admire Him, but who do not count Him as Saviour and Lord. The question comes to us as it did to the disciples, "Whom say ye that I am?" "Thou art the Christ"—this alone suffices as the foundation for Christian testimony and conduct.

II. Corrected Error (vv. 31-33).

Although Jesus was not yet ready to have His Messiahship proclaimed to the public, He was prepared to teach His disciples concerning not only that important truth, but of His rejection and death. "He began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer . . . be rejected . . . killed and . . . rise again."

Note the divine "must." While it is true that wicked men showed their hostility toward our God and His Christ by hanging Him on Calvary's cross, yet it was to die for our sins that He came into the world. The cross has rightly come to represent God's love to the world rather than man's hostility to God.

Error now asserts itself, and strangely enough it is the very one who had the clearest grasp of the truth regarding the Messiahship of Christ and boldly expressed it who now objects to the revelation of the coming death and resurrection of Christ, and lends his voice to rebuke the Master for speaking of it.

Satan hates the cross and the open grave. Jesus won the victory over him there. He did not want to hear of it before it took place and used impulsive Peter for a mouthpiece to object. He doesn't want to hear about it now and uses many a skillful and gifted preacher to speak against it. "The offense of the cross" (Gal. 5:11) has never ceased.

III. Consecrated Life and Service (vv. 34-38).

"Let him deny himself" (v. 34). That command we have construed to mean that we should perform little acts of self-denial, foregoing some comfort or pleasure, possibly for a few weeks. It does not mean that at all—but does mean the renouncing of self and self-will, and a complete yielding to God's will. Likewise, to take up one's cross does not mean to bear some of life's little disagreeable experiences; it means again to die to self and to live for Christ.

Careful attention should be given to the solemn questions asked and statements made in verses 35-37. These are not the reasonings of a man—they fall from the lips of the Son of God. What, He asks, will you give in exchange for your soul?

Payment

How little we pay our way in life! Although we have our purses continually in our hand, the better part of service goes still unrewarded.

Discussion

The more discussion the better, if passion and personalities be eschewed.

Pain

Pain is in itself a sharp discipline and hard to bear.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS. . . . . .

By FRANK R. KENT

Not A Pretty Picture

Washington, April 2.

Tha tthe extraordinary outbursts in which the President recently indulged at Warm Springs have caused his friends great concern is evidenced by the exceedingly strained journalistic efforts to smooth over and explain.

* * *

It seems to be realized that, first, in the use of the word "purchase" in referring to the Senate, and, second, in selecting the middle of the night to make his dictatorship declaration, Mr. Roosevelt gave an exhibition well calculated to make people generally wonder what has become of his self-control. At any rate, these things foster the feeling that he is in a highly disturbed state, in which his judgment cannot be trusted and his emotions and prejudices are dominant.

* * *

It is, perhaps, unfortunate for the President that his defenders are split into two groups, each of which sings a different tune. One, for example, insists that he meant no reflection upon the Senators who voted against his bill when, in effect, he said they had been purchased, and that his nocturnal dictatorship declaration was to knock down the "straw man" which a partisan opposition had set up. It seems almost unnecessary to point out that neither of these explanations explain. To say that he did not intend to reflect upon the opposing Senators does not make sense. If he did not mean to charge them with being purchased, why did he use the word? Why did he insist on the word after his scared secretary nudged him to be careful? What other idea could he possibly have had in mind? The fact is that it was an inexcusable and insulting reference, made in anger and intended to apply to the men opposing him, among them some of his heretofore loyal supporters and friends, toward whom he is particularly resentful.

* * *

The plea that the dictatorship utterance was justified by the tactics of the opposition and was, in fact, clever stuff planned to take advantage of an opportunity is rendered absurd by several things. One is that there was nothing in his utterance which he had not emphatically said before and which had not been said for him many times. The second was because he used as a vehicle a four-day-old letter to an anonymous friend, which justified skepticism as to whether it was genuine.The third—and most remarkable of all—was the waiting to give it out until after one o'clock in the morning, when the correspondents, telegraph and telephone operators had to be routed out of bed and only a few morning newspapers could get the news in their late editions anyhow.

* * *

For this amazing middle-of-the-night performance no one has yet offered any expplanation whatever. Most Administration defenders, unable to think of a plausible reason for picking 1 A. M. as an hour for the announcement, just ignore it altogether. One suggests that the President was anxious to get his declaration in the press before his bill came up in the House on Thursday, but that is negatived by the fact that actually he did not get it in the morning papers and that 9:30 o'clock next morning would have enabled him to reach all the afternoon papers and been better from whatever standpoint you look.

* * *

Thus it is clear these alibis are too weak to stand and the President's more radical friends substitute invective for argument, which, at any rate, is more in harmony with his own language and mood. They gloat over Mr. McCarl, who ceased to be Comptroller General a year ago and who, it is said, first incurred the White House wrath by vetoing an expenditure of a half a million dollars for Mrs. Roosevelt's Reedsville project. And they lambast Senator Byrd as a budget balancer, which seems to have become a New Deal term of reproach. And they jeer and sneer at the organizations and individuals who, exercising their constitutional right, protester against the bill.

* * *

This whole Warm Springs business can hardly help but be deeply disturbing to those who appreciate the gravity of the present state of national affairs and hope for some form of constructive leadership from the President. It has certainly increased the bitterness between him and Congress. It is additional evidence that, far from trying to bring about the sort of cooperation which the business crisis calls for, the President is bent upon pursuing his political as well as his economic feuds. Instead of the calm, earnest Executive, anxious to sink personal prejudice in the public interest, the impression he conveys is that of an inflamed and angry man, intent upon showing his opponents that he has the upper hand. This isn't a pretty picture. Once they get a clear view of it, there is apt to arise among the people a strong disposition to turn it to the wall.

Twenty-eight licenses were issued during the past week ending Monday at noon. Eight were granted an Saturday, and three were marked "don't publish."

SAFETY FOLLOWS "CLEAN-UP" WEEK—

Spring clean-up week, which is an annual observance in thousands of American communities and shpuld be in all of them, is in the affing. The week was started primarily as a beautifying movement—old shacks are torn down, vacant lots are cleaned of debris, homes are painted, grass-grown fields are cut and the harvest burned. It's amazing how little is needed in many cases to change a squalid street to one that is pleasant and charming to the eye.

Furthermore, something other than a better looking town results from a clean-up week that is loyally and enthusiastically supported by all citizens. For a sound, thorough clean-up process is one of the best possible ways of getting rid of fire hazards. A town which rids itself of old, unused buildings, and which does away with litter and grass-ridden lots, becomes a far safer place in which to live and work.

Clean-up week should not stop at exteriors. As the National Board of Fire Underwriters points out, everyone should go through his home inside as well as out in search of fire dangers. A congested attic or basement, filled with ancient magazines and broken furniture and clothes that will never be used again, is the perfect starting place for a blaze. Frayed or amateurishly repaired light cords, improperly stored inflammable liquids, dirty or worn heating units—from such things as these come fires that destroy hundreds of millions of dollars worth of property and thousands of lives.

Every town should make this year's clean-up week the most thorough in its history. It's an easy job, if everyone does his bit to help. And it will pay big dividends, in beauty, safety and cash.

WAY OF DICTATORSHIP—

One of the outstanding lessons the world has learned from dictatorships is this: No dictator can force himself into power and stay there so long a shis people retain free speech and free, uncensored newspapers.

Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin and all of their lesser imitators learned that. But now, Hitler, fresh from his Austrian conquest, is irritated by comments of newspapers in free countries. So he proposes international treaties establishing offical government control of all newspapers.

What he means is this: "You see that your newspapers say only nice things about me and I'll do the same for you."

Up spoke Dr. Carl W. Ackerman, Dean of the Pulitzer School of Journalism at Columbia University, a lifelong student of newspapers and their problems and duties. After pointing out that such a treaty would require an amendment of the American Constitution, he added:

"I consider these developments so ominous that I think the foreign press policy of the German government should be fully explained and earnestly studied. If governmental control of the printed and spoken word is a requirement of peace with Germany, we should know the conditions now and not later."

Hitler's plan doubtless suits some who claim to be Americans. A United States Senator said in a radio speech the other day that 98 per cent of America's city newspapers are biased. What he meant was that they did not agree with him.

How different he is from Voltaire who once said: "While I might not agree with what you say, I shall defend to the death you right to say it."

True Americans doubtless will agree with their own Constitution and with Voltaire rather than with Hitler and the Senator, for down the Hitler-Senator road lies dictatorship.

A "Sir Walter Raleigh" Needed Here

OFFICE OF THE GARRETT COUNTY TREASURER
Oakland, Maryland.

To the Editor of The Republican:

In last week's issue of The Republican the distinguished Senator burst forth again with what he called his long epistle with reference to the notice sent out by this office with each tax statement.

This notice was sent out for the purpose of acquainting the taxpayers with the law that was enacted at the last session of the legislature, of which the Senator was a member.

In his epistle the Senator did not quote all the law. Section 107, Chapter 199 of the 1937 laws of Maryland reads as follows:

"The said treasurer shall, during the first week in September in each and every year, give notice to all the delinquent taxpayers of said county, by advertisement inserted in two newspapers published in said county, and by handbills posted in five of the most public places in each election district of said county, and at the court house door, warning them and each of them that the payment of all taxes then due and in arrears (Section 102 of the same Chapter says that all county taxes are due and payable on the first day of April) will be enforced by advertisement and sale, unless the same are paid before the first day of October then next following."

Perhaps the Senator has rearranged the calendar so that the month of October does not follow the month of September.

I have been very reliably informed that the Senator has been advising taxpayers to disregard the law as quoted in the notice sent out with the tax statments. (Names of parties thus advised can be furnished if requested).

J. J. ASHBY, JR.,
County Treasurer.

FUNNY LOVE LETTERS

12 OF THEM IN THE SET

Korkers, each and every one of them—enough to make a mule laugh, but they are in no way vulgar—just rip roaring funny from start to finish—that's all!

THESE LOVE LETTERS ARE SO WORDED THAT EACH ONE READS TWO WAYS, SO YOU WILL REALLY HAVE 24 DANDY LETTERS TO READ.

First, read just as printed, and you'll say that by gum, they're about the best bunch of real honest-to-goodness love letters you ever got acquainted with.

Next, read again, this time skipping every other line, and you'll find all the molasses candy stuff suddenly turned to vinegar, and you'll laugh until folks think you've gone crazy.

Just nonsense? Yep, that's all, but the korkingest nonsense ever invented. As each set of letters reads two ways you'll have 24 letters to read, so if you intend reading them all at one sitting I would suggest taking out some life insurance, for I will not be responsible for those who laugh themselves to death. DIAMOND

The Birthstone For April

The Diamond derives its name from the Greek "Adamantos", meaning adamant, no doubt due to its superior hardness—being 140 times as hard as a ruby or sapphire.

Diamonds are the most sought for of all the gem stones and is known as the "King Gem."

It is the emblem of fearlessness and invincibility. Astrologically it comes under the Heart sign Leo for which reason it was considered symbolical of success and happiness for those entering wedlock. Hence, its popularity for engagement rings. Ancients believed that its virtue was to repel poison and it was considered defense against the arts of sorcery.

EARLY RECOGNITION BEST IN TREATMENT OF CANCER

Prompt Attention Under Competent Medical Direction Urged

In accordance with the slogan of the national organization, "Fight Cancer With Knowledge," the Maryland division of the Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, is stressing the importance of the early recognition and prompt treatment of the disease under competent medeal direction. In calling attention to the campaigo, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, said: "The Field Army is rendering a great service in transferring the emphasis from fear to facts, and in showing that the possibility of a favorable outcome depends upon prompt treatment under authoritative medical direction.

"In Maryland, as in every other part of the country, cancer is a leading cause of death among the middle-age and older age groups. There are certain danger signals which give warning of the presence of the disease while it is in the early stages, and when there is a possibility of arresting it or of bringing it under control. Authorities agree that a complete physical examination, at regular intervals, by a well-trained physician, experienced in detecting such signals, is one of the best safeguards against the unsuspected invasion of cancer. Should the more apparent symptoms develop, competent medical advice should be sought at once. Special attention should be paid immediately to the following:

"Any persistent lump or thickening, especially in the breast; any irregular bleeding or discharge from any body openings; any sore that does not heal —particularly about the tongue, lips or mouth; persistent indigestion, often accompanied by loss of weight; sudden changes in the form or rate of growth of a mole or wart."

Interesting History Given Of Oakland's First Burgess

An interesting history of Oakland's first Burgess (mayor), Dr. St. Felix Collardeau, has been received by The Republican which gives a number of enlightening facts. The sketch was prepared by Miss Elizabeth West.

Dr. St. Felix Collardeau

Dr. Collardeau, the first burgess (mayor) of Oakland, was horn in Paris, France. He came to America about 1857 and entered Yale Medical university.

While a student at this school he met Dr. Edward H. Bartlett. They became close friends and he later married Dr. Bartlett's sister, Georginia Bartlett. After their marriage they visited Mrs. George Bartlett at her summer home in Oakland, and remained in the mountains.

Dr. Collardeau was one of the first doctors in Oakland, coming here soon after the tragic death of Dr. Conn. He was an extensive land owner in Garrett county and was a stock holder in the old woolen mill that at one time stood on the lot adjoining the Frank Browning property on the old Oakland-Deer Park road.

Dr. Collardeau built the Harry Helbig house on U. S. route No. 219, but never lived there. He and his family living in the old Bartlett home that stood where the store of Mr. H. C. Sincell and The Republican on Second street now are located.

In an old cemetery back of the Helbig place are the graves of the Collardeau children who died in Baltimore and were brought here to be buried.

Dr. Collardeau was elected mayor of Oakland in 1862, serving again as commissioner (councilman) in 1866, Mr. Henry Davis being mayor at that time. During his administration the town limits were greatly enlarged.

After leaving Oakland he lived in Baltimore for a while but later returned to his native land.

He was made governor of the island of Guadeloupe and had charge of the Botanical Gardens there.

He had six daughters who all married French army officers. A grandson, John Pierot, a graduate of the University of Paris, is now teaching in Cornwall, England. Mr. Pierot taught one year in America. While in this country he visited Oakland.

A granddaughter is a secretary and translator at the French Embassy in London, England.

SUMMER CAMPS MUST BE INSPECTED AND LICENSED

Regulations Apply To Every Camp Or Picnic Ground In Use Six Days

Owners and operators of "summer" camps in Maryland—tourist, recreational and labor—have been notified by Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health, that all camps must be inspected and duly licensed before they may be opened for visitors. Permits do not hold over from year to year. Whether the camps are old or new, permits must be secured for the coming season. No camp may be operated without one.

In order that the necessary inspections may be made before the season opens, owners and operators of camps are asked to file their applications promptly. A number have already done so, and inspections have been started by the County Health Officers. All camps that conform to the State sanitary requirements will be posted with placards furnished by the State Department of Health.

Last year, 207 camps met the requirements and were duly placarded. Of the total, 95 were for tourists; there were three labor camps; 65 were used for recreational purposes, and 44 as picnic grounds.

The regulations apply, Dr. Riley explained, to every camp or picnic ground that is used for a period of six days or longer and that accommodates ten or more persons. In making their applications camp operators are requested to state the following:

The exact location of the existing or proposed camp; type of camp (picnic, tourist, labor, religious, recreation, etc.); approximate number of persons to be accommodated; approximate duration of camp; date of opening; of closing; proposed source of water supply; proposed method of sewage disposal; of garbage disposal; whether food is to be sold.

To be duly certified each camp must comply with the regulations prescribed by the State Board of Health with regard to the general cleanliness of the buildings and grounds; the water supply, toilet facilities and the disposal of sewage, garbage and other waste. Adequate arrangements for the protection of foods sold on the ground from pollution and from flies, are also required and the sources of supply and methods of handling milk, cream and ice cream must conform to the standard regulations for such foods.

The sanitary supervision of the camps is under the joint direction of the county health officers and the Bureau of Sanitary Engineering of the State Department of Health.

Of the 207 camps certified in 1937, Anne Arundel had the largest number in any one county—58; Harford came next with 20; Garrett was third with 18 and Cecil followed, with 17. Harford, with 18 camps for tourists, led in the number of tint type certified in any one county; Prince George's had 13 camps for touists; Garrett, 10; Anne Arundel and Somerset, 8 each; Baltimore and Frederick, 7 each. The rest of the tourist camps were scattered throughout other counties.

THERE MUST be a reason. In fact, Purina Chick Startena couldn't keep on leading year after year unless there were several reasons.

The whole answer is simply this: poultry raisers have found that Startena does a better job of raising chicks than any other chick starter on the market. When they feed Startena, they get better livability, bigger chicks, healthier chicks, and other qualities that they can't get with ordinary chick feeds.

Stop by and see us the next time you're in town. You'll like the new free Purina poultry booklet we have for you.

Need Of Specialists In State Parole Department Urged By Governor Nice

Executive Asserts Maryland Has Almost No System At All —Says Clemency Should Be Used Wisely

From time to time Governor Nice has discussed in the columns of The Republican various aspects of his administration. Today he discusses the parole system of Maryland.

By HARRY W. NICE,
Governor of Maryland

Maryland has never had a parole scandal.

The current outcroy against abuses of parole, the systematically nurtured public impression that most serious crimes are committed by paroled offenders, the frequently repeated charge that professional criminals with political pull or money can wrangle their way out of prison with the connivance of weak or corrupt parole authorities—none of these are justified in our State.

Does this mean that we are blessed with a perfect parole system? The answer is an emphatic "no!"

Traiaed Specialists Needed

On the contrary, we have almost no parole system at all. Our present able Parole Commissioner, Mr. J. Cookman Boyd, would be the first to admit that he does not have available a sufficient corps of trained specialists to assist him in reaching his conclusions, and the small staff of parole officers is kept busy with supervisory activities.

It is only the realistic recognition of this fact by my predecessors and myself and our consequent too-sparing use of the power to release prisoners on parole that has saved the situation. I believe, sincerely, however, and assert positively, that Maryland ought to have a real parole system and ought to use it liberally. Liberally, but wisely!

Discusses Alternatives

What are the alternatives? In the first place, most men sent to prison come out again. This is right, and it is inevitable. Society would shudder at the suggestion that every criminal be executed; lifetime incarceration for every offender is equally unthinkable.

So prisoners must be released, many are being released every day. What then? Shall we turn them loose, scot-free, with the pious hope that they will go straight? That's what we do now, with nearly all of them. And about half do go straight—straight back to another crime. Or shall we free them conditionally, on parole? Isn't the answer self-evident?

Can any one doubt that society will receive better protection, that the war against crime will be fought more effectively, if the man coming out of prison is carefully watched, his efforts to rehabilitate himself assisted, but his first steps back toward crime firmly checked?

System Must Be Modern

That is what real parole must be—both a restraining influence and a helping hand. I am all for it, because I am in dead earnest in my desire to reduce the number of criminals, to diminish the flood of crime. This is not sentimentality. It is hard, practical common sense.

But this kind of parole is not possible without a modern parole system We can have such a system in Maryland without attempting untried experiments or venturing into untrodden fields. Perhaps we are fortunate that we have delayed so long and allowed other States to blaze the trail, for we can profit by their mistakes and accomplish almost at once what it has taken them a generation to develop.

We are fortunate, too, that our problem has been studied so carefully and out future path charted so clearly.

Legislation Recommeaded

As long ago as in July, 1936, there was submitted to me the report of the Prison Industries Reorganization Administration covering its thorough study of our whole penal system. I have just read again Chapter 4 of this report dealing with both probation and parole. Here, in ten pages, is not only convincing proof that our present system is inadequate and out-moded, but also a program for its development along modern lines.

Following the receipt of this report I appointed my own parole committee, headed by Mr. C. Delano Ames. This committee made a further and independent study, and on December 30, 1936, submitted its report recommending specific legislation.

It is not my purpose, nor would it be practicable in this brief statement, to do more than to outline the general principles and to state the objectives of the legislation necessary to bring our State into line on this extremely important subject. Suffice is to say those upon whom will fall the burden of preparing such legislation will find the spade-work done or them in advance in the two admirable reports to which I have referred.

Dangers Pointed Out

These reports show conclusively that we need a real parole department and that a wide extension in the use of parole will help toward the solution of our crime problem. But they show the dangers, too. They show that parole is worse than useless, that it may be a positive menace to society unless it is soundly administered.

Moreover, a parole system must be developed as an integral part of a sound penal system, not merely as an unrelated appendage tacked on for sentimental reasons to that a merciful Governor may indulge his desire to extend clemency.

Inmates of penal institutions must be classified and studied by competent persons: from the first day of incarceration to the last they must be systematically prepared for release. Release on parole must be based upon intimate knowledge of the individual prisoner—his past, his present, his potentialities for the future. This kind of knowledge can be obtained only by long continued study. It is very different from the mere impressions upon which we must rely under our present system. And when a man is released on parole he must be carefully supervised by an adequately staffed and expertly administered parole department that will help him make good if he can, but will send him back to prison at once if he does not do his part.

Task Needs Brains

I think I have made it clear that to be effective the fight against crime needs more than stone walls and steel bars. It needs brains as well as brawn; perhaps brains are the more important. Our penal system is in process of reconstruction. Modern buildings are being erected, overcrowding is being reduced, industry is replacing idleness.

But thus far only a beginning has been made toward developing a system that will justify the vast monetary expenditures we are making. Such a system must include a skilled personnel. The physician, the psychologist, the vocational director, the educator and the social case worker are just as essential as the prison guard. Inmates must be classified not only by sex and age, but according to their capacities for training and rehabilitation. And we must set up also a machinery that will release the rehabilitated man as soon as it is possible to replace him in society as a producing free agent.

Way Pointed Out

A few of our sister States have pointed the way. Maryland cannot afford to lag too far behind. It isn't humane, it isn't just, it isn't even economical. A man in prison costs the State $350 a year. Out of prison he supports himself and contributes to the general well-being. We can afford to set up the best parole system in the United States, with a full staff of trained officers, and actually save money in the process.

A constructive penal program such as I envisaged must be approached just as we approach our school system or our hospital system. We take for granted that trained educators must be selected to administer our schools. We select doctors to head our hospitals. If anyone were to suggest that a barber be put in as pricipal of a high school or a plumber as chief medical officer of a State hospital, the public would be outraged.

Undertaking Difficult

It is just as essential that penal institutions and a parole system shall be administered by competently qualified persons. They have to deal with warped and twisted human lives. They need to know all that science has to teach about bodies, and minds, and personalities. They need to know community resources and how best to fit the rehabilitated prisoner into an available economic niche. Theirs is no easy task.

Obviously, then, this is no place for partisan politics. Parole personnel just as prison administrators must be selected for merit and encouraged to develop themselves for their work as a career. We must set up a system that will guarantee them their positions as long as they do their duty, and will pay salaries adequate to attract and to hold the services of the best qualified persons in the State.

I urge this upon the attention of the people and the Legislature as a question of paramount importance for immediate and careful consideration.

MT. LAKE PARK

We have just finished reading a story by Peter B. Kyne—"Point". It was a great short story—all about a dog. In the foreword Mr. Kyne says, "I have bought many dogs, but I have never sold one and I never shall—too much like selling old Uncle Tom down the river, which really brings us to what we want to say.

There is a movement here to organize a humane society. From all we can learn, it would be a very fine thing to do. So far nothing definite has been done, but each day brings a few more people to the front to say that they will support such a movement.

Considering the time of the year, it is gratifying to see so many cottagers returning to the Park. It is also very good to learn of the many inquiries for property for the summer. This season has certainly started earlier than most seasons at the Park.

Let's clean up.

With the news that the Baltimore League will not be here this summer, we are pinning our faith on Rev. Felix Robinsen and the Music Festival. Each year it grows bigger and better. It is hoped that each and every one will do their utmost to help out. After all, it's a great advertisement for Garrett county, and Garrett county has a great deal to offer to other places.

Do you remember when—

John Felty, Jr., had the market under the Chautauqua Hotel?

Floyd White was the only transfer driver in Mountain Lake Park. He met all trains, no matter what time. Then he bought a Model T Ford.

When a golf course was started below the bowling alley? The crawfish soon put an end to that.

The first moving pictures were shown at the Amphitheatre. It was Edison's Projectiscope, and they had illustrated songs with it.

Red House Lutheran Parish

Rev. A. K. Jones, Pastor

Palm Sunday reminds the Christian believer that "Jesus deserves the highest honor." This is the theme of the pastor's sermon, in which he will try to show that, while the multitude that made up the triumphal procession on the first great Palm Sunday became confused and scattered, God the Father hath highly exalted Him. Jesus never lost sight of the vital importance of His mission among men. His faith in God and man shown out with a radiant warmth; His love for a sinful race never wavered, and His atoning sacrifice stands out with ever-increasing beauty and power. Vast multitudes will honor Him during these coming days, and our prayer is that nations engaged in warfare and those gripped by the depression brought about by greed may discover that He alone can deliver mankind from these evil forces.

If a lot of farmers would stop to think, they would find that they are selling out their freedom, and taking a loss on the deal, when they receive money from the government for doing what any good farmer would be doing anyway.

Soil conservation checks are now being distributed. The average farmer gets from $30 to $40. A lot of them get less, a few only $1, and some even less than $1. In order to get this handout from the government it has been necessary to make trips to see those in charge sometimes as many as five times. Unless they ride to town on a horse, they have spent more money in making the trips than they receive.

The farmers can't be blamed so much. While the money flows so freely from the New Deal administration, a portion of it might as well flow in this direction. But it certainly doesn't help individual initiative, freedom from tyranny, or ambition.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICES WILL ALSO BE OBSERVED

All the churches in Oakland are having special services in observance of the death and resurrection of Christ. Throughout the Lenten season union services have been conducted by the ministers of the Methodist, Episcopal and Lutheran churches, and these services will be concluded with a union Good Friday service in St. Mark's Lutheran church beginning at noon tomorrow and continuing until three o'clock.

There will be appropriate hymns, scripture and short exhortations on each of the seven words uttered by Jesus from the cross. Members of the Methodist and Lutheran choirs will render special music.

On Good Friday afternoon a special service will be held by the Episcopal church from noon until 3 p. m.

Special services have also been conducted during Lent by St. Peter's Catholic church.

Individual churches will have special services as follows:

St. Peter's Church

Rev. William F. Sauer, Pastor

On Holy Saturday the services at St. Peter's church will begin with the blessing of the new fire, the blessing of the Paschal candle and the reading of the Prophecies, the blessing of the baptismal font, and the chanting of the litany of the saints. Following these liturgical blessings a High Mass will be sung at eight o'clock.

The blessing of the new fire takes place at the entrance of the church. Appropriate prayers are recited. The new fire is carried into the church while a triple candle is lighted, one branch at a time, while the chantors sing Lumen Christi, Light of Christ. During the blessing of the Paschal candle five grains of incense are fixed in the candle, symbolic of the five wounds in our Savior's glorified body. The last of the blessings is that of the baptismal water which is used thruout the ensuing year.

The High Mass on Easter Sunday will be celebrated at 8 o'clock. The choir, under Arthur Martini, of Loch Lynn, will render Rosewig's Mass in G with a special Regina Coeli in four parts by M. A. Melvil, to be sung at the Offertory. The second Mass on Easter Sunday will be at 10 o'clock. At five o'clock on Sunday afternoon there will be a sermon. Easter hymns and benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

REORGANIZATION BILL IS KILLED BY HOUSE ACTION

Motion To Send It Back To Committee Carried by Small Margin

The House of Representatives sent to a stunning defeat last Friday night the Administration's government reorganization bill—the measure that prompted President Roosevelt to say he did not want to be a dictator.

Ignoring fervent pleas of party leaders not to proclaim to a nation a "lack of confidence" in the Chief Executive, 108 Democrats revolted and joined Republicans to bury the measure in a committee room pigeonhole, 204 to 196.

The death blow to the measure, which some foes asserted would make a dictator of the President, came as a surprise and a shock to Democratic chieftains. The rebuff to the President was comparable only to that of the Senate's rejection of his Court reorganization bill last year.

The bill would have empowered the President to reshuffle or abolish government agencies and bureaus. It would have substituted a single civil service administrator for the present three-man commission, made the comptroller general removable at the will of the President and established a department of welfare and a new office of auditor general. The latter officer would have made a post-audit of government spending for Congress.

MRS. SINCELL SUSTAINS BROKEN LEG IN ACCIDENT

Porch Collapses At Public Sale, Sending Dozen Or More To Cellar

Mrs. Benj. H. Sincell sustained a broken leg, and several other persons were less seriously injured last Saturday during a public sale of personal property at the home of Mrs. J. Thomas Moon, in the Bethlehem community, when the front porch of the home collapsed, precipitating a dozen or more into the cellar, about ten feet below.

The porch floor broke away from the building without warning just after the sale of household goods had commenced. Due to the inclement weather people had crowded in the house and on the porch until there was hardly enough room left to conduct the auction.

When the porch collapsed it carried with it to the cellar two heavy dressers which struck some of the unfortunate ones who had fallen.

Besides Mrs. Sincell, others suffering injuries were Wallace Bowser, A. R. Martin and a 10-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hardesty, of Oakland; Frank Bittinger and George White, Deer Park; Mrs. Hubert Bowman, McHenry; a Mrs. Yoder, and several others whose names were not learned.

A first aid man from the Potomac CCC camp made a temporary splint. Then medical assistance was obtained from Oakland and Mrs. Sincell was taken to the office of Dr. N. I. Broadwater where the bones were set. Both bones in her left leg were broken between the knee and ankle. Following the accident the sale was postponed until April 16.

MUCH DAMAGE IS CAUSED BY HEAVY SLEET STORM

Miles of Telephone Wire Down; Fruit Trees Crushed Beneath Heavy Ice

One of the heaviest sleet storms in years blanketed most of Garrett county last Friday causing thousands of dollars of damage to orchards and telephone companies. Several miles of telephone wires in the Grantsville section were down, ice forming around the wires to such an extent that a foot of wire weighed eight pounds.

The new telephone line being erected to Friendsville from Oakland was considerably damaged, and the line beyond Deer Park toward the Potomac camp was down. The sleet in that vicinity seemed to be more severe than in the Oakland section.

Serious damage was done to fruit trees in the North Glade section.

Traffic over the National highway, throughout the county, moved slowly due to the slippery condition of the highways and a heavy fog. Road crews sprinkled cinders in the mountain sections.

Before the sleet had entirely disappeared from the rising temperature and rain, a snowstorm struck parts of the county on Saturday, giving the appearance of mid-winter.

Sunday was the beginning of more moderate weather.

Will Be Projected in Assembly Hall Of M. E. Church, Saturday

A religious motion picture with sound music, portraying the life of Christ, will be shown in the Assembly Hall of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church on Saturday evening, at 7:30 o'clock.

The picture is a portrayel of the life of the Master, especially His "Passion," and is patterned after and based upon the two world-famous passion plays at Freiburg and Oberammergau, in Europe. It was filmed in Europe, the Holy Land and Egypt, and has been shown in the principal cities of this country and Canada during the past two years.

The major episodes of the Passion Week are of religious significance and historic importance as they were photographed on authentic and sacred ground in Palestine.

The public is invited. There will be no admission charge, but a silver offering will be taken.

Answers Two Alarms

Members of the Oakland Fire Department were called about 7 o'clock Tuesday evening to extinguish a flue fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McRobie, Oak street. There was no damage.

Another alarm was answered last Sunday afternoon, when the automobile of Catherine Baker caught fire along the Oakland-Crellin highway. Because of insufficient information when the alarm was turned in the firemen did not know the exact location of the fire and went to Crellin. The fire had been extinguished in the meantime, however, with slight damage.

SUSPENSION BRIDGE GOES DOWN WITH SEVEN PEOPLE

One Sustains Broken Arm In Fall Into Potomac at Kitzmiller

Seven men were given an unexpected immersion in the cold waters of the Potomac river last Friday, and one person sustained a broken arm when a suspension bridge of the Hamill Coal and Coke company, broke from the combined weight of sleet and a quantity of coal.

Dock Ray, Kitzmiller, received a broken arm from his fall while the others, George B. Poole, Roy Sowers, Lee McCloud, William Shank, and two others whose names could not be learned, were more or less bruised.

The bridge was about nine feet above the river and the men were returning from the mine on a bucket carrying two tons of coal, when the cables parted.

Had the river been high all would have undoubtedly been swept down stream and probably drowned. A heavy timber from the bridge narrowly missed striking Mr. Sowers as it fell.

Mrs. "Bub" Friend Gets Husband Home, But Will He Stay?

There are ways and ways of getting your husband home when you want him there and he isn't inclined to come. But it remained for Mrs. Andrew Coleman "Bub" Friend to hatch up a new scheme. Emroy Bolden will vouch for the fact that it worked.

Mr. Bolden, funeral director, said "Bub" Friend came to him Tuesday afternoon and informed him that his year-old baby had died, and asked about funeral arrangements, expenses, etc.

With those details settled Mr. Bolden and "Bub" set out, in the former's car toward Deer Park, where the latter lived, for the "body." About a mile out of town they met Mrs. Friend walking along the road homeward and it took much argument on the part of Friend, Mr. Bolden said, to persuade Mrs. Friend to ride, but she finally did so.

After riding several miles Mr. Bolden said Mrs. Friend laid down the law to "Bub" and suddenly announced, "The baby isn't dead. I just said that to get him to come home. But maybe it soon will be, it's so hungry."

The need for Mr. Bolden having been dissolved, he nevertheless took the couple almost to their home which was off the hard-surfaced road. What he thought about the matter, however, is not for publication.

Mr. Friend receives aid through relief agencies. But whether or not the money goes for proper food is not known. Neither is it known whether, once home, he will remain there.

Junior Drum Corps Group Is Progressing

The organization of a junior drum corps in Oakland is progressing nicely, according to those in charge, and it is planned that boys will start working with their instruments next week.

Next Monday evening is set as the deadline for receiving applications for membership. Every boy whose father was in the World War is eligible to join under certain conditions. Those interested must see a committee member before next Monday evening or they will be placed on the waiting list. The committee includes I. R. Rudy, F. D. Bittle, A. G. Hesen, Stanley Stahl, H. C. Riggs, Julius Littman and C. Milton Sincell.

The executive committee will meet Monday evening at seven o'clock for final tabulation of the applicants for membership.

GAS BOMBS ARE USED TO ROUT FRIENDSVILLE MAN

Oscar Friend Had Barricaded Himself In Home After Alleged Assault Upon Constable Cover

IS NOW LODGED IN JAIL

Charged with assaulting an officer with a deadly weapon and resisting arrest, Oscar Friend, 70, of Friendsville, was finally forced to abandon his barricaded home about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning when fumes from two tear gas bombs took effect. With the house surrounded Friend refused to let officers enter, and pointing a rifle out the window ordered them to "get away from here."

With a warrant to place Friend under a peace bond, sworn out by Don Friend, a neighbor, James Cover, constable, went to the home about 9 o'clock Monday night. When presented with the warrant Friend, according to Sheriff Clarence Spear, attacked Cover with an axe and ordered him out of the house. The blow with the axe, Spear said, was a glancing one on Cover's arm, and did not injure the constable.

Coming to Oakland Cover obtained Sheriff Spear, Deputy J. W. Owens, Corporal Thomas Currie, of the State Police. Currie also notified Sergt. A. M. Spioch and officer George Miller, LaVale substation, who met the local officers in Friendsville. They were armed with tear gas and were forced to use it.

Spear stated Friend was a former inmate of Sykesville years ago. He lived alone and lately had threatened a number of people. "Monday," said Spear, "he threatened children on the Friendsville school ground near his home." When captured Friend had a rifle and belt with 21 cartridges. There was another box of cartridges in the house, in addition to knives and other weapons, officers reported.

It was just about a year ago that Clyde Friend, of near Friendsville, shot and killed Quinter Hook, in a wheat field, for which he was later convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Oscar Friend, prior to his capture, defied anybody to get him. "I defy you or any county officer, or any state officer, or any national officer to arrest me," Spear said he told Cover.

Returning later that evening with reinforcements Cover and the authorities surrounded the house. With officers placed at the front and rear doors, Sergeant Spioch watched Friend move to the rear of the house. Spioch immediately shot a gas bomb into the second floor where Friend was standing. Friend then came to the first floor and Corporal Currie then tossed in another gas bomb, while Sergeant Spioch made his way to the shed roof of the home, officers said.

Friend then opened a window directly beneath Sergeant Spioch, in an effort to get fresh air, and while Spear and Currie pulled on Friend, who seemed to be stuck in the window, Spioch reached down and added the necessary push which brought him to the ground.

He will be given an examination by physicians, State's Attorney Neil C. Fraley said. Friend told Spear he would get an "international lawyer and the Knights Templar" to defend him.

Home Entered; Bicycle Taken

Some unknown person entered the basement of the residence of Ernest Ashby nt Crellin, last night and when leaving took along a bicycle, the property of Mr. Ashby's son Ward. Evidently the wheel was taken just for the ride, because the responsible party was traced to Oakland and return to Crellin. This morning the bicycle was located in the rear of Mr. Ashby's home.

Authorities were notified, however, and an early arrest is expected.

NOTICE!

The Mayor and Town Council of Oakland, Maryland, will meet at the Council Chamber on MONDAY AND TUESDAY,

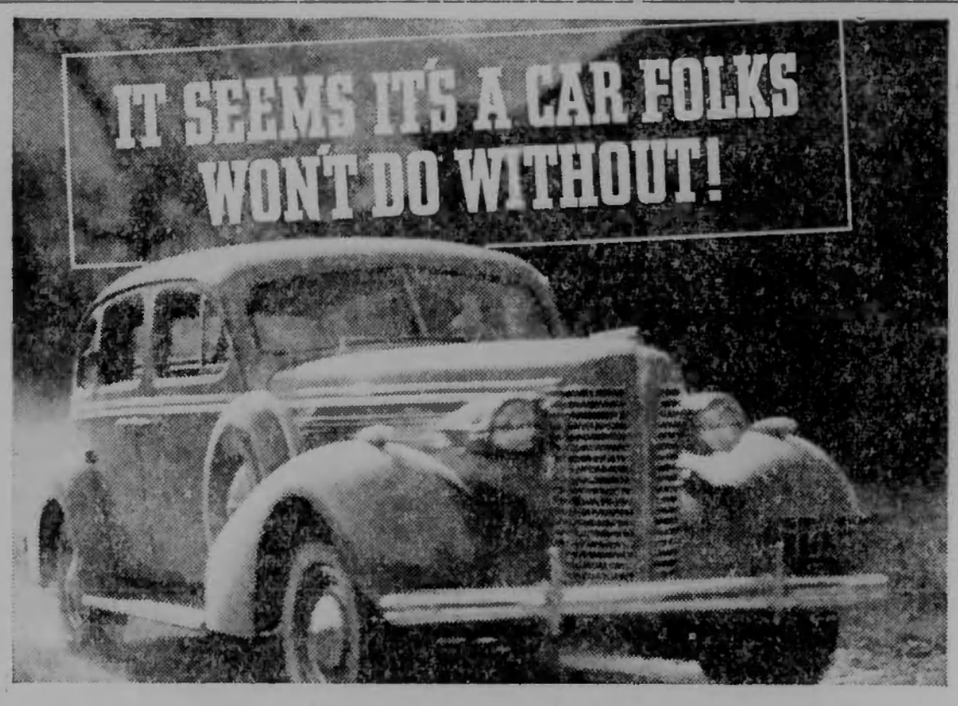
APRIL 18 AND 19, 1938,

between the hours of 7:30 and 9 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of hearing appeals and making transfers.

By order of the Council,
J. FRANK BROWNING, Clerk.



WE were pretty sure we had a great car when some months ago we checked the final blueprints on the 1938 Buick.

It had the new and mighty DYNAFLASH engine for sparkling action—the sensationally desirable TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING for a lullaby of a ride.

Looking ahead in that promising day, we figured we had every chance of getting our sales share by reason of what this car gave the buyer for his money.

Now, when times are sterner, it appears we built better than we knew—we've got a car folks just won't do without!

This great new Buick was first introduced to the public last fall. Through September, October, November, it sold in steadily increasing volume.

In a period when sales of other cars were sliding off it went ahead, in one month actually outselling one of the Big Three of the lowest-priced field.

It's still going ahead—not car Number Seven or Eight, as one might expect by its price-class, but one of the season's Four Best Sellers!

There is only one explanation of such a record when made by a car in the thousand-dollar bracket.

Such a car is so good—has so much of value in it—people just won't do without it!

They buy it not only in preference to other cars—they buy in preference to waiting for easier times and readier money-to-spend!

That's the convincing sort of car you're about to drive when you first take the wheel of a 1938 Buick.

If you haven't yet handled a new Buick, you ought to—just to see what such a car is like!

MT. LAKE PARK

"The optomist fell ten stories;
At each window bar
He shouted to his friend:
'All right so far.'"

That's the way we are feeling about Mountain Lake Park, except that we aren't going to even start falling. Things are beginning to "hum" in the Park. There is some building and remodeling being done to Park properties. The Deaconess Home is being renovated and re-roofed; Mrs. I. D. Hill is improving her cottage; Mrs. J. A. Clark ,of Uniontown, is redecorating the interior of her home; the L. A. Rudisille home is undergoing interior work.

Town officials are in the midst of a busy program. Sewers are being laid and old ones repaired. A general clean up of town property is going on; the streets are being put into shape and many improvements are planned for the summer season, which means a better Mountain Lake Park.

A word about the Mountain Lake school paper. "The Community Oak," which is published by the students of the school each month. The editorial staff is composed of Mary Jane Gnegy, editor in chief; Mary Betty Landon, assistant editor; Kathrine Johnson, business manager; Edward Kahl, news editor; Richard Turney, sports editor; Billy Landon, art editor; Lawrence Brock, poetry editor; Clara Weber, typist. The March number had three sheets of material and was composed of both interesting and instructive articles.

Remember When—

The electric station was operated by Ben Long, who is now a resident of Butler, Pa.

William Hocking conducted a store at the corner of F street? This is still a store.

Going frog hunting at the lake was a great sport?

Wiley Welling and Dr. Thurl Bullard walked to Harrisonburg, Va.?

Lester Yntzy was associated with C. M. Rathbun at Loch Lynn?

The Hicks House at the station was a popular commerical hotel?

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Jesse W. Chrise, Plaintiff, vs. Helen Chrise, Defendant.

No. 3116 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

The bill states that the plaintiff and defendant were married in April, 1923, at Somerset, Pennsylvania.

That from the time of said marriage until sometime in May, 1934, the parties resided near Holsopple, Pennsylvania.

That sometime in May, 1934, the said defendant, Helen Chrise, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff and declared her intention to live with him no longer, and such abandonment and desertion has continued uninterruptedly for more than three years prior to the filing of this suit and that the separation of the parties is deliberate and final and beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That ever since their said marriage the plaintiff has behaved himself as a faithful and affectionate husband towards his said wife.

That there was one child born of said marriage, namely, Arnold Chrise, who is now about fourteen years of age and who is now in the custody of the defendant.

That your orator has been a resident of the State of Maryland for more than two years prior to the filing of his Bill of Complaint and the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and is now residing in the State of Ohio.

The bill prays for a decree for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii by the plaintiff from the defendant.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

Herbert V. Leighton and John W. Lower vs. Walter W. Dawson, Administrator of the Estate of Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, and the unknown heirs of Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased.

No. 3461 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The purpose of this suit is to obtain a decree for the sale of the real estate of which Elizabeth Buckman, late of Garrett County, Maryland, deceased, died seized and possessed, for the payment of claims against her estate.

The bill states:—

That Elizabeth Buckman, in her lifetime, was indebted unto a number of persons on sundry accounts as shown by certified copy of the list of claims proved and passed in the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and that being so indebted she departed this life during the month of March, 1936, intestate, leaving no known heirs; that letters of administration on the personal estate of the said Elizabeth Buckman were granted to Walter W. Dawson by the Orphans' Court for Garrett County, Maryland, and after disposing of the personal property he applied the proceeds realized therefrom to the payment of funeral expenses and other small preferred claims, but that the personal estate was not sufficient to discharge all the debts against said decedent; that the said Elizabeth Buckman, at the time of her death, was the owner of Lot No. 1011 on the Plat of Mountain Lake Park, which was conveyed to her by a series of conveyances mentioned in the Bill of Complaint, and copies thereof filed with the same; that title to said property was vested in said Elizabeth Buckman as sole owner and out of this the plaintiffs now seek payment of the claims against her estate.

The bill then prays that the real estate as aforesaid of Elizabeth Buckman may be sold for the payment of all unsatisfied claims against said decedent, for general relief, for the writ of subpoena against the said Walter W. Dawson and for an order of publication against the unknown heirs of said Elizabeth Buckman.

IT IS THEREUPON, This 11th day of April, 1938, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland, in Equity, that the plaintiffs by having a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett County, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 13th day of May, 1938, give notice to the said defendants, to-wit, the unknown heirs of the said Elizabeth Buckman, of the ob... and substa... of this bill, war... to be ... appear in this Cour... solicitor, on or bef... 28th da... NOTICE

There seems to be a studied and calculated attempt to convey to the public an idea that on account of certain changes made in the law governing the collection of taxes the Treasurer will now be required to advertise property and sell same for the non-payment of taxes immediately after they become overdue on October 1st, of this year.

In order to support this claim they have quoted Section 107 of the law requiring the notice to be given to taxpayers who will be delinquent after October 1st, of this year.

The old law reads as follows:.

"107. THE SAID TREASURER SHALL DURING THE FIRST WEEK IN DECEMBER IN EACH AND EVERY YEAR, GIVE NOTICE TO ALL DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS OF SAID COUNTY, BY ADVERTISEMENT INSERTED IN TWO NEWSPAPERS PUBLISHED IN SAID COUNTY AND BY HANDBILLS POSTED IN FIVE OF THE MOST PUBLIC PLACES IN EACH ELECTION DISTRICT, AND AT THE COURT HOUSE DOOR, WARNING THEM, AND EACH OF THEM, THAT THE PAYMENT OF ALL TAXES THEN DUE AND IN ARREARS WILL BE ENFORCED BY ADVERTISEMENT AND SALE UNLESS THE SAME ARE PAID BEFORE THE FIRST DAY OF JANUARY THEN NEXT FOLLOWING."

The new law requiring the Treasurer to give notice reads as follows:

"107. THE SAID TREASURER SHALL DURING THE FIRST WEEK IN SEPTEMBER IN EACH AND EVERY YEAR, GIVE NOTICE TO ALL THE DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS IN SAID COUNTY, BY ADVERTISEMENT INSERTED IN TWO NEWSPAPERS PUBLISHED IN SAID COUNTY AND BY HANDBILLS POSTED IN FIVE OF THE MOST PUBLIC PLACES IN EACH ELECTION DISTRICT OF SAID COUNTY, AND AT THE COURT HOUSE DOOR, WARNING THEM, AND EACH OF THEM, THAT THE PAYMENT OF ALL TAXES THEN DUE AND IN ARREARS WILL BE ENFORCED BY ADVERTISEMENT AND SALE UNLESS THE SAME ARE PAID BEFORE THE FIRST DAY OF OCTOBER THEN NEXT FOLLOWING."

It will be seen that the only changes in the law requiring the publication of notice to delinquent taxpayers is the substitution of September for December, in the first place, and in the second place, October for January.

Under the new law the Treasurer is required to give notice to Delinquent taxpayers in September. Under the old law it was December. I believe that deliberate attempts are being made to create a false impression in regard to this law and others. It is a part of a smearing campaign deliberately intended to deceive the people. It therefore becomes necessary for me to give public notice that the message on the white slip of paper sent out from the Treasurer's office with the Tax Bills is not in accordance with the law, and the law does not require him to send out such a notice. Under the law he is required to publish the notice during the first week in September, in the manner prescribed above.

Section 108 of the law provides that the Treasurer shall have one year, or until October 1st, 1939, to collect and account for all taxes that will be overdue after October 1st, 1938. If any further attempts are made to deceive the people I will publish the law from Section 102 to 108 inclusive.

SAVE MONEY?

The Standard Coupe

The Standard Ford V-8, with 60-horsepower engine, gives you a lot of car for a little money.

300,000 new owners acclaimed the "thrifty 60" last year. Hundreds a day are buying it in 1938. Why?

Because it is priced low—includes essential equipment without extra charge—and goes farther between filling stations than any Ford car ever built. Owners all over the country report averages of 22 to 27 miles on a single gallon of gasoline.

But economy isn't all the story by any means. The Standard "60" is built with the same precision as the De Luxe "85," and has the same 112-inch wheelbase chassis. It is easy to look at and ride in—as well as easy to buy and run. There's a Ford dealer near you.

Scoop's Column

By Scoop Himself

The damage that was possible by a sleet storm must have been quite heavily on my mind last Friday night when I went to sleep, for I dreamed about it. And from my fertile subconscious mind I conceived a way to stop it. All one had to do was to grease all the trees, telephone lines, etc., with vaseline. It seemed logical enough in my dream and I made a special note that I would remember it and put it in my column.

Upon awakening the cure didn't seem to be so logical as you have probably realized by now, but if you haven't you might try it out the next time we have sleet.

* * *

The majority of the nation's motor vehicle administrators don't like "fish-pole" aerials on motor cars; they feel that headlights are unsatisfactory; they favor dual windshield wipers as standard equipment; and while they feel that modern cars are too speedy they are opposed to control of speed by mechanical governors.

* * *

How They Do It

You can find out just what goes on in Methodist Junior League by the impressions of one of the boys who goes. He told his mother, "Miss Nottie reads the names of everybody and if we're there we say 'president'."

* * *

Several months ago I made the statement that the telephone poles on the new Friendsville line looked like they would last about as long as the first sleet storm.

Well, the poles are still standing, but the wires are not. Those jack pine poles must be pretty strong, after all. But maybe the wire wasn't big enough.

A correspondent writes to ask the identity of the "selfish few" whom President Roosevelt talks about in his various speeches.

The selfish few, my good man, are those who are not on the government payroll but have to pay the taxes which take care of the salaries of the unselfish multitude who are on the payroll one way or another.

Some of These Days

Some of these days someone will stop talking about the poor people on relief and say something in defense of the hundreds of families who are attempting to hang onto their property and keep their taxes paid.

There are hundreds of families who do not have as much to live on as the people who are on relief. They are the kind of citizens who need help and encouragement.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our husband and father, Charles Quinter Hook, who passed away one year ago on April 18, 1937:

One year it's been since you left us,
'Tho it seems like many more;
We were happy when you were with us,
But now our hearts are sore.

God knows how much we miss you
Never shall your memory fade;
Loving thoughts shall ever wander
To the spot where you are laid.

We often sit and think of you,
And speak of how you died—
To think you could not say good-bye
Before you closed your eyes.

We don't know why you had to be called
So soon to that "far-off land"—
Since God does things for the very best,
Some day we'll understand.

Sadly missed by WIFE AND SONS.

Seventy-two licenses were issued from the Clerk's office during the week ending Monday at noen, while on Saturday before Easter there were twenty-six couples who were granted permits. RELIEF CRISIS DEVELOPS WITH DECREASE IN FUNDS

Garrett County Gets Check For $1,928 For Direct Relief During Next Eleven Months

GORDY'S LETTER PRINTED

A crisis in Garrett county's welfare program has developed with the announcement of William S. Gordy, Jr., State Comptroller, that this county would receive only $1,928.00 for direct relief during the next eleven months.

Only $200,000 is available throughout the entire state during that period, less than the amount spent by the state in March. His statement was based on the failure of special relief taxes to produce revenue anticipated by the last legislature. Garrett county's direct relief funds are handled through the office of the County Commissioners.

The Commissioners announced this week that they had received a check from the Comptroller's Office for $1,928.00, representing the county's share of the General Public Assistance funds under the special law passed last May. At the present rate of distribution this amount will net last long, it was stated. During March $1,862.33 was expended on direct relief.

The Commissioners received the following letter from the Comptroller under date of April 11th:

Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County, Oakland, Md.

Gentlemen:—

We have been receiving during the past several months many letters from the various counties appealing fer a distribution of General Public Assistance Funds due to their pressing needs, and up until the present time we were unable, due to the uncollected State income tax, to determine the probable results of the total tax collections for the State Fund for Aid to the Needy.

As liberal an estimate as we feel able to make is that for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1938, total receipts will be approximately $3,994,267.00, and the definitely fixed or allocated amounts, as enumerated in the law, plus administration costs, are approximately $4,050,000.00, a deficit for the year of $56,000.

For the fiscal year ending September 30, 1939, due to the loss of the reregistration fees, which will not be repeated in that year, our estimates of receipts are $3,490,000.00, and the definitely dedicated allocations are $4,050,000.00, a deficit of $560,000.00, making a total deficit in income of $616,000.00 for the two years.

Beginning October 1, 1937, there was brought over a balance to the credit of this account $1,540,240.00, from which we disbursed to Baltimore City and the various counties in November, 1937, fer General Public Assistance $500,000.00, leaving a balance of $1,040,240.00, less an amount to be reserved, as per allocations cited in the law for 1938-1939, of $616,000.00, which leaves $424,240.00, which should be available when revenues are collected for General Public Assistance for the year 1939.

We are however advised by the Board of State Aid and Charities that for the first three quarters of 1938 the full appropriation for old age pensions and aid to dependent children will not be used, and there will probably revert $200,000.00 which can be applied to General Public Assistance, but that for the year 1939 it is expected that they will use the entire allocation for those purposes.

Therefore, to relieve the present distressed condition of the city and counties for General Public Assistance funds we are distributing to Baltimore City and the counties $200,000.00 for which checks will be mailed in the next few days.

The situation to be faced in distributing the $424,240.00 estimated to be available for the fiscal year 1939 is that the actual cash will noe be available for this purpose until the 1939 income taxes are collected, which are payable March 15, 1939. Thus, it will he seen that had it not been for the balance brought forward from the old Aid for the Needy Funds prior to the present fiscal year there would have been no General Public Assistance funds available. Of course it is to be regretted that the proceeds from the laws passed by the last Legislature were disappointing in their results, producing approximately $1,000,000.00 less for the two years than the Legislature estimated.

Very truly yours,
WM. S. GORDY, JR.,
Comptroller.

The Commissioners state that unusually heavy demands are being made for direct relief due largely to the unemployment of many men in the county. It was stated at the Commissieners' office that when they made their levy in January they levied only $5,000.00 anticipating receipts of enough additional funds to take care of the General Public Assistance requirements for the year. It seems from Mr. Gordy's letter that there will he no further funds available for this purpose this year and the relief situation in the county is acute.

Just what action would be taken, if any, was not learned. Counties in the state will have to carry on with their own funds, if they have any, refuse to give any aid except to those in the most dire circumstances, or borrow an amount up to an equivalent of eight cents on their tax rate. A law in 1935 gave counties the latter right, the money being borrowed against the next levy.

IN MEMORIAM

Sleep on, dear wife, and take your rest,
God took you home, He thought it best;
It was hard, indeed, to part from thee,
But God's strong arm supported me.

How long she struggled against disease
That baffled skill and care;
How long she lingered, racked with pain
And sufferings hard to bear.

What grief and pain she suffered here
None of us will ever know,
For Jesus took her home with Him
Where no tears will ever flow.

Her busy hands are folded,
Her toil on earth is done,
Her troubles are all ended,
Her heavenly crown is won.

—Her Husband, Hervey L. Bittner.

CIVIC CLUB ACTIVITIES OF 1937 TOLD IN REPORT

Record Shows Women's Organization Busy With Betterment Plans

The activities of the Oakland Civic Club during the past year were given in a report of Miss Lottie M. Loar, president, at a recent meeting of the organization. Miss Loar's report in full follows:

The yard and garden contest, which was sponsored by the club for seven consecutive years, was discontinued.

Early in the spring 86 packets of zinnia seed, furnished by a seed company in California, were distributed through the Civic Club to members, Girls Scouts and homemakers' clubs. In Septmeber, a zinnia show was held, directed by Mrs. Harold Harned and awards made, furnished by the seed company. First honors in all classes were won by Girl Scouts. Some very fine blooms were on display. Mr. Ralph Weber acted as judge.

Each Friday throughout the summer there was an exhibit of garden-cut flowers where any flower grower might bring flowers for display or to be judged. Thirty-four prizes were given.

We continued the upkeep of the small grass plot near the Oak street bridge where flowers bloomed from April until frost.

Most instructive and interesting talks were given by Miss Ethel Miller, executive secretary of the Garrett County Welfare Board on social security; by Miss Sponseller, on child welfare and WPA; by Miss Mildred Barton, home demonstration agent, on the program of the State extension service for homemakers and 4-H clubs. The class in home economics was present at the latter meeting.

A kitchen shower was given the girls in the home economics department of the local high school.

Through our club National American Art Week was observed from November 1st to 5th. Many talented art lovers responded to the call, not only in our community, but throughout our county. Both our high and grammar schools, under their teacher, Miss Catherine Baker, took part in the display of their art work in the schools. The art, which was accredited the best and given first prizes, was to be sent to Baltimore or New York for exhibit in January. The exhibit, a very creditable one, rating high in opinion of the judges, was visited by at least two hundred persons and was under the management of Miss Adeline Sinecll, appointed by Mrs. F. L. Hahman, State Director for American Art Work.

Beginning in January, 1937, a study and book exchange group was organized by Education Chairman, Mrs. Harold Harned. The admission fee was a book for exchange with other members. Each month there was a book review by a member or discussion of some book that had been read. This was discontinued in the summer.

We had as speakers for our Cancer Control Fund program, which was an open meeting to all women, two local physicians: Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, speaking on the symptoms and diagnosis of cancer, and Dr. N. I. Broadwater, its treatment. Under the leadership of Mrs. Foster Bittle, nearly $40.00 was collected, partly by placing containers in public places with a member in charge. Half of this sum was sent to the Maryland University in Baltimore and half to our local hospital—the Memorial in Cumberland. The sum of $2.00, assessment, was previously donated in response to an appeal by the chairman of public health in April.

Fifty pounds of used silk garments—hose, ties and scarfs, also two decks of playing cards were sent to the war veterans at Perry Point, in December.

Under Public Welfare, the club has furnished five pairs of children's shoes, one pair for adult; several repaired; also braces were repaired. Five were furnished with glasses; 7 with transportation to Baltimore hospital; a quantity of clothing for the latter. Two orthopedic clinics were held during the year, when the Civic Club acted as hostess to the workers for lunch.

Observing Washington's Birthday, we had as speaker Mr. Charles Hoye, whose subject was Washington's travels through what is now Garrett county. The first was in 1753, and the second in 1754.

Under legislation, there was a discussion of jury service for women and other topics. At an open meeting we had as our speaker Mr. Neil Fraley, State's Attorney, who spoke on what becomes of our local tax dollar.

A camp scholarship of $7.50 was donated to the Girl Scouts organization.

Our assessment of one penny per member has been paid to the Penny Art fund.

The president and four members attended the annual meeting of the First District in Cumberland in April.
